Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th March, 1903:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the Appendix, and have now the honour to submit this our Preliminary Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

CHAPTER I.

2. As in the case of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (Act V of 1898), we have, for greater facility of reference, classified and numbered the "preliminary" portion as a Chapter.

Clause 1.—We have, in view of local opinion, altered the extent clause so as to render the Bill applicable ex proprio vigore to Sindh, where the present Code is in force in virtue of a notification under the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874 (XIV of 1874), section 5.

Clause 2.—The special provisions regulating the attachment of "growing crops" will be ineffectual if they do not cover the same crops after they have been cut or gathered. We propose, therefore, to employ the compendious expression "agricultural produce" which we would define on the lines of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), section 121, clause (b).

The wording of the definition of "agriculturist" has been slightly altered to meet criticisms to the effect that the corresponding passage in the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879 (XVII of 1879), would, if strictly construed, include for the time being a person occasionally earning the whole or the greater part of his livelihood by agriculture. An explanation has been added for the purpose of removing any doubt on the question whether the expression "agriculture" includes market-gardening to which we consider the principle underlying the proposed provision to be equally applicable.

We have considerably modified the definition of "cause of action". The substitution of "all the facts" for "every fact" is intended to give effect to the principle that the term relates to an aggregate of facts constituting the right and its infraction. For the words "the plaintiff" the words "a party" have been substituted to meet the case, for example, of set-off or counter-claim. We have replaced the word "traversed" by the words "not admitted," inasmuch as certain facts, such as those supporting a claim to be decreed ex parte, have to be established as substantive propositions, even though they are not traversed by the opposite party. We have restricted the term "order" by adding the words "capable of execution" to avoid the inclusion of orders of a purely incidental and interlocutory character. We have omitted the words "has no relation to the defence nor", which, though appropriate in the course of a decision [per Lord Watson, Mussummat Chand Kour v. Partab Singh (1888), L. R. 15 I. A. 156, at p. 157], appear to us to be too general for use in a Code.

Into the definition of "Chief Controlling Revenue-authority" we have introduced some verbal alterations for closer conformity with the terms of the Proclamation of the 22nd March, 1902, and the United Provinces (Designation) Act, 1902 (VII of 1902). In sub-head (ii) we have, with reference to the General Clauses Act, 1897 (X of 1897), section 3, clause (41), slightly departed from the wording of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 (II of 1899), section 2, clause (8).

We have shortened and lightened the definition of "decree" by omitting certain items which, though embodied in the Bill as exemplars, are founded upon cases not likely to prove of general utility in practice. In some cases, moreover, we have found it more convenient to provide in other clauses for giving the force of a decree to the decisions thereunder. It will be observed that we have omitted the words restricting "decree" to adjudications "upon the merits," because they might be held to exclude final decisions given wholly upon questions of law. We have considered it expedient to include in the definition an express reference to "preliminary decree", which is an expression somewhat frequently employed in the course of this Bill. In the various sub-heads retained by us we have substituted the word "decision" for the word "order" to avoid a verbal inconsistency occurring in the present Code with the definition reproduced by us in paragraph (t). In sub-head (i) we have affirmed the broad principle that the return of a plaint should never, and the rejection of a plaint should always, be appealable as a decree. In sub-head (ii) we have added words to restrict frivolous appeals in incidental matters, such as adjournments in execution-proceedings. In sub-head (v), as in clause 366 there cited, we propose to act upon the view that abatement results from operation of law and does not depend upon the issue of an order. We have slightly modified the language of sub-head (xi) because it has been pointed out that there are "references" in section 588 to matters other than orders from which an appeal is given thereunder.

The distinction between decrees according as they are final or preliminary has necessitated the substitution of the words "final and conclusive", of which we have proposed a definition, for the word "final" wherever it occurs in this sense in the present Code.

Words have been added to the definition of "sign" for greater conformity with the terms of the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 3, clause 52.

As it is proposed to restrict the expression "suit" to proceedings in Civil Courts commenced by plaints [compare, Venkata Chandrappa Nayanivaru v. Venkatarama Reddi (1898), I. L. R. 22 Mad. 256], the insertion of a definition to this effect has been considered desirable.

In the original Bill it was sought, by the substitution of the expression "female," to obviate the straining of language by which, in some cases, girls of twelve years of age have been brought [In the matter of Mainath Singh v. Mussamut Moorta Kooer (1875), 24 W. R. 375] within the purview of the term "woman". As objections have been raised to the substituted expression, it is proposed to revert to the term "woman" but to add a definition on the lines of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), section 10.

Clause 3.—As the subordination of Courts is not strictly a matter of definition, we have removed the existing provision on the subject from clause 2 and propose to convert it into an independent clause.

Clauses 4 to 7.—In the replies from Local Governments to a special reference on the subject, a unanimous opinion was expressed to the effect that the cumbrous provisions of clauses 4 (1), 6 (1) and 7 should be replaced by a simpler and more comprehensive saving on the lines of that contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (Act V of 1898), section 1, sub-section (2). The necessity for preserving the substance of clause 7 has involved some addition to the First Schedule, which has been redrafted at the desire of the Government of Bombay.

The revenue laws of several Provinces contain special provisions for the more speedy recovery of agricultural rent to which indeed the produce of the land is, in several instances, declared to be hypothecated. The more general terms of the saving clause, as now proposed by us, would, we think, suffice to save such rights and remedies. At the same time, for the sake of greater clearness, we have inserted an express saving which is likely to save mistakes in practice. This enables us to dispense with the proviso originally appended to clause 269B. The purview of clause 4, sub-clause (2), which now appears as clause 4, has been expanded by us to cover the case of Civil Judges in the Central Provinces. These officers, who are not District Judges under the local enactment, exercise a concurrent civil jurisdiction with regard to which the Government should have the same power as in the case of Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners.

In view of the proposals to remove certain matters from the pecuniary limitations imposed upon the jurisdiction of the Courts, we have somewhat amplified the references in clause 6, sub-clause (2), now appearing as clause 6, to cases excepted. On the other hand, the reference to clause 111 has been omitted because, as we have noted upon the provision in question, we propose, in preference to extension of jurisdiction, to require transfer of cases involving a set-off or counter-claim in respect of which the Court is not competent to grant relief.

Clause 8.—We have added words represented to us as necessary for the purpose of meeting the case of judicial officers invested with the powers given by law to Provincial Courts of Small Causes.

PART II.

OF SUITS IN GENERAL.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND RES JUDICATA.

Clause 11.—Explanation II has been added to give effect to a decision [Kishori Mohun Roy Chowdhry v. Chunder Nath Pal (1887), I. L. R. 14 Cal. 644].

Clause 12.—We have substituted the word "stay" for the words "not try" to explain more clearly the action to be taken by the Court; and the words "for the same relief" have been omitted because the application of the provision should depend not upon the mere prayer of the parties, but upon the matter in issue.

Clauses 13 to 14B.—It has been represented to us that clause 13 as originally drafted in the Bill is not unlikely to prove too elaborate for some of the subordinate Courts of this country. We have accordingly simplified the arrangement by first stating so much of the rule of res judicata as lends itself to general expression and have then enunciated, as separate propositions, the various conditions to which the rule is subject and which at present are inconveniently and inappropriately subjoined as explanations. We have, moreover, omitted the saving of remedies embodied as sub-clause (2) of clause 13 of the Bill, because we consider that such a saving is necessarily implied and that no special provision, therefore, is required for the case-law [Lalla Sheo Churn Lal v. Ramnandan Dobey (1894), I. L. R. 22 Cal. 8; Cursandas Natha v. Ladkavahu (1895), I. L. R. 19 Bom. 571], which it was sought to settle by the sub-clause. The existing explanation VI, which in strictness is not an explanation at all but rather a substantive rule of evidence, has been relegated by us to a more convenient position at the end of the Chapter.

From clause 13 we have omitted the words "which has not been obtained by fraud or collusion" because the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (I of 1872), section 44, which it was intended to save, are confined to judgments proved by the adverse party, and we think that a provision relating to procedure is, of necessity, subject to the general law of evidence. We have avoided the expression "subsequent suit or proceeding" and have recast the sentence to render it clear [Balkishan v. Kishan Lal (1888), I. L. R. 11 All. 148; Gururajammah v. Venkatakrishnama (1901), I. L. R. 24 Mad. 350] that the date, not of institution but of decision, determines the application of the principle of res judicata.

As in the definition of a "decree", we have omitted the words "the merits of", which might be held to exclude the decision upon a point of limitation.

The words "and not collaterally, incidentally or inferentially", which add nothing to "directly and substantially," have been expunged; and the language has been much shortened by the use of the compendious expression "previously decided suit or other proceeding".

Explanation (b) appended to condition I aims at superseding in the sense of an Allahabad ruling [Sri Gopal v. Pirthi Singh (1897), I. L. R. 20 All. 110] a decision of the Calcutta High Court [Woomesh Chandra Maitra v. Barada Das Maitra (1900), I. L. R. 28 Cal. 17].

Sub-head (i) has been inserted in clause (b) of condition II to meet the cases in which, without the sanction referred to in clause 30, a litigant legally represents other persons, who are consequently bound by the decision. An instance will be found in the explanation appended to clause 368B.

An explanation has been added to condition IV with a view to setting at rest the doubts entertained with regard to the degree of exclusiveness attaching to the jurisdiction of Courts of Small Causes and of Criminal Courts.

By the explanation appended to condition V it is sought to set at rest the doubts on the question whether matter involved in a suit or other proceeding disposed of ex parte or notwithstanding default or on a compromise or award or upon evidence given upon oath by which the parties agree to abide, can be said to have been heard and finally decided for the purpose of rendering the doctrine of res judicata applicable.

With reference to clause 14, sub-clause (1), paragraph (d), it has been represented to us as expedient that the language of the Code should direct attention to the necessity not merely for alleging fraud but for proving it.

CHAPTER III.

OF THE COURT OF INSTITUTION.

Clause 15.—We have omitted the reference to clause 578A and the words "properly exercised under this section" as likely to occasion difficulties of interpretation. We have avoided the term "process of accumulation" [Shamrav Pandoji v. Niloji Ramaji (1885), I. L. R. 10 Bom. 200] because it is not wide enough to cover other changes such as an increase in market-value and might, if specified, be held to exclude them. On the other hand, we have, in paragraph (b), expressly declared that the increase in the value here referred to must be subsequent to the institution of a suit. We have added a paragraph rendering it clear that mesne profits do not oust the Court's jurisdiction merely because their addition to the value of a suit for recovery of possession is in excess of the pecuniary limits of such jurisdiction.

Clause 16.—Now that growing crops are to be included in the definition of "moveable property", paragraph (f) is no longer required, more especially because, as a matter of drafting, the ground is covered by paragraph (a).

Clause 16A.—We think that objections under sub-clause (2) should be taken at the earliest opportunity; and we have sought to exclude frivolous objections by parties not substantially prejudiced by the error.

Clause 17.—In paragraph (b) we have substituted the words "do not object to" for the words "acquiesce in" to give effect to a ruling [Viraragava v. Krishnasami (1882), I. L. R. 6 Mad. 349] and have provided that objections to this provision must be taken at the earliest opportunity and in any case before the issues are settled.

With reference to paragraph (c) we have given effect to strong representations that the necessity for obtaining the leave of the Court serves no useful purpose, while it affords opportunities for obstruction and delay. In view of the definition of "cause of action", we have omitted references to "claims".

Explanation III, as it stood in the Bill, has been omitted by us as no longer required in view of the re-draft, but in spite of the doubts expressed by the High Court of Madras [Murugesa Chetti v. Annamalai Chetti (1899), I. L. R. 23 Mad. 458, at p. 466], we have considered it expedient to append an explanation in the sense of a Bombay ruling [Rambhat v. Shankar Baswant (1901), I. L. R. 25 Bom. 528] the effect of which has been reproduced in illustration (c).

Clauses 20 to 25.—To sub-clauses (2) and (4) of clause 20, as originally drafted, a general application has been given in our proposed clause 24A. The extended powers given by clause 25 enable us considerably to shorten clauses 20 to 23. Sub-clause (1) of clause 24 has been recast and amplified to provide for the case, not covered by the present section, of suits instituted in the Original Side of a High Court. While one High Court cannot well be empowered to bind another by a decision given under section 24 [compare, Skinner v. Orde (1879), I. L. R. 2 All. 241, at pp. 246-7], we think it only right that the parties to such a decision should be debarred from raising objections to it. Sub-clause (1) of clause 25 has been modified more particularly to cover suits and other proceedings transferred to a Court newly established. In sub-clause (2), we propose to authorize the High Court or District Court to declare that proceedings taken before transfer need not necessarily be taken afresh where no useful purpose would be served by repetition.

CHAPTER IV.

OF PARTIES AND THEIR APPEARANCES, APPLICATIONS AND ACTS.

We have omitted the sub-headings in this Chapter as unnecessary and inaccurate.

Clause 26.—For the word "hearing" we have substituted the word "trial" for greater conformity with Order XVI, rule 1, and have introduced a few verbal changes into the illustrations, of which (c) has more especially been criticized as expressed in language too technical for use in Indian practice.

The latter portion of sub-clause (2) has been transferred to a more convenient positionin clause 220, sub-clause (1).

Clause 27.—We have thought it convenient to insert a reference to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877 (XV of 1877), section 22, the provisions of which are apt to be overlooked.

Clause 28.—The words "in respect of the same matter" have been inserted to restore the substance of the existing section in spite of the terms of Order XVI, rule 4, because rule 5 of the Order is not reproduced in the Code.

We have added an illustration to give effect to a decision [Serajul Huq Khan v. Dinabundhu Sen (1902), 6 Cal. W. N. 300].

Clause 30.—For the word "parties" we have substituted the word "persons" as the more appropriate expression [The Oriental Bank Corporation v. Gobind Lall Seal (1883), I. L. R. 9 Cal. 604, at p. 606]. We think, however, that the words "or implied" should be omitted so as to give effect to an Allahabad dictum [per Stuart, C. J., Hira Lal v. Bhairon (1883), I. L. R. 5 All. 602, at p. 604] and thereby to supersede a Bengal decision [Dhunput Singh v. Paresh Nath Singh (1893), I. L. R. 21 Cal. 180], from which it would appear that the Court's permission may be inferred from its procedure.

We have added to this clause a sub-clause reproducing the substance of clause 32, sub-clause (3), which appears to us to be out of place in its present position.

Clause 31.—We have restated the rule contained in this provision. The correct principle, in our opinion, is that, if possible, the Court must adjudicate between the parties before it; but, where misjoinder or non-joinder is fatal to the right to sue [compare, Ramsebuk v. Ramlall Koondoo (1881), I. L. R. 6 Cal. 815; Rajendronath Dutt v. Shaik Mahomed (1881), L. R. 8 I. A. 135; Ghulam Kadir Khan v. Mustakim Khan (1895), I. L. R. 18 All. 109], we think that every reasonable opportunity for remedying the defect, so far as may be, should be given before the plaint is rejected or the suit is dismissed.

Sub-clause (3) has been transferred by us to a more appropriate position in clause 44, sub-clause (1).

Clause 32.—We have recast sub-clause (1) which has been criticized as cumbrous. To paragraph (b) we have added a passage showing that, even where the Court acts of its own motion, the law of limitation will apply. This amendment will have the effect of superseding the view hitherto entertained in Bengal [The Oriental Bank Corporation v. Charriol (1886), I. L. R. 12 Cal. 642; Grish Chunder Sasmal v. Dwarka Nath Dinda (1897), I. L. R. 24 Cal. 640; Fakera Pashan v. Bibi Azimunnissa (1899), I. L. R. 27 Cal. 540].

So much of sub-clause (2) as relates to a "next friend" has been omitted by us as finding a more appropriate place in Chapter XXXII.

Sub-clause (3) has been omitted in view of the addition proposed to clause 30.

We have relaxed the stringency of sub-clause (4), which we have re-numbered (3), because notice is obviously an unnecessary formality where the party has been added on his own application.

We have slightly recast the wording of sub-clause (6), now sub-clause (5), to give more precise effect to the underlying decision [Imam-ud-din v. Liladhar (1892), I. L. R. 14 All. 524].

Clause 34.—We have somewhat shortened the prolix language of the Code.

Clause 36.—For the word "appeal" we have substituted the words "other proceeding" as more exhaustive, and after the word "rule" we have omitted the words "of law" as not required.

Clause 37.—In paragraphs (a) and (b) of sub-clause (1) the words "general" and "special" have been omitted as unduly restrictive.

In sub-clause (2) a verbal alteration has been necessitated by the inclusion of the former Chief Commissionership of Oudh in the Lieutenant-Governorship of the United Provinces.

Clause 39.—In sub-clause (2) we have, to obviate hardship to legal practitioners, provided for the termination of an appointment by the resignation of the pleader. It has been represented to us as a common practice to enter the names of numerous pleaders in the appointment but to fee only one of them at the actual hearing.

We have amplified sub-clause (3) to give effect to what we understand to be substantially the practice of some of the Courts added by us to this provision.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE FRAME OF THE SUIT.

Clause 43.—We are of opinion that this clause should cover recurrent causes of action which, as in the case of mesne profits, do not arise out of contract. We have slightly shortened the concluding passage of sub-clause (1), with which we have amalgamated sub-clause (2) for greater accuracy, because we think that a plaintiff is entitled to relinquish a portion of his claim, irrespective of the question whether his object is to bring the suit within jurisdiction. We have slightly altered the provisions of this clause with a view to representing more exactly the underlying decision [Musaheb Zaman Khan v. Inayat-ul-lah (1892), I. L. R. 14 All. 513], and we have amplified the illustration to state more fully the principle formulated in the concluding portion of sub-clause (1).

Clauses 44 to 47.—We have attempted to arrange clauses 44 to 46 of the Bill in what we conceive to be a more logical order. The principle on which we have proceeded is that joinder of claims should generally be permissible, subject to the power of the Court, as defined in clause 46, to order separate trials.

Clause 44, sub-clause (1), which reproduces clause 31, sub-clause (3), we have sought to explain by an illustration showing that we do not desire to give effect to the interpretation of the law adopted at Allahabad [Rahim Baksh v. Amiran Bibi (1896), I. L. R. 18 All. 219; following, Salima Bibi v. Sheikh Muhammad (1895), I. L. R. 18 All. 131].

We have amalgamated, in clause 46, sub-clause (1), the substance of the somewhat prolix provisions of clause 45, sub-clause (2), and clause 46, sub-clauses (1) and (2).

Clause 47A.—The reasons for requiring objections on the ground of non-joinder or mis-joinder of parties to be taken at the earliest opportunity apply with equal cogency to objections on the ground of misjoinder of claims.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE INSTITUTION OF SUITS.

Clause 48.—We have explicitly cast upon the person presenting the plaint the responsibility for the proper endorsement of his name, description and place of residence.

Clause 49.—This provision has been omitted because it is proposed to add to clause 645 a more generally expressed direction with respect to all pleadings.

Clause 50.—In sub-clause (1) we have relaxed the rigour of paragraph (cc), which we have re-lettered (d), to avoid some of the difficulties connected with any attempt to compel women and natives of this country to state their ages.

In paragraph (d), re-lettered (e), for the word "circumstances" the word "facts" has been substituted for greater conformity with the definition of "cause of action".

In paragraph (e), now (f), "prayer" has been substituted for "demand" as more in accordance with the practice of the Courts.

In paragraph (g), now (h), the words "where necessary" have been inserted to prevent any apparent inconsistency with the practice of High Courts on the Original Side in admitting plaints upon payment of a fixed fee and not of an ad valorem duty.

With reference to sub-clause (2) we think that damages are, for the present purpose, governed by the same principle as mesne profits.

We have re-cast sub-clause (3) to bring it into greater conformity with the Indian Registration Act, 1877 (III of 1877), section 21, sub-section (a).

We have omitted the illustrations on the ground that they are both inaccurate and useless to practitioners.

Clause 51.—We have omitted a superfluous reference to the special provisions relating to suits instituted in the name of partners.

Clause 52.—In view of proposed additions to clause 416 the reference to informations exhibited by the Advocate General is unnecessary.

Clauses 53 and 54.—We have collected, by a more convenient arrangement, the provisions relating, respectively, to the amendment and to the rejection of plaints.

Clause 54A.—We consider it expedient to give legislative recognition to the principle accepted in English practice that the Court is not only entitled but bound to exercise an inherent power of preventing any abuse of its procedure.

Clause 54AA.—We have not felt justified in giving effect to the Allahabad decision [Jainti Prasad v. Bachu Singh (1893), I. L. R. 15 All. 65] debarring the Court from prolonging, by action under this provision, the period ordinarily prescribed by the law of limitation. We have accordingly expunged so much of the clause as was based upon this ruling.

Clause 54B.—We have somewhat recast the wording of the Bill as the existing section 582A, upon which it was founded, does not describe the procedure with precision.

Clause 55.—We have directed attention to the duty of signature ordinarily imposed upon the Judge by existing practice.

Clause 57.—From sub-clause (1) we have omitted paragraphs (b) and (c) as sufficiently covered by paragraph (a), from which we have omitted a passage represented to us as both inaccurate and superfluous.

We have added sub-clause (3) to give effect to a Bombay ruling [Prabhakarbhat v. Vishwambhar Pandit (1884), I. L. R. 8 Bom. 313, overruling Jagjivandas Javherdas Seth v. Magdum Ali (1883), I. L. R. 7 Bom. 487].

Clause 57A.—We have omitted this clause as sufficiently covered by clauses 622 and 582.

Clause 57B.—We have relaxed the terms of this provision, because the statement in numbered paragraphs now required by clause 50, sub-clause (1), paragraph (e), cannot conveniently be reproduced in the form prescribed by the Third Schedule, No. 116.

Clause 58.—We have substituted "lists" for "memoranda," not merely for greater conformity with clause 59, sub-clause (2), and clause 138, sub-clause (2), but for the lightening of legal expenses by the elimination of what is in practice a useless labour. The substitution of the words "prayed for" for the word "required" follows a similar amendment in clause 50, sub-clause (1), paragraph (f).

In sub-clause (5) we think that all the reasonable requirements of practice will be satisfied if the documents there referred to are certified to be correct by the plaintiff or his pleader instead of being verified in the manner provided for the verification of plaints.

Clause 62.—We have substituted "Judge" for "Court", because the duty of marking involves a personal act which cannot be performed by a Bench. We think, moreover, that the expression "attesting", which occurs in the existing Code, should be avoided in view of the technical meaning assigned to "attestation" in connection with documents.

Clause 63.—It has been represented that in the present Code the principle has been too rigorously enunciated, and we have, therefore, altered sub-clause (1) from the prohibitive to the permissive form. At the same time, we have omitted sub-clause (2) because, in view of this amendment, the provisions of clause 138, sub-clause (5), are sufficient.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE ISSUE AND SERVICE OF SUMMONS.

Clause 66.—The existing section 67, reproduced in the Bill as sub-clause (3), has been criticized not merely as cumbrous and involved, but also as arbitrary in principle and as leading in practice to anomalous results. We have, at the representation, more especially, of the Governments of Burma and Madras, extended the scope of the section to cover modes of communication other than those by railway; and, in the case of journeys by public conveyance, we have substituted a time-limit for the present standard by mere distance. This will enable the Court to determine questions arising under this provision by the more convenient method of referring to a time-table.

Clause 69.—The explanation has been omitted as redundant.

Clause 70.—We have abridged this provision because, while the defendant should certainly produce all documents in his possession or power in so far as he relies on them in support of his case, it seems to us unreasonable to require him to produce any document merely because it may relate to the merits of the case for the plaintiff.

Clause 71.—The addition proposed by us is intended to prevent obstructive delay by the device of obtaining an adjournment for documents which the defendant could easily obtain and intends eventually to produce.

Clause 72.—The word "registered" has been omitted as already covered by the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 27.

Clause 78A.—We have transferred the existing section 167 to this Chapter, because we think that it should apply to the issue and service of summons in the case of a defendant as well as of a witness, to whom it will still extend by virtue of clause 166.

Clause 80.—We have brought this clause into closer conformity with clause 17, the principle of which is, in our opinion, equally applicable to the service of process. A similar alteration will be found inserted in clause 83. The words "if any" have been inserted, here as elsewhere in clause 81, between the words "person" and "identifying," because the Code should not render absolutely illegal the service of process without an identifier, where local experience justifies the High Court in issuing no directions for such a safeguard. We have slightly recast the proviso for purposes of greater accuracy.

Clause 85.—Sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), has been expanded in view of the inconvenience of limiting the power, here given, to personal presentation by the plaintiff himself.

Clause 87.—The language has been considerably shortened in view of the more general provision which we have inserted as clause 90AA.

Clause 89.—The word "sent" has been substituted for the word "forwarded" for greater conformity with the terms of the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 27.

Clause 90.—The language has been slightly modified to relieve the Court of the labour of personal signature. The illustration has been omitted, because we doubt whether diplomatic arrangements, which happen to be in force at the present moment, can appropriately be stereotyped in an enactment. The underlying difficulty of practice could, in our opinion, be more suitably met by the issue of instructions to subordinate Courts.

Clause 90A.—It has been deemed desirable, for greater clearness of procedure, to provide in the Code itself that process served under this clause shall be accompanied by a copy to be retained by the defendant.

Clause 90AA.—The duty to serve process transmitted for that purpose, and the admissibility in evidence of proceedings recorded thereon, have been given a more general application.

Clause 92B.—The language of sub-clause (2) has been harmonized somewhat more closely with the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 27.

We have substituted "not permitted" for "estopped" because the propriety of so technical an expression in this connection has been questioned.

In sub-clause (3) we have made additions extending the principle to proof of the agent's signature and at the same time preventing a possible misconception with regard to the admissibility of the evidence of an eye-witness.

Clause 93.—In sub-clause (2), for the word "levied" the word "paid" has been substituted to cast the duty here contemplated more directly upon the party.

Clause 95.—We have extended this provision to cover the postal receipts now given, as an additional safeguard, by the Post Office on payment of a fee.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE APPEARANCE OF THE PARTIES AND CONSEQUENCE OF NON-APPEARANCE.

Clause 96.—The language has been modified in this and similar clauses to remove the misapprehension that the Court is bound to hear the suit at a specific hour.

Clause 98.—The reference to adjournment has been omitted because this matter is sufficiently covered by the terms of clause 157. A similar alteration will be found in clause 104.

Clause 103.—References to the legal representative, and to the Court to which the business of the Court dismissing he suit has been transferred, have been inserted for closer conformity with clause 108.

Sub-clause (2) was originally inserted to remove doubts expressed in regard to the legal soundness of a decision [Lalla Sheo Churn Lal v. Ramnandan Dobey (1894), I. L. R. 22 Cal. 8] which has, however, been approved [Cursandas Natha v. Ladkavahu (1895), I. L. R. 19 Bom. 571, at p. 577; see also Hanmantapa v. Jivubai (1900), I. L. R. 24 Bom. 547, at p. 552]. We think that the matter may be left as settled by case-law and have omitted the sub-clause.

Clause 104.—We have inserted the words "in British India" after the word "agent" to prevent the recurrence of misconception with regard to the meaning of this provision.

Clause 107.—The reference to clause 436A, which seems to us somewhat out of place in this Chapter, has been omitted in view of the addition proposed by us to the clause in question.

Clause 108.—In order to supply an omission occasioning inconvenience in practice, sub-clause (1) has been expanded to meet the case of transfer of business to another Court.

The language of sub-clause (2) has been rendered slightly clearer, and sub-clause (3) has been omitted, inasmuch as the matter can be more appropriately treated in Chapter XX.

CHAPTER IX.

OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS, SET-OFF AND COUNTER-CLAIM.

This Chapter, the arrangement of which in the present Code presents some confusion, has been recast in a more logical sequence.

Clause 110.—In sub-clause (3) effect has been given to existing practice by provision for grounds of law in the written statement. It is thought that the requirements of section 63 can without impropriety be rendered applicable, mutatis mutandis, to documents in the possession of the defendant, who is stated to have at present an undue advantage in this matter over the plaintiff.

Clause 113.—The penalty provided by the existing section for a defect in procedure appears to us to be unduly severe. We think that the defaulting party should be placed in no worse position than that occupied by him on failure to comply with any order to answer interrogatories or to give inspection.

Clause 111.—In sub-clause (1), it has been considered desirable to render it clear that a written statement pleading a set-off or counter-claim is subject to the law of limitation applicable to a plaint in a cross-suit. By an amendment of the Fourth Schedule, we propose to render the set-off or counter-claim liable to the same court-fees as a plaint. These changes are essential in view of the provisions suggested by us in sub-clause (4), which we have renumbered as sub-clause (9).

We would depart from English practice inasmuch as we have proposed to render the convenience of the Court the short and simple test of the question whether the defendant should or should not be allowed to avail himself of his set-off or counter-claim in respect of which the Court has jurisdiction. We think that the words "or ought to be allowed", as originally inserted in the Bill, would occasion much difficulty of construction.

With reference to sub-clauses (3) to (7), we consider it inexpedient, in view of the constitution of the Courts and the circumstances of litigation in this country, to adopt in its entirety the English practice originally reproduced in the Bill with regard to set-off or counter-claim involving matter beyond jurisdiction We have thought it preferable, more especially with the object of avoiding difficult questions of res judicata, to insist upon transfer to a competent Court, unless, of course, the defendant chooses to relinquish so much of the set-off or counter-claim as is beyond jurisdiction.

We have re-cast the proviso to sub-clause (3), now re-numbered (8), in order to give effect to the rulings [Pringle v. Gloag (1879), L. R. 10 C. D. 676; Brijnath Dass v. Juggernath Dass (1879), I. L. R. 4 Cal. 742] which suggested the corresponding passage in the Code but were not reproduced therein.

The effect of our proposals is to limit set-off and counter-claim to matters within the jurisdiction of the same High Court, and, even in their case, the Court must be of opinion that the trial of such set-off or counter-claim is convenient. In these circumstances, provision has to be made for cases in which the defendant is precluded from availing himself of his set-off or counter-claim upon which, however, he may have paid the court-fees required by the addition proposed by us in the Fourth Schedule. In such an event, we would apply the principle accepted by us in clause 57, sub-clause (3), and clause 543F, sub-clause (3), of requiring no further court-fee upon a plaint or memorandum of appeal returned to be presented to the proper Court.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES BY THE COURT.

Clause 117.—Sub-clause (1) has been recast because the provisions as to admission and denial should apply equally to the plaint and to the written statement.

We would give express recognition in sub-clause (2) to the existing practice according to which the Judge authenticates the record of an admission or denial of parties by his signature.

Clause 120.—To remedy a defect disclosed by practice we have inserted a mention of persons accompanying the pleader such as are referred to in clause 118. We have further directed attention to the provisions of clause 66, sub-clause (3), which might otherwise be overlooked [Maharajah Juggud Inder Bunwaree v. Soorjcoomar Chowdhree (1863), Marsh. 627].

Sub-clause (2) has been relaxed on the lines of clause 136 for the reasons given under clause 113.

CHAPTER XI.

OF DISCOVERY AND OF THE ADMISSION, INSPECTION, PRODUCTION, IMPOUNDING AND RETURN OF DOCUMENTS.

Clause 124.—We have added sub-clause (1) because, in spite of the wording of the Government of India Act, 1858 (21 & 22 Vict., c. 106), section 65, the case of the Secretary of State for India in Council is not very clearly covered by the procedure prescribed in the existing section.

Clause 126.—We have inserted this clause before clause 125 for the sake of more logical arrangement.

Clause 125A.—We propose to allow the Court to extend the period of seven days in order to meet possible cases of hardship.

Clause 128.—The rule should be that the party refusing should always bear the expense of proving the document unless the Court otherwise directs. We have accordingly omitted from sub-clause (3) the passage rendering such liability dependent upon the Court's opinion of the reasonableness of the admission. The alteration gives more precise effect to Order XXXII, rule 2.

Clause 131.—We have considered it expedient to limit the excessive generality of sub-clause (1), and have omitted sub-clause (3) because the necessity for the underlying decision [Ram Dyal Saligram v. Nurhurry Balkrishna (1894), I. L. R. 18 Bom. 368] seems to us to be obviated by sub-clause (1) as re-worded.

Clause 134B.—A reference to the second paragraph of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (I of 1872), section 162, which otherwise might be taken to be superseded, has been inserted.

Clause 136A.—It has been considered safer to invest next friends or guardians for the suit with express power to make affidavits under Chapter XI on behalf of minor parties or parties of unsound mind.

Clause 137.—Sub-clause (3) has been added to provide for certain cases in which, as a matter of practice, the obligation, impliedly assumed in the Code, to comply immediately with requests under this clause, would be productive of inconvenience and danger.

Clause 138.—We propose to give effect to a convenient practice by explicitly allowing the Court to fix a period later than the first hearing of the suit. For the sake of uniformity we have substituted the words "evidence in support of" for the words "essential to"; but, with reference to the decisions [Minakshi v. Velu (1885), I. L. R. 8 Mad 373; Ranchod Haribhai v. The Secretary of State for India (1897), I. L. R. 22 Bom. 583] underlying the words thus cancelled, we have added sub-clause (5).

Clause 142A.—This provision has been transferred to follow clause 138 for the sake of more logical arrangement.

In sub-clause (2) the word "persons" has been substituted for the word "parties", because persons other than parties are constantly required to produce documents. A similar amendment has been made in clause 144, sub-clause (2).

Clause 141.—Signature in full is usually unnecessary and, in the case of certain documents, actually impossible. We have, therefore, recognised existing practice by making provision for the initialling of endorsements. A similar amendment has been made in clause 142.

Clause 141A.—A saving of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891 (XVIII of 1891), seems to be required here as in clause 62, sub-clause (1). The opinions of officers consulted disclose a strong feeling in favour of extending the provisions of this clause to letter-books, without reference to which a business cannot, in many instances, be properly conducted. Here, as elsewhere, we have substituted a certificate for attestation.

Clause 144.—In sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), provision has been made for reviews which, for the present purpose, stand on the same footing as appeals. In practice it is understood that a person receiving back a document after delivery of a certified copy undertakes, as we propose to direct by our addition to the second proviso, to produce the original if so required.

From sub-clause (2) we have omitted the provisions about the receipt-book as details better suited for administrative instructions.

CHAPTER XII.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ISSUES.

Clause 146.—The addition to the explanation is rendered necessary by the terms of clause 111 as redrawn.

Clause 148.—A reference to clauses 66 and 176, which are not unlikely to be overlooked, has been inserted.

It has been represented that the expression "hands", which occurs in the existing Code, is less familiar and less accurate than "possession".

Clause 149.—We think that issues should not be amended, added or struck out without hearing any objection which the parties or their pleaders may desire to advance.

For the purposes of this clause, moreover, the parties appear to us to stand on the same footing in the sense that the Court should not be authorized to convert a defence into a defence of a different and inconsistent character.

CHAPTER XIII.

DISPOSAL OF THE SUIT AT THE FIRST HEARING.

Clause 155.—For the words "at once deliver judgment" the words "proceed to try and decide the suit forthwith" have been substituted to render it clear that the judgment must be based upon the materials before the Court.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF ADJOURNMENTS.

Clause 156.—The language of the existing Code is inconvenient and inaccurate in treating the postponement of the hearing from one day to the next as not included in "adjournment".

Clause 157.—We have inserted a provision with reference to costs ordered to be paid before an adjourned hearing with a view to enabling the Court to deal with the device of obtaining an adjournment, not otherwise admissible, upon an undertaking, which is afterwards ignored with impunity, to pay the costs occasioned to the opposite party by such adjournment.

Clause 158.—The words "try and" have been inserted for conformity with clause 155 and for the reason noted thereunder.

CHAPTER XV.

OF THE SUMMONING AND ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES.

Clause 159.—It has been represented to us that the procedure prescribed by the existing section has proved to be productive of inconvenience and delay, and is, therefore, no longer in accordance with actual practice, to which we have sought to give legislative recognition in our redraft.

We have omitted the third proviso which does not appear to us to be strictly necessary and has been misread as intended to confer an additional right of appeal.

Clause 165.—The reference to the law of evidence has been inserted to direct attention to the duty of the Court, more especially in cases of privilege.

Clause 165A.—For the word "named" the word "called" has been substituted to meet the device of entering the names of inconvenient persons in the lists of witnesses and then refusing to call them.

Clause 168.—The coercive provisions of this clause should be applicable to persons intentionally failing to cause documents to be produced even though their personal attendance is not required.

Clause 170A.—This clause has been omitted as unnecessary in view of the amplified provision proposed to be inserted as clause 178A.

Clause 170B.—We have expunged the reference to clause 283 because we propose to omit that provision and to abolish the remedy, there contemplated, by way of regular suit.

Clause 173.—In view of the possible necessity for recall we think that witnesses should be required, as a general rule, to attend at each hearing until the suit has been disposed of. It is a common practice involving no hardship for a witness desirous of departing earlier to obtain the express permission of the Court.

With reference to sub-clause (2), we think that payment into Court is insufficient, and that payment through the Court to the person concerned should be a condition precedent to action. On the other hand, to render the provision effective, we propose to permit detention in the civil prison in default of entering into recognizances.

Clause 174.—We have slightly modified the language for conformity with clause 173, sub-clause (2), as amended.

Clause 176.—The language of this clause has been modified to correspond with clause 66, sub-clause (3), paragraph (b).

Clause 177.—As in other cases of default, we have assimilated the penalty to that prescribed in clause 136, sub-clause (1).

CHAPTER XVI.

OF THE HEARING OF THE SUIT AND EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Clause 178B.—The language of sub-clause (1) has been slightly altered to render it clear that the principle of this provision is not affected by the mere circumstance of the admission by the defendant of one out of several prayers for relief.

Clause 179.—Sub-clause (5) seeks to give effect to what is understood to be the almost invariable practice outside the presidency-towns.

Clause 182.—We think it desirable to enact expressly that depositions should be read over in open Court. It is not sufficient to read them over, for example, in the course of miscellaneous business transacted in the Judge's office or retiring room. On the other hand, we have omitted the passage requiring the presence of the parties or their pleaders, since we are strongly of opinion that the validity of a deposition should not be vitiated by the departure of litigants or practitioners who, if they desire to object to the record, should remain in attendance. We have further made a slight alteration to cover the case of errors in depositions recorded in the vernacular which, in point of practice, are not usually corrected by the Judge himself. A similar alteration has been made in clause 192, sub-clause (2).

Clause 185.—The words "if required by any of the parties" have been inserted because, as a matter of fact, litigants are usually content with the English record.

Clause 185A.—We have rendered this provision permissive instead of leaving it imperative, because we think that the Judge should always have it in his power to direct, where necessary, a full record of the deposition in the manner prescribed by clause 182. In these circumstances, we see no necessity for retaining sub-clause (2). We have expunged the passage authorizing revocation or variance of directions because the matter is covered by the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 21, as expanded by the Repealing and Amending Act, 1903 (I of 1903).

Clause 187.—We have sought to obviate all discussion in respect of the importance of particular questions and to confirm once for all the principle that a Court has discharged its duty by noting the words "objected to".

Clause 189A.—In the interests of the despatch of public business, we consider it desirable, as in the case of clause 54A, to direct the attention of the Courts to their duty to control the proceedings before them and to exercise their inherent power of preventing its process from being abused.

Clause 191.—We have extended the provisions of this clause to evidence taken on issues referred under section 566, to which the principle appears to us to be equally applicable.

Clause 192.—The word "hereinbefore," which occurs in the existing Code, excludes the application of this provision to evidence taken on commission to which we think that it ought to extend.

Clause 193.—We have modified sub-clause (1) and expunged the whole of sub-clause (2) in order to confer upon the Court the widest powers of recall.

Clause 193A.—We think that this provision should be limited to analogous suits in the same Court, and we have omitted the second proviso as sufficiently covered by clause 203A.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OF JUDGMENT AND DECREE.

Clause 198.—We have shortened the language of sub-clauses (1) and (2) of the original Bill and combined them in one sub-clause, more particularly in view of the general provisions of clause 645.

From sub-clause (3) we have omitted the proviso, which, notwithstanding the corresponding passage in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (Act V of 1898), section 366, sub-section (4), appears to us to be superfluous.

Clause 199.—We propose to prohibit in future the practice recognized in a local decision [Raja Muhammad Mumtaz Ali v. Deo Narain (Oudh Select Case No. 200)] of allowing a judgment to be written by a predecessor who has been relieved of his office.

Clause 199A.—We have abridged sub-clause (1) and omitted sub-clauses (3) and (4) in view of the opposition of some of the Chartered High Courts to the delivery by subordinate Courts of oral judgments, for which provision was made upon a strong representation received from the Government of Madras in 1896. The wording of the Bill will still enable the object then expressed by that Government to be effected to this extent, that the Judge will be able to dictate a decision to a shorthand-writer. It will, however, be necessary for the judgment so dictated to be transcribed and to be in every respect ready for signature before it is delivered.

Clause 202.—The words "and signed" have been inserted because delivery often directs attention to errors and omissions which can most conveniently be then and there corrected before the signature of the Judge is appended.

Clause 203A.—Some verbal alterations have been introduced for the sake of uniformity with clause 193A.

Clause 205.—We have limited sub-clause (1) to suits and other proceedings triable as suits to render it clear that a formal decree containing all the particulars prescribed by section 206 of the Code, now re-numbered as clause 205, sub-clause (5), need not be drawn up in the various proceedings which, while technically ending in "decrees", have really been declared so to end only for purposes of appeal. The reference to the language, in which the decree must be drawn up, has been omitted in view of the addition proposed to clause 645.

In sub-clause (2) we have added certain articles of the second schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, which appear to us to be required for the sake of completeness.

We have included clause 206 as sub-clause (5) of clause 205, since it plainly relates to one and the same subject. Paragraph (d) has, however, been omitted in view of local opposition because the ruling contemplated thereby [Niamut Khan v. Phadu Buldia (1880), I. L. R. 6 Cal. 319] is impliedly, though not expressly, superseded [Run Bahadur Singh v. Lucho Koer (1884), I. L. R. 11 Cal. 301]. In these circumstances we do not feel justified in retaining the paragraph which would have, it is said, the effect of greatly increasing the labour of the Court in the preparation of decrees.

Clause 206A.—To sub-clause (2) two provisos have been added, precluding amendment of a decree in so far as an appeal has been preferred against it or the decree has been executed. Where an appeal has been preferred, the appellate decree will, under clause 579A, supersede that of first instance; and inconvenience would arise if restitution had to be made of assets realized in execution and perhaps rateably distributed in satisfaction of another decree.

The language of sub-clause (3), which was criticized as slightly obscure, has been modified accordingly.

In sub-clause (4) we have attempted to settle the very disputed question of the appropriate remedy against an improper exercise of the powers conferred by the clause. We think that no appeal should lie from an order refusing to amend a decree, but where a decree would, if passed on the day of the amendment, have been open to appeal, an appeal should lie from it in so far as it has been amended. Our conclusion is in accordance with a Madras ruling [Visvanathan Chetti v. Ramanathan Chetti (1901), I. L. R. 24 Mad. 646].

Clause 207.—The language has been harmonized with that of clause 50, sub-clause (3), as amended.

Clause 210.—To sub-clause (1) we have appended a proviso giving effect to a ruling of the High Court of Bombay [Ragho Govind Paranjpe v. Dipchand (1879), I. L. R. 4 Bom. 96].

With reference to sub-clause (2) we are of opinion that it would be inconvenient to give the benefit of the power here conferred to a judgment-debtor who has taken the decree to appeal. We think, moreover, that an order once made under sub-clause (2) should not be cancelled or varied by the Court otherwise than with the consent of both parties.

Clause 211.—We have amalgamated clauses 211 and 212 as originally drafted in one provision.

Sub-clause (3) supersedes the view entertained at Calcutta [Mon Mohun Sirkar v. The Secretary of State for India in Council (1890), I. L. R. 17 Cal. 968] in the sense of that accepted at Madras [Ramabhadra v. Jagannatha (1890), I. L. R. 14 Mad. 328, at p. 333].

Sub-clause (4) seeks to regulate jurisdiction in accordance with the principle adopted at Calcutta [Rameswar Mahton v. Dilu Mahton (1894), I. L. R. 21 Cal. 550] on the lines of the amendment introduced into clause 15.

Clause 213.—The addition in sub-clause (2) of the words "or declared" is intended to cover declarations under Chapter XXI in addition to adjudications under the Indian Insolvency Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict, c. 21). As there are various systems of insolvency relief in force in British India, we have considered it expedient to state that the rules there referred to are those in force within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction and are not to be taken, as might otherwise be supposed, to be those contained in Chapter XXI.

Clause 214.—We have considerably altered the form of the existing section which has been criticized as wholly inadequate.

In sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), the power of the Appellate Court to specify another day [Parshadi Lal v. Ram Dial (1880), I. L. R. 2 All. 744; Kodai Singh v. Jaisri Singh (1889), I. L. R. 13 All. 376] has been recognized, and in sub-head (i) of the same paragraph the duty of executing and registering any necessary instrument [Ramasami Pattar v. Chinnan Asari (1901), I. L. R. 24 Mad. 449, at page 463], has been enjoined upon the defendant.

In sub-clause (2) provision has been made for the form of decrees in the case of claims decreed in favour of rival pre-emptors [Kashi Nath v. Mukhta Prasad (1884),

I. L. R. 6 All. 370; Hulasi v. Sheo Prasad (1884), I. L. R. 6 All. 455; Ajaib Nath v Mathura Prasad (1888), I. L. R. 11 All. 164].

Clause 215.—The preliminary decree passed in a suit for dissolution of partnership should always contain a declaration of the rights of the parties.

Clause 215B.—We have re-cast this clause for the sake of greater clearness and closer conformity with clause 265. We would mention that certain local enactments, by which jurisdiction to effect "imperfect partition" of revenue-paying land is reserved exclusively to the Revenue Courts, contemplate a procedure inconsistent with this clause. Such enactments, however, will be saved by the terms of clause 4.

Clause 216.—Sub-clause (1) has been modified in view of the amendment of clause 111. This alteration obviates the necessity for sub-clause (3), which has accordingly been omitted.

Clause 217.—The slight amendment introduced by us gives effect to what we understand to be an obviously necessary practice of the Courts.

CHAPTER XIX.

OF COSTS.

Clause 219.—Proceedings other than suits frequently terminate in orders not supported by a formal judgment as defined in clause 2, paragraph (p). We think that such orders should equally contain directions with respect to costs.

Clause 220.—We have prefixed to sub-clause (1) a saving of other provisions, such as, for example, clause 128, sub-clause (2).

The proviso to sub-clause (2), which we have somewhat amplified, should, we think, be declared, by an addition to clause 638, not to apply to a Chartered High Court in the exercise of its ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction, because it conflicts with the rules of the High Court at Calcutta on the subject, and clause 206 has already been declared, for the same reason, to be inapplicable.

CHAPTER XX.

OF THE EXECUTION OF DECREES AND ORDERS.

We have very materially altered the arrangement of this Chapter which, as it stands in the present Code, appears to us to have fallen into some confusion.

Clause 222B.—It is expedient to declare that the provisions of this Chapter apply not merely to decrees but to orders capable of execution. We have, therefore, added the words "and orders" to the title.

Clause 222C.—In this clause we have reproduced the second portion of section 649 which appears to us to be misplaced in the present Code. In paragraph (a), however, we have substituted the expression "Court of first instance" for "Court which passed the decree from which the appeal was preferred." Our reason is that, as a matter of practice, the Court of intermediate appeal never executes a decree passed in second appeal.

Clause 223.—We have in this and the ensuing clauses proposed an important simplification of procedure by substituting execution by precept for the existing procedure by transfer of the decree. The germ of this amendment was contained in clause 223B of the original Bill relating to attachment by precept in anticipation of the transfer of the decree with a view to enabling execution to proceed simultaneously in more than one district, as was ruled to be permissible under Act VIII of 1859 [Saroda Prosaud Mullick v. Lutchmeeput Singh Doogur (1872), 14 Moo. I. A. 529, at pp. 538-9]. On the analogy of the County Court procedure of execution by warrant, we would give legislative recognition to the principle that the Court which passed the decree is throughout responsible for seeing it enforced. The circumstances of litigation in this country render it expedient, of course, that the Court executing a decree not passed by it should have jurisdiction to entertain objections not affecting the legality or propriety of the order in pursuance of which it is acting. At the same time, we consider that this safeguard can be maintained without the cumbrous and antiquated procedure by transfer of the decree. According to this procedure, the Court which passed the decree is, after transfer, virtually deprived of control until the decree is returned and, to all intents and purposes, execution is everywhere in suspense except in the particular Court which happens to have the decree on its file. In our opinion, such a result, which seriously affects the chances of realization and adds greatly to the expenses eventually to be borne by the judgment-debtor, is not justified by any compensating advantage. Excessive realization, which the system was primarily intended to prevent, can be quite as effectively obviated by reserving the power of ordering attachment or sale, as we suggest, to the Court which passed the decree and which will not issue a precept for either of these purposes unless, looking to the amount of assets obtained from all sources, it considers such action to be necessary.

Clause 223A.—The limitation upon jurisdiction, which we propose to insert as paragraph (b) of sub-clause (1), is essential to avoid complicated questions of res judicata in view of the extensive powers of disposing of claims and objections which are conferred by clauses 278 and 331.

We have not retained sub-clause (6), because the matter appears to us to be sufficiently covered by the provisions relating to jurisdiction as a whole.

Sub-clause (7) has also been omitted, because we are of opinion that it might tend to encourage judgment-debtors to obstruct proceedings by futile applications for transfer.

The explanation added by us is intended to give effect to a Calcutta decision [Rameswar Mahton v. Dilu Mahton (1894), I. L. R. 21 Cal. 550].

Clause 223B.—This provision, instead of conferring an exceptional power, will in future supply the normal procedure in execution. In order to guard against indiscriminate resort to concurrent execution in more than one Court, we have suggested that the issue of precepts for this purpose shall be justified by a record of reasons. The Court executing a precept of arrest will, of course, not be authorized to send away the prisoner to the Court issuing such precept but, as is at present the case with arrest under a transferred decree, will dispose of any objections within the scope of its powers, and, if it does not release the person arrested, will order his detention in the local prison. A precept to attach property, moreover, will not enable the Court executing such precept to proceed to sale. The mechanical guarantee, which we propose against excessive realization, is that the Court, which passed the decree and is responsible for its execution, must, in each case, separately decide whether property, which has been attached, ought also to be sold to make up any deficiency still outstanding.

Clause 223C.—The adoption of the precept system enables us to cancel, at one stroke, almost all the elaborate conditions of transfer as embodied in section 223 and somewhat amplified in clause 223C of the Bill. Sub-clauses (4) and (7) of that clause have been incorporated in clause 223B as sub-clauses (2) and (3). Sub-clause (3) will be found, in a more exhaustive form, as sub-clause (4) of clause 244A.

Clause 224.—Most of the particulars required to enable a Court to execute a transferred decree are unnecessary in the case of a precept. We see no advantage in fettering the discretion of the High Courts in regulating the procedure of Courts subordinate to them. We propose, therefore, to omit clause 224 and to leave the High Courts to prescribe the form of precept as local circumstances may require.

Clause 226.—Clauses 223A and 223B sufficiently indicate, we think, the Courts to which precepts can and should be issued. We have proposed, therefore, the omission of this provision. The power of transfer which clause 226, paragraph (a), reproduced from the present Code will, in future, be exercised under the expanded terms of clause 25.

Clause 244.—From sub-clause (1), paragraph (a), the reference to "three years" has been omitted as relating only to existing provisions in regard to mesne profits which have been excluded from the Bill.

The object of the insertion of explanation I is to remove a long-standing conflict of decisions with respect to which the most recent rulings from Madras [Ramaswami Sastrulu v. Kameswaramma (1900), I. L. R. 23 Mad. 361] and Allahabad [Kalka Prasad v. Basant Ram (1901), I. L. R. 23 All. 346] are directly at variance.

Explanation II gives effect to recent decisions of the High Court of Calcutta [Dwar Buksh Sirkar v. Fatik Jali (1898), I. L. R. 26 Cal. 250; Ganga Das Seal v. Yakub Ali Dobashi (1900), I. L. R. 27 Cal. 670].

We have extended the original explanation II, now re-numbered III, to cover the analogous case of execution against any person not in the capacity of a legal representative, but in virtue of possession of the estate of a deceased judgment-debtor.

Clause 244A.—Sub-clauses (1), (2) and (3) reproduce in somewhat altered language the substance of clause 228, sub-clauses (3), (1) and (2), of the original Bill. We have amplified sub-clause (1), now re-numbered (2), to render it clear that the powers of the Court to which a precept has been issued are not merely ministerial but extend to the decision of questions relating to execution. Clause 228, sub-clause (4), has been entirely omitted. It was intended to enable the holder of a transferred decree to follow assets from jurisdiction to jurisdiction without intermediate retransfer, in each instance, to the Court which passed the decree. The more direct system of execution by precept obviates the necessity for this provision.

Sub-clause (4) represents the original clause 223C, sub-clause (3), as adapted to the precept system.

Clause 257A.—The Bill, as introduced, declared agreements made in contravention of this provision to be "illegal" and not merely "void" in the sense of being incapable of being enforced by way of execution only as opposed to recovery by regular suit as upon a fresh contract. We propose to revert to the existing interpretation by which the penalty for want of sanction is confined to incompetency to obtain recognition for the agreement in the Court executing the decree.

On the other hand, we think that, where an agreement complies with the requirements of this provision, the greatest facility should be given to have its terms enforced by the cheap and summary process of execution. We propose, therefore, to authorize the Court to execute the agreement, even though the relief granted is beyond the ordinary limits of its jurisdiction and though the original proceedings in execution of the decree have terminated.

Clause 258.—We have added sub-clause (4) to meet a Bombay decision [Chintaman Ramchandra v. Dareppa (1890), I. L. R. 14 Bom. 506].

Clause 230.—We have broken up clause 230 into separate clauses because the discretion of the Court to refuse concurrent execution against the person and the property of the judgment-debtor and the limitation imposed upon the grant of execution in certain cases appear to us to relate to perfectly distinct matters. Sub-clause (2) has been transferred, as clause 230A, to a more appropriate position under the head of Procedure in execution. In sub-clause (3), which has been re-numbered clause 230B, we have, as in other passages, extended to charges the provisions relating to mortgages. In the text of this provision we have incorporated the substance of paragraphs (d) and (e) of the Bill which seem to us to be unnecessarily elaborate.

Clause 231.—In sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), we have modified the language with a view to rendering it clear that the interest there referred to is an interest determined by the decree itself.

Clause 232.—The words "if that Court thinks fit" have been omitted, because we are of opinion that, where the conditions specified in this provision are satisfied, the right to apply for execution should be absolute and should not depend upon the discretion of the Court.

Clause 234.—Exception has been taken to the terms of section 210 of Act VIII of 1859 which the Bill proposed to revive by allowing an alternative remedy against the estate of a deceased judgment-debtor. We think that the criticisms will be met by substituting a remedy against the person in possession of the estate. A similar alteration will be found in clause 248.

Clause 235.—In view of the redistribution of this Chapter, we have incorporated as sub-clause (1) of this provision a portion of clause 256 of the Bill relating to oral application for immediate execution of a decree for the payment of money. The action to be taken thereon by the Court will be found described in clause 256 under the head of Procedure in execution.

In this connection, it will be observed that we have removed the money-limit of Rs. 1,000 which, it is thought, is arbitrary and inconvenient. In many cases, the larger the judgment-debt, the more urgent the necessity for immediate arrest. On the other hand, with a view to rendering the procedure more effectual, we have dispensed, in clause 256, paragraph (a), with the prior preparation of a warrant where the judgment-debtor is within the precincts of the Court.

In sub-clause (2) effect has been given to existing practice by requiring the signature in addition to the verification of the party.

In sub-clause (2), paragraph (j), we have somewhat amplified the details to be specified in the application, with regard to the particular mode of execution, more especially in view of the proposed procedure by garnishment of debts and charging of stock.

There seems to be a consensus of opinion that sub-clause (2) of the original Bill, which required every application to be accompanied by a certified copy of the decree, was too stringent, inasmuch as the production of a certified copy can rarely be necessary where the original decree is in Court. The subordinate tribunals, however, are in the habit of transmitting their records at stated periods to a record-room at head-quarters. To meet cases in which the decree has thus passed out of the Court's custody, we have provided that the applicants may be required to produce a certified copy.

Clause 237.—The language has been re-cast for closer conformity with clauses 50 and 207.

Sub-clause (2) has been omitted, because a verification separate from that prescribed by clause 235 does not appear to be necessary.

Clause 238.—We propose to give the Courts an option in requiring extracts since these do not in all cases appear to be required but have the effect of adding to the expenses of legal proceedings.

Clauses 238A to 243B.—We have transferred hither the substance of clause 546, sub-clause (1), as clause 238A, and clause 545, sub-clause (2), as clause 243B. These provisions appear to us to be out of place in the Chapter relating to appeals.

Clause 238B, which is founded upon clause 228, sub-clause (3), and clause 239, sub-clause (2), ought, we think, to be grouped with clause 243 under the head of Stay of execution. In these circumstances, clause 243A, which consolidates the provisions of clause 239, sub-clause (3), and clause 243, so far as they relate to stay, has been rendered applicable to both provisions.

Clause 242 has been omitted as unnecessary if decrees are no longer to be transferred.

With regard to the provisions thus re-arranged, we would remark that, in clause 243A, we have sought to render it plain that, where a condition precedent is infringed, execution must continue as a matter of course, whereas conditions subsequent may be enforced like decrees.

Clause 245.—The term "amended", which was reproduced in sub-clause (1) as originally drafted, does not cover the "remedying of a defect" such as the omission to produce a copy required under clause 235.

With regard to sub-clause (2), the Bill declared, in view of a Calcutta decision [Gopal Sah v. Janki Koer (1895), I. L. R. 23 Cal. 217] that, until an application returned under this clause is presented with such amendments as the Court may have required, it shall not be deemed to be in accordance with law. We propose to relax the stringency of this rule and to date back the application to the time of its original presentation on the lines followed in clause 53, sub-clause (3), in connection with plaints.

In sub-clause (4) we have limited the duty of entry in the register to the Court which passed the decree, in order to give effect to existing practice as dictated by necessity.

Clause 246.—The insertion of the words "in separate suits" is intended to show that, for the purposes of execution, a counter-claim is not a separate action [per Esher, M. R., Stumore v. Campbell & Co. (1892), 1 Q. B. 317].

In illustration (d) we have omitted the reference to "transfer" which is not of the essence of the example.

Clause 248.—This provision has been considerably lightened by the omission of the passages relating to the transfer of decrees. It has been represented to us that, even in the cases referred to in sub-clauses (1) and (2), issue of the notice may involve an unreasonable delay or defeat the ends of justice. We have accordingly proposed to give the Courts a discretion in the matter.

Clauses 248A to 248C.—The altered form of clause 248A has enabled us considerably to abridge the first five of the clauses relating to the procedure at the hearing of applications for execution and at the same time to state, it is believed, with even more clearness, the duty of the Court, irrespective of the decree-holder's actual appearance, to proceed with the application if he has placed it in a position to take the necessary action.

Clause 248F.—From sub-clause (1) we have omitted the period of days within which an application may be presented. It appears to us that such a provision more appropriately finds a place in the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, and we have accordingly suggested an amendment of articles 163 and 164 of the second schedule to that enactment. This amendment, which will cover also an analogous amendment in clause 248J, it is proposed to effect by the necessary entry in the fourth schedule of the Bill.

We think that sub-clause (2), as originally drafted, involves too severe a penalty for an error of procedure. It has accordingly been limited to the disability to preclusion from assistance of the same nature as that sought from the Court in the application dismissed for default.

Clause 248G.—The proposed extension of clause 13 to proceedings other than suits enables us to dispense with this provision.

Clauses 248H and 248I.—The Bill, as originally drafted, contemplated absolute continuity of execution-proceedings, subject only to stay for specific reasons. We do not see our way to keeping alive processes in execution when the proceedings themselves have been stayed. In these circumstances, we have provided in clause 248H that stay terminates all processes, with the result, of course, that clause 248I must be omitted.

Clause 248J.—We have made it clear that this clause applies only to cases in which the judgment-debtor has made default after notice.

Clause 248K.—We have omitted this provision because we think that the Court should in this respect also be trusted to exercise the discretion conferred by clause 220.

Clause 248M.—We have omitted this clause in view of the objections of the Courts to the labour involved in the preparation of the proposed memorandum.

Clause 250.—For the word "warrant" the word "process" has been substituted as more exhaustive and familiar.

Sub-clause (3) has been re-stated in a form intended to meet the facts underlying a Calcutta ruling [Anand Lall Bera v. The Empress (1883), I. L. R. 10 Cal. 18].

Clause 252.—In sub-clause (3) we have dealt with the execution against legal representatives of decrees other than decrees for the payment of money. There is no provision in the existing Code for such cases, although suits against legal representatives to compel the delivery of property or the performance of any other specific act are by no means uncommon.

Clause 253.—The provisions relating to the enforcement, by summary process in execution, of security given for the performance of a decree on the payment of money should, in our opinion, apply to security given for restitution of property or the fulfilment of conditions.

Clause 254.—We think it equitable that, if the period of detention in the civil prison actually undergone is not to preclude execution of a decree by further detention, it should be deducted from the period of further detention permissible under clause 342.

Clause 260.—Sub-clause (4) and the illustration have been added to remedy a defect disclosed in practice [Bhoobun Mohun Mundul v. Nobin Chunder Bullub (1872), 18 W. R. 282; Protap Chunder Doss v. Peary Chowdhrain (1881), I. L. R. 8 Cal. 174].

Clause 260A.—In sub-clause (2), paragraph (b), we have omitted the passages reproducing the provisions of the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict., c. 68), section 3, in so far as they authorize the Court to require a female judgment-debtor to provide for the support of her husband decree-holder. It has been represented that such a provision is not required in this country and might, to some extent, involve an inconsistency with the principles of Hindu law.

Clause 261.—Sub-clause (5) has been extended to cover optional, as well as compulsory, registration; and we propose that an order for the payment of expenses of registration of either kind may be summarily enforced in the execution department.

Clause 263.—In sub-clause (4) we have specified the point from which the thirty days' period of limitation is to commence and which the Bill, as originally drafted, possibly left a little uncertain.

In sub-clause (5) we have added the words "by order" to show more clearly that enforcement is regulated by sub-clause (8).

In sub-clause (6) we have sought to meet a difficulty of practice by allowing the Court to deduct the expenses of sale.

Clause 265.—The slight amendments introduced into this section are required for uniformity with clause 215B as re-cast.

Clause 336.—It has been strongly urged in several quarters, more particularly by the Government of the Punjab, that the prohibition against the forcing of an outer door is an "inconvenient superstition". A corresponding alteration has been made in clause 271. We are of opinion that a warrant of arrest issued by a Court of Justice should receive implicit obedience; and the distinction between warrants, according as they have been issued by Criminal or Civil Courts, seems to be an importation even now foreign to the ideas of the people of this country. We think it both fair and necessary that an order of authority, if resisted, should be carried out by force, and, where the house-holder objects to having his door broken, he has only to hand over the judgment-debtor or to allow the arresting officer to satisfy himself that the judgment-debtor is not on the premises.

In sub-clause (4) we have added a passage to supersede rulings to the effect that the security is released by the mere filing of the petition of insolvency [Koylash Chandra Shaha v. Christophoridi (1887), I. L. R. 15 Cal. 171; Ramsan v. Gerard (1890), I. L. R. 13 All. 100; Banna Mal v. Jamna Das (1893), I. L. R. 15 All. 183; Dwarkadas Parshotam Das v. Isabhai Daudkhan (1894), I. L. R. 19 Bom 210] with which the judgment-debtor may never have intended to proceed.

We have omitted sub-clause (5) of the original Bill in view of the altered terms of clause 253.

Clause 653.—This clause appears to us to be misplaced in the Miscellaneous Chapter. We have transferred hither sub-clauses (1) and (2), while sub-clauses (3) and (4) have been inserted after clause 342. A consequential addition has been made to clause 481.

Clause 337A.—We propose that the remedy here provided should not be available to a judgment-debtor who has already been released under clause 336, sub-clause (4), and fails to carry out the conditions of such release.

Clause 266.—In sub-clause (1) we have amplified the language because, under the procedure now proposed, attachment by way of garnishment or charging will not terminate in sale.

In paragraph (c) of the proviso we have somewhat enlarged the wording, though not the principle, of the exemption relating to houses and buildings of agriculturists. The exemption is of little efficacy if the site and the land immediately appurtenant and necessary for enjoyment are liable at any moment to attachment and sale. We have omitted the words "as such" and have inserted the words "as an agriculturist" after the word "representative" to give more precise effect to the underlying decision [Radhakisan Hakumji v. Balvant Ramji (1883), I. L. R. 7 Bom. 530].

In paragraph (g) we have amalgamated paragraphs (g) and (h) of the original Bill and, to meet a case of extreme hardship reported to us, have excepted decrees for alimony from the exemption to the extent of one moiety of each of the exempted particulars. We conceive that the sums referred to are exempted to enable the judgment-debtor to maintain himself and his family in a position appropriate to his rank. We do not think that the purposes of such exemption are carried into effect where an officer or a pensioner refuses to make any attempt to satisfy a decree obtained by his wife for alimony.

In paragraph (m) we have made an addition to cover the case of local enactments passed by the Governor General in Council.

Paragraph (a) of sub-clause (2) has been slightly amended for closer conformity with paragraph (c) of the proviso to sub-clause (1) as re-cast.

Clause 267.—In sub-clause (1) we have inserted the words "alleged to be" before the word "liable" in order to base the Court's authority to act upon the application and not, as at present, upon proof of the liability of the property.

In sub-clause (2) we propose to remove any doubt in regard to the application of the provisions of the Code relating to the levy of costs.

Clause 269A.—We have extended this provision, which originally affected "growing crops" only, to all "agricultural produce" as defined by us in clause 2, paragraph (a). We entirely concur in the principle adopted in the Bill that the Court should attach such produce, which will now in all cases be treated as moveable property, by taking it into its possession and custody. At the same time, the procedure relating to the "actual seizure" of moveables cannot be applied, in its entirety, to a growing crop and, having regard to the special provisions suggested by us in clause 295B with respect to the sale of "agricultural produce," we see considerable objection to allowing such produce to be ordinarily removed on attachment. In these circumstances, we think that, to give proper effect to clause 295B, attachment should be effected by affixing a notice in situ on the field or threshing-floor and also, by way of greater caution, on the judgment-debtor's ordinary place of residence. To meet special cases of persons not residing in the actual neighbourhood, we would allow, under the special orders of the Court, affixure, as permitted by clause 80, on the house in which the judgment-debtor carries on business or personally works for gain or in which he is known to have last resided or personally worked for gain. We have provided that the costs of the attachment shall be added to the decree.

Clause 269AA.—Somewhat conflicting opinions have been expressed on the extremely difficult question of the authority best qualified to carry into effect the necessary arrangements for agricultural produce under attachment. On the whole, we have arrived at the conclusion that, unless the presiding officer of the Court is specially authorized by the Local Government to deal with such produce, a precept should always be issued to the Collector. Revenue-officers, as a rule, are in a better position than a Civil Court to deal with these matters. It will be observed that we have given power to "any subordinate" and not merely to "any gazetted subordinate," because the Tahsildar, upon whom this duty will ordinarily devolve, is not usually a gazetted officer.

Clause 269B.—The original proposal to authorize the Court only to declare a fixed proportion of any growing crop to be exempted has been universally condemned as impracticable. It seems to us to be clear that the amount to be exempted, not merely of growing crops but of all "agricultural produce", must depend upon the circumstances of each particular case; and we think that the proper person for deciding this matter must necessarily be the authority entrusted under clause 269AA with the arrangements relative to attachment. As a matter of working practice, the original proposal to treat a proportion of growing crops as free from liability to attachment and sale cannot, it seems, be conveniently carried into effect. We propose, therefore that the growing crop, as such, should be attached, but that the proportion to be exempted shall, when ascertained, be released from attachment. The provisions of clause 269A, sub-clause (2), authorizing the judgment-debtor to attend to his crop while under attachment are sufficient, we think, to prevent any hardship arising from this procedure. We have omitted the proviso, originally appended to clause 269B by way of greater caution, because we think that the special and local enactments, by which the first charges in favour of rent or revenue are created, are sufficiently safeguarded by clause 4 as amended by us.

Clause 268A.—It frequently occurs that the property to be attached consists of a share or interest in moveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor and others in co-ownership. Such a share or interest is obviously incapable of actual seizure. We are not prepared to accept a proposal that in such cases the entire property should be attached and sold and the co-owners other than the judgment-debtor relegated to their rights either of redemption or of participation in the sale-proceeds. No doubt the extreme frequency of co-ownership presents a formidable obstacle to the rapid and effectual execution of decrees; but, at the same time, we do not feel justified in furthering the interest of the decree-holder at the expense of proprietary rights belonging to third parties. In these circumstances, we see no other solution open to us than to provide for the issue to the judgment-debtor of a notice prohibiting him from transferring or charging the share or interest.

Clause 268F.—The amendment introduced into this clause is merely for the sake of a greater precision of language and procedure.

Clause 268G.—In sub-clause (1) we have added words to show that the operation of this section is not ousted by the mere circumstance that the decree is passed, not against the firm, but against the partners constituting it, where those partners have been sued as such. In one respect we have departed from the English practice embodied in this clause; for we have given in sub-clause (3) the co-partners a right to apply for the sale to them of any such share of a partner as has been charged under sub-clause (2).

Clause 272.—We have made it clear that the determination of questions of title or priority is to be in the manner and the extent provided in clause 278.

Clause 273.—We have re-stated this provision in somewhat clearer and more exhaustive language.

In sub-clause (1) we have collected together all classes of decrees with respect to which the direct application of proceeds realized in execution to the satisfaction of the claims of the attaching decree-holder presents no real difficulty. It will be observed that, in this category, we have included decrees for sale in enforcement of a charge and for the delivery of specific property. Where, however, such property is not in the form of money, it is essential to provide for a power of sale such as is suggested in sub-clause (3).

In sub-clause (4) we have, as in the existing section, dealt with all other decrees. We have not considered it necessary to make a special exception in the case of purely personal decrees such as those for the restitution of conjugal rights. Our reason is that, in our opinion, such decrees are not attachable property within the purview of the defining clause 266. The Code, as we interpret it, refers to the attachment of decrees involving rights to tangible property. In such cases, however, the remedy afforded by the Code and that suggested in the Bill are not always likely to be effective. The attachment, for example, of a decree for specific performance, directing the execution of a sale-deed in favour of the holder of the decree so attached, obviously cannot entitle the attaching decree-holder to obtain execution of a sale-deed in his own favour. Sub-clause

(4) of the Bill, now re-numbered (5), gave the attaching decree-holder a right to execute the attached decree by having the sale-deed executed; and, having thus caused the property affected by the sale-deed to be transferred to the holder of the attached decree, the attaching decree-holder would, it was contemplated, proceed to attach the property and bring it to sale. It has been pointed out that, in these circumstances, the holder of the attached decree might dispose of the property before it could be attached; and we have accordingly provided in sub-clause (4) that he shall be prohibited from transferring or charging in any way such property.

In sub-clause (6) we have substantially restored the existing language of the Code because we think that the duty of giving notice to the judgment-debtor, bound by the attached decree, should be imposed upon the attaching decree-holder.

We have re-stated, in simpler language, the prohibition contained in sub-clause (7), now re-numbered (8), against the existing practice of selling attached decrees which we regard as most undesirable.

Clause 274.—We concur in the view expressed in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that orders for the attachment of immoveable property should remain in force for a period specified therein. Such a period should, of course, be capable of being, from time to time, extended; but, where an order for the sale of the property has been made, the decree-holder has done what may fairly be expected of him; and we think that the attachment should continue, without necessity for applications from the decree-holder, until the sale becomes absolute or is set aside, otherwise, of course, than under clause 310A. Where, however, a sale is set aside otherwise than under clause 310A, the judgment-debtor, in the absence of special provision, might dispose of the property before the decree-holder could, however great his diligence, obtain a re-attachment. To obviate hardship in such cases, we think that the unexpired portion of the original attachment should revive. Nevertheless, it may happen that the order for sale has been made almost immediately before the attachment would in the ordinary course expire; and, as the decree-holder is not necessarily responsible for this circumstance but might none the less be prevented thereby from obtaining a re-attachment before the property is transferred, we would invest the Court which sets aside the sale with a discretion to fix a further period. The principle which underlies our proposal is that a decree-holder should be bound to prosecute his application for execution with all reasonable diligence; but we do not think that the judgment-debtor should be able to defeat execution by taking advantage of a momentary delay which the decree-holder cannot, by any possibility, prevent.

Clause 275.—In paragraph (b) we have placed satisfaction certified under clause 258 on the same footing as satisfaction made through the Court. We have further sought to render it clear that the removal of an attachment arises by operation of law and does not depend on an order for withdrawal. We do not think that the removal need always be proclaimed with the formalities prescribed by clause 274, though we think that those formalities should be available to the judgment-debtor if he so desires and is willing to pay the expenses.

Clause 285.—We have transferred sub-clause (2) to a more appropriate position under the sub-title Payment and distribution of assets realised in execution. An illustration has been added to give effect to decisions of the High Courts of Bombay [Turmuklal Harkisanrai v. Kalyandas Khushal (1894), I. L. R. 19 Bom. 127] and Allahabad [Ballu Ram v. Raghubar Dial (1893), I. L. R. 16 All. 11].

Clause 268AA.—We have modified the language of sub-clauses (1) and (2) to bring it into closer harmony with the other provisions of this Chapter, more especially those relating to the issue of precepts and application for execution.

The leading decisions explanatory of the nature of an attachable debt have been summarized in paragraphs (a) [Tapp v. Jones (1875), 10 Q. B. 591, at p. 592; Webb v. Stenton (1883), 11 Q. B. 518, at p. 527] and (b) [Chatterton v. Watney (1881), 16 C. D. 378, at p. 383; In re General Horticultural Company ex parte Whitehouse (1886), 32 C.D. 512; Badeley v. Consolidated Bank (1888), 38 C.D. 238; Davis v. Freethy (1890), 24 Q. B. 519; Cole v. Eley (1894), 2 Q. B. 180, at p. 187] of the explanation.

The explanation respecting mortgages has been amplified to remove misconception and to avoid any confusion between the summary procedure by garnishee order and the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (IV of 1882).

Illustration (a) gives effect to a ruling [Hall v. Pritchett (1877), 3 Q. B. D. 216] which is apt to be overlooked, and illustration (b) follows so much of the explanation as relates to mortgages.

Clause 268C.—The language of sub-clause (1) has been slightly altered to reproduce more closely the language of the English order without shifting the burden of proof as was proposed in the original Bill. It is further suggested for the purposes of appeal and otherwise to give a decision under this provision the force of a decree.

Clause 268E.—By virtue of paragraph (k) of the proviso to clause 266, expectancies by survivorship and other merely contingent or possible rights or interests are not capable of attachment. In these circumstances, we have departed from English practice by limiting interests in stock attachable by charging order to vested interests.

With reference to sub-clause (3), we think it right that notice should also be given to the person in whose name the stock is standing.

Clause 268EE.—Though garnishment furnishes the most convenient method of attaching a specific debt, it may not always be either cheap or expeditious in the case of debts such as claims to agricultural rent or profits, comprising many small items and governed by special laws for their realization. In such cases, the necessity for serving every individual debtor with notice of a separate garnishment order would serve no useful purpose, while it would sensibly increase the cost falling ultimately upon the judgment-debtor. We understand that, in several Provinces, such debts are attached wholesale and a receiver appointed by a practice, which is of very doubtful legality but has grown up, ex necessitate rei, on the analogy of the attachment of revenue-paying estates by the Collector. We would legalize this procedure and give the Court a discretion to resort to it; but we would not limit it strictly to rent or profits, inasmuch as it may be expedient to apply it, for example, to the outstandings of an insolvent business.

Clause 276.—We have transferred this provision to a separate sub-title after clause 268E and have slightly altered the wording to render it clear that the restraint upon alienation applies also to attachment by way of garnishment and charging orders.

Clauses 278 and 283.—We have materially simplified the procedure relating to the investigation of claims and objections which, in the existing Code, appears to us to be open to serious objection. Sections 278 to 282 allow, but do not compel, the raising of claims and objections which may involve questions of title. On the other hand, they strictly limit the adjudication to summary orders for possession, which section 283 allows the unsuccessful party to impugn by a suit, subject to a reduction of the ordinary period of limitation to one year. An optional and dual system of this description is, of course, most ineffectual; and clause 283 of the Bill sought to remedy one of its defects by making recourse to this procedure compulsory. This proposal, on full consideration, we find ourselves unable to support. A judicial auction or a resistance to execution involves an act which in itself is, at any rate, a considerable guarantee for notice and justifies, in our opinion, the compulsory provisions of clause 312, sub-clause (3), and clause 335A. In the case of a mere attachment, however, we do not feel confident that the report of a process-server is a sufficient safeguard when it is a question of negativing remedies at present available for the enforcement of substantive rights, as a penalty for what is, at worst, a default of procedure. Our suggestion for the removal of some of the difficulties is to leave it optional, as at present, to have recourse to a claim or objection under clause 278 but, on the other hand, to give a claimant or objector, if he takes the trouble to come forward, a full enquiry and a definitive decree. We have accordingly struck out clause 283 altogether but have regularized proceedings under clause 278 as suits.

We have further considered the question whether the benefit of the procedure afforded by clause 278 should be limited to claims and objections arising in respect of an attachment or should extend to those relating to property which is declared by the decree itself to be liable to sale in satisfaction of a mortgage and which, therefore, does not require to be attached by way of execution [Dayachand Nemchand v. Hemchand Dharamchand (1880), I. L. R. 4 Bom. 515, at p. 520; Venkatanarsammah v. Ramiah (1879), I. L R. 2 Mad. 108, at p. 112]. The Bill, as originally drafted, referred to "property attached in execution of a decree, including a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage"; but the language employed was, in our opinion, inappropriate, because it implied a reversion to the former process of attachment in execution of mortgage-decrees which the Legislature has regarded with disfavour ever since the enactment of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 99, and to which we are not disposed to lend any encouragement. On the other hand, while we have no desire to question the legal accuracy of the decisions [Deefholts v. Peters (1887), I. L. R. 14 Cal. 631; Himatram v. Khushal Jethiram Gujar (1893), I. L. R. 18 Bom. 98, at p. 100; compare also Wamanrao v. Kustorji (1896), I. L. R. 21 Bom. 701; Sanwal Das v. Bismillah Begam (1897), I. L. R. 19 All. 480, at pp. 481-2; Joy Prokash Singh v. Abhoy Kumar Chund (1897), 1 Cal. W. N. 701], holding section 278 to be inapplicable to claims and objections relating to mortgage-decrees, we are satisfied by the facts underlying those cases that the present law may and does involve serious hardship to all the parties concerned. However willing the claimant or objector may be to come forward and have the matter determined without delay, the Courts, holding themselves bound to confine themselves to the solemn contract between the mortgagor and mortgagee, sell off the property with the cloud on the title and the prospect of years of litigation. The result is that the purchaser of property ordered to be sold in enforcement of a mortgage obtains the least security from judicial process, whereas the whole intention of the Courts responsible for the rulings was to safeguard his interests. The effect is naturally to discourage the willingness to bid and thus to perpetuate the evil of inadequate prices which is generally admitted to be a pressing hardship and which it is one of the objects of the Bill to minimize. We think that, in allowing claimants and objectors in the case of mortgage-decrees to avail themselves of section 278, we are following out the line of the principle enunciated by Their Lordships of the Privy Council [Prosunno Kumar Sanyal v. Kali Das Sanyal (1892), I. L. R. 19 Cal. 683] that objections relating to execution-sales should be disposed of as cheaply and speedily as possible.

At the same time, we have suggested that a practical limit should be set to the degree of detail with which the Court executing the decree should pursue investigations under clause 278 as remodelled. The intending purchaser is entitled to know the factum of an existing incumbrance or right of redemption; but, where the precise amount of mortgage-money is disputed, he is willing, as a rule, to bid on the assumption of the substantial correctness of the mortgagee's demand without waiting for every item of the account to be settled. We have accordingly added a proviso, in this sense, to sub-clause (1).

We have expunged sub-clause (3) of clause 278 in the original Bill which attempted, on the basis of case-law, to describe with greater accuracy the nature of the interest referred to in the existing section 279. We do not consider it desirable to give legislative recognition to the principle resulting from certain cases [In the matter of Bhoiharinee Dabee v. Maharaja Nil Monee Sing Deo Bahadoor (1875), 24 W. R. 422; Shivapa v. Dod Nagaya (1886), I. L. R. 11 Bom. 114, per Sargent, C. J., at page 119] that the judgment-debtor, who has been treated in Madras as bound by the proceedings [Netietom Perengaryprom v. Tayanbarry Parameshwaren Nambudry (1869), 4 Mad. H. Ct. 472; Guruva v. Subbarayudu (1890), I. L. R. 13 Mad. 366], should have the power to adduce rebutting evidence. Now that the procedure is assimilated to that followed in suits relating to title, the difficulties experienced with respect to the parties to a summary investigation into possession should not arise.

Clause 287.—Sub-clause (2) has been slightly altered to give effect to a practice, which is stated to be followed with great advantage in Calcutta, of drawing up proclamations after notice to the parties, who are thus afforded an opportunity of settling the contents correctly and, in a great measure, are restrained from subsequently raising obstructive and dilatory objections. The penalty proposed by us for want of diligence in this matter is contained in clause 331, sub-clause (4).

With reference to sub-clause (5) as originally drafted, we are of opinion that neither the decree-holder nor the judgment-debtor should be under any obligation to furnish the Court with any estimate of the value of the property to be sold, and we have accordingly declared that no valuation of the property shall be entered in the proclamation.

Sub-clause (6) of the original Bill was inserted to give effect to rulings [Laek Ram v. Mohesh Doss (1869), 12 W. R. 488; Saadatmand Khan v. Phul Kuar (1898), I. L. R. 20 All. 412] declaring that the object of issuing a proclamation is to give notice to the intending purchasers and not to the judgment-debtor. We have decided to depart from this principle and have, as we propose to require the proclamation to be settled after notice to the parties, cancelled sub-clause (6), which provided for information likely to be useful to the public in bidding.

Clause 289.—We have consolidated and abridged sub-clause (1) but inserted the words "as nearly as may be", because the provision applies generally to sales of both kinds of property and, in the case of moveables, the provisions of clause 274, relating to immoveables, cannot be applied in their entirety.

It will be noticed that clause 289, sub-clause (1), of the Bill as originally drafted reproduces from the present section the word "then" which does not figure in section 274. This sequence of acts is important with reference to the starting-point of the period of limitation prescribed by clause 290. We have accordingly provided for it by an addition of "then" in clause 274, sub-clause (3).

In sub-clause (2) we propose to give the Courts an option not to publish in the Gazette, which is not commonly read by the classes most affected.

Clause 290.—By sub-clause (2) it is sought to remove the long-standing difference of opinion on the question whether contravention of the provisions of section 290 is an illegality or a mere irregularity. On the whole, we are of opinion that, where the sale of the property should never have been held at all by reason of the mandatory provisions of sub-clause (1), it is no answer either to the decree-holder or to the judgment-debtor to say that a fair sale-price has been realized. The facts of a reported decision [Teyen v. Ram Lal (1890), I. L. R. 12 All. 115] disclose that a sale without observance of the provisions for public notice may result in the most serious hardship. In these circumstances, we would provide that, upon the application of the decree-holder or of the judgment-debtor, such a sale shall be set aside. By an addition to the Fourth Schedule, we would enact a period of thirty days' limitation from the date on which the period referred to in sub-section (1) has expired.

Clause 291.—The second proviso to sub-clause (1) is intended to meet the facts underlying a Calcutta decision [Lalmohun Chowdhuri v. Nunu Mohamed Talukdar (1889), I. L. R. 17 Cal. 152].

Clause 291A.—Clauses 287 to 291 do not appear to us to apply to cases in which, as in the case of certain kinds of immoveable property, the decree is transferred, or, as is proposed with respect to agricultural produce, a precept is issued, to the Collector.

Clause 293.—The proposed alteration follows the modified procedure suggested by us in regard to the attachment of agricultural produce. Similar alterations have been introduced into clause 294.

Clause 293A.—The original clause was intended to prevent the evasion of the terms of section 185, Indian Penal Code, by the device of bidding in the capacity of an agent of a sham purchaser. We are not satisfied that the abuse referred to is sufficiently common to warrant legislation, and we doubt whether the subject lends itself to legislation in a form likely to result in the conviction of the offenders. On the contrary, we apprehend that, in view of the difficulty of proving intention, prosecutions are not unlikely to prove abortive. In any case, we think that, if such acts are to be penalized at all, the proper place for the provision would be after section 185 in the Indian Penal Code rather than in the Code of Civil Procedure. In these circumstances, we have proposed the omission of the clause.

Clause 294.—This provision, as it stood in the original Bill, was intended to meet the evil of inadequate prices arising from the reluctance of the public to bid against a mortgagee decree-holder. Sub-clause (2), therefore, proposed that, where the decree-holder was allowed the concession of bidding at all, the claim under the decree should be treated as the upset price. We think that such a restriction would be unduly severe where the decretal amount largely exceeds the value of the property. We propose to deal with this important question on a perfectly different principle. Our suggestion is, in clause 294, to remove altogether the restrictions imposed upon bidding by the decree-holder, but to make it his interest to have the property sold at a fair value by giving, in clauses 310A and 311, considerably greater facilities for redemption of the property and cancellation of the sale where the price realized is grossly inadequate.

Clause 295A. - This provision reproduces in more general language the substance of clause 108, sub-clause (2), of the original Bill.

Clauses 295B and 295BB.—In these provisions we have recast and re-arranged clause 295B of the original Bill to follow the amendments introduced into clauses 269A to 269B.

With reference to sub-clause (1) of clause 295B, we think that agricultural produce should, on the analogy of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, section 129, ordinarily be sold at the place where they are attached, unless a better price is likely to be realized by sale at the nearest place of public resort.

In sub-clause (2) we propose to allow, on the analogy of section 131 of the same enactment, a discretion to postpone the sale of agricultural produce where such a course is necessary or desirable to prevent the property from being purchased at an inadequate figure.

Sub-clause (3) is based on the principle that the authority entrusted under clause 269AA with the duty of making arrangements for the custody of agricultural produce under attachment is likely to sell such crops to the best advantage of all parties.

Sub-clause (4), which regulates the transmission of net proceeds realized under the precept, is perhaps not strictly required; but, as the procedure here proposed is very special in its character, we think it desirable to state it, for the information of revenue-officers, in as complete and connected a form as possible.

Clause 297.—We have omitted sub-clause (4) because we do not feel justified in penalizing a third party for the indebtedness of a judgment-debtor who happens to be a co-owner in joint property.

Clause 298.—Our redraft proposes to settle a point left open by Their Lordships of the Privy Council [Macnaghten v. Mahabir Pershad Singh (1882), I. L. R. 9 Cal. 656, at p. 660] in regard to section 311 and to supersede a decision of the High Court at Allahabad [Mahadeo Dubey v. Bhola Nath Dichit (1882), I. L. R. 5 All. 86].

Clause 305.—Where a decree-holder is entitled to a set-off under clause 294, sub-clause (3), he does not in practice pay in the monies referred to in clause 305, sub-clause (2), first proviso, and should not be required to pay them in under the terms of the Code. A similar saving has been introduced into clause 306, sub-clause (2), and clause 307, sub-clause (1), proviso.

Clause 307.—We propose to supersede a decision [Motiram v. Bhivraj (1895), I. L. R. 20 Bom. 745] drawing a distinction, which the majority of litigants are unable to understand, between days on which the Court and those on which the Court's office, respectively, is closed or open. In order to prevent further misconception, we propose to recognize, for the purpose of computing the period allowed for payment, no office day on which the Court is not open.

From sub-clause (1) we have omitted the provisions relative to the occurrence of a Sunday, because the matter is sufficiently covered by the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 10.

Clause 310A.—The alteration of language, which we have proposed in sub-clause (1), paragraphs (a) and (b), is necessary to provide for the case of sales in the enforcement of mortgage-decrees without attachment which the Bill has expressly included.

In sub-head (ii) we have suggested, in the interests of the judgment-debtor, a relaxation of the present law which has been urged more especially in consequence of inquiries into agrarian indebtedness in the Province of Bombay. At present, advantage cannot be taken of the power of redemption given by the section unless the entire amount due under the decree is deposited. This extremely stringent requirement appears to us to be founded on an incorrect principle. The sale transaction and its rescission are matters between the judgment-debtor on the one part and the purchaser on the other; and the present Code treats the purchaser as sufficiently compensated for his trouble and disappointment by a payment of five per centum on the price offered by him. The decree-holder, however, is interested in the matter to this extent only that the sale-price realized, whatever it be, is applied to the satisfaction of his claim; and we do not think, therefore, that, when the sale is set aside, he is entitled to anything in excess of what he would receive if the sale had been confirmed. On the contrary, as we have mentioned under clause 294, we think it highly important that he should have every interest in seeing that an adequate sale-price is realized. In these circumstances, we propose to limit his claim to a sum equal to the purchase-money. On the other hand, the present law seems plainly defective in calculating the sum payable to the decree-holder upon the amount specified in the proclamation without taking into consideration the costs of the attachment and sale, to a refund of which the decree-holder seems to us to be plainly entitled.

In view of these amendments we propose to omit the first proviso as contained in the original Bill. The second proviso, which we would retain, seems to us somewhat ambiguous and even inaccurate; and we have accordingly qualified it by an exception to meet cases in which the application under clause 311 is withdrawn.

Sub-clause (3) of the original Bill was intended to restrict a practice [compare, Ugrah Lall v. Radha Pershad Singh (1891), I. L. R 18 Cal. 255; Makbool Ahmed Chowdhry v. Basle Sabhan Chowdhry (1898), I. L. R. 25 Cal. 609] to the effect that, where an officer of the Court has miscalculated the amount payable, a judgment-debtor is allowed, as a matter of right, to have the sale cancelled in spite of a deficiency in the deposit. It was proposed to incorporate a decision [Chundi Charan Mandal v. Banke Behary Lal Mandal (1899), I. L. R. 26 Cal. 449], limiting the benefit of this provision to a bonâ fide mistake arising from a miscalculation by an officer bound to inform the judgment-debtor of the correct amount to be deposited. The matter turns, in a measure, upon the particular rules of Court prescribed in the Lower Provinces of Bengal; and, in these circumstances, we think provision for it to be out of place in a Code of general application.

We have added sub-clause (3) to give effect to two rulings of the High Court at Allahabad [Karamat Khan v. Mir Ali Ahmed, All. W. N., 1891, p. 121; Ali Gauhar Khan v. Bansidhar (1893), I. L. R. 15 All. 407].

The relaxation of law which we have suggested in sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), would serve little purpose if the property, as soon as it is redeemed, is liable to be re-attached. The logical outcome of that suggestion is that, so long as an order setting aside a sale under sub-clause (1) is in full force and effect, the decree-holder should be in the same position as if the property had been sold to him for the sum received by him under sub-head (ii) of that sub-clause.

With reference to this clause as a whole, we have altered the second and third entries in column 4 of the Fourth Schedule relating to the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, with the object of obviating possible misconception with respect to the application of clause 291 as well as of clause 310A [Raja Ram Singhji v. Chunni Lal (1897), I. L. R. 19 All. 205; Harjas Rai v. Rameshar (1898), I. L. R. 20 All. 354]

Clause 311.—We have been pressed to supersede, in the sense of decisions from Madras [Venkatasubbaraya Chetti v. Zamindar of Karvetinagar (1896), I. L. R. 20 Mad. 159] and Calcutta [Sheorutton Singh v. Net Loll Sahu (1902), I. L. R. 30 Cal. 1, at p. 9], a series of rulings [Satish Chunder Rai Chowdhuri v. Thomas (1885), I. L. R. 11 Cal. 658; Tasadduk Rasul Khan v. Ahmad Husain (1893), I. L. R. 21 Cal. 66; Jagan Nath v. Makund Prasad (1895), I. L. R. 18 All. 37; Shirin Begam v. Agha Ali Khan (1895), I. L. R. 18 All. 141; Hasi Mahomed v. Bindu Basini Debi (1897), 2 Cal. W. N. cclxxix] which turn upon the construction of the specific language of the Code and declare that to succeed under this section the applicant must prove a grossly inadequate sale-price resulting from a material irregularity, and that the co-existence of an irregularity and an inadequacy, however gross, in the sale-price is not sufficient, in the absence of direct evidence, to establish a causal connection. A perusal of the voluminous case-law on this subject satisfies us that the real essence of the matter is the gross inadequacy of the sale-price, and that the material irregularity, to which so much importance has been hitherto assigned, is of moment only in so far as it explains that inadequacy. Without entering, therefore, into the merits of the interpretations so often discussed by the Courts, we would strike at the root of the matter by permitting an application on the simple ground of gross inadequacy of the sale-price; and we have the less hesitation in making this suggestion because we have proposed, in clause 294, the removal of all existing restrictions upon bidding by the decree-holder. The power conferred is in the discretion of the Court, which must be trusted to exercise it in proper cases.

In view of the great extension given by us to the right conferred by this section, we do not think that, as was proposed by the original Bill, the remedy should be open to any person entitled to sue to set aside the sale. We have accordingly limited the scope of the clause to the parties to the decree and persons entitled to share in rateable distribution of assets. We have struck out the reference to thirty days as sufficiently covered by article 166 of the second schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877. On the analogy of clause 298, as proposed to be amended, we have suggested that the sale may be impugned on the ground of a material irregularity, not merely in publishing or conducting such sale, but also in attaching the property. A consequential amendment of article 166 of the Second Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, has been proposed in the fourth schedule.

From the proviso to sub-clause (1) we have omitted the expression " by direct evidence," because we think it liable to be misunderstood, although it has been employed by Their Lordships of the Privy Council in the course of a leading decision. It is probable, however, that Their Lordships did not intend to formulate a general rule [Lala Mobaruk Lal v. The Secretary of State for India in Council (1885), I. L. R. 11 Cal. 200] and a reasonable inference from facts is often the only available method of proof [I. L. R. 30 Cal. 1, at p. 9].

We think that a person making an application under this clause should not be able concurrently to make or prosecute an application under clause 244 to set aside a sale impugned by him.

We have omitted the explanation as out of place in this clause.

Clause 313.—The reference to sixty days in sub-clause (1) has been omitted as sufficiently covered by article 172 of the Second Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877. Though we approve of the principle embodied in explanation I of the Bill, we have omitted this provision because there seems no necessity for giving legislative recognition, at any rate in this clause, to the underlying decision [Durga Sundari Devi v. Govinda Chandra Addy (1883), I. L. R. 10 Cal. 368]. A slight abridgment of the language of the clause has necessitated an addition to the Fourth Schedule verbally amending article 172 of the Second Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

Clause 312.—The reference to the period of sixty days has been omitted in view of the amendments proposed in clause 310A. A consequential alteration of the language of sub-clause (2) has thereby been necessitated.

Sub-clause (3) has been recast in a form which we consider more exhaustive in the way of excluding concurrent remedies.

Clause 315.—Sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), has been slightly amended to meet the facts underlying a Madras decision [Sivarama v. Rama (1884), I. L. R. 8 Mad. 99]. A consequential amendment has been made in the language of the proviso to sub-clause (3).

A slight addition has been made to paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2) to give more exact effect to the case-law underlying it [Vithoba v. Esat (1893), I. L. R. 18 Bom. 594].

Clause 316.—We consider it desirable to direct attention to the circumstance, which is often overlooked, that the stamp-duty is payable not by the deposit of the sum required to purchase stamps but by the stamps themselves.

Clause 317.—A reference to the successor-in-title has been inserted to supersede certain rulings [Theyyavelan v. Kochan (1897), I. L. R. 21 Mad. 7; Dukhada Sundari Dasi v. Srimonto Joardar (1899), I. L. R. 26 Cal. 950].

Clause 318.—In sub-clause (1) of the original Bill, for the word "purchaser" we have substituted the words "holder of the certificate" in view of the amendments proposed in clause 316, sub-clause (1).

We have omitted sub-clause (2) because the expansion of clause 244 to cover a purchaser closes the long-standing controversy on the question whether a dispute under this provision, where the purchaser is the decree-holder, does or does not fall within the purview of section 244 as the subject of a decree.

Clause 327A.—We have transferred hither the provisions of clause 546, sub-clause (3), as originally drafted, for the sake of more logical sequence.

Clause 321.—We have amalgamated clauses 321 and 322 of the original Bill as relating to the same subject-matter.

Clause 295.—In order to avoid misconception, we have made it clear that the application referred to in sub-clause (1) is in the form prescribed by clause 235. We have extended this sub-clause to cover the case of legal representatives with a view to meeting the facts underlying certain decisions [Grant v. Subramaniam (1898), I. L. R. 22 Mad. 241; Govind Abaji Jakhadi v. Mohoniraj Vinayak Jakhadi (1901), I. L. R. 25 Bom. 494].

We have made a slight addition to sub-clause (3), the language of which has been adapted to the precept system, with a view to rendering it clear that, though issue of a precept is not a condition precedent to application for rateable distribution, a precept must be obtained before the applicant can participate in the assets.

We have made an addition to sub-clause (4) because, in the cases governed by clause 274, an attachment will no longer remain in force until withdrawn by order but is limited to a specific period.

We have amplified explanation I because we think that assets realized by a sale should not be regarded as available for distribution so long as the sale is liable to be set aside.

We have somewhat recast the wording of explanation II in which our proposed paragraph (c) is intended to give effect to a Madras decision [Mallikarjunadu Setti v. Lingamurti Pantulu (1900), I. L. R. 25 Mad. 244, at pp. 286 and 287].

We have added explanation IV to obviate arguments to the effect that sums of the nature here referred to are held by the Court solely for payment to a specified decree-holder and not for distribution to others.

Clause 328.—In this clause we have amalgamated clauses 329 and 330 as relating to the same subject-matter.

In sub-clause (3) we have sought to render somewhat more specific the nature of the order which the Court is competent to make.

In sub-clause (4) we have substituted detention in the civil prison for imprisonment of either description as for a criminal offence. Notwithstanding the terms of the present Code, we are strongly of opinion that, where there is no independent trial before the Magistrate, the Civil Court should not commit to the criminal prison.

Sub-clause (5) reproduces, in a somewhat amplified form, the substance of clause 2, sub-clause (1), paragraph (f), sub-head (iv), as proposed in the original Bill [compare, Fonindro Deb Raikut v. Rani Jugodishwari Dabi (1886), I. L. R. 14 Cal. 234; Gopala v. Fernandes (1892), I. L. R. 16 Mad. 127].

Clause 331.—We have omitted sub-clause (3) of the original Bill as sufficiently covered by the two sub-clauses following thereon.

To sub-clause (4), now re-numbered (3), we have added a reference to consequential relief because it might be contended that a Court has, in the absence of a prayer for such relief, a discretion to refuse to grant a bare declaration of title.

Clause 332.—In sub-clause (1) we have sought to render it clear that a claimant, failing under clause 331, cannot have the objection re-heard under clause 332. In the same sub-clause we have omitted the words "in good faith" as adding nothing substantial to the words "on his own account".

Clause 335.—In sub-clause (3) we have added provisions intended to assist the subordinate Courts by reference to the procedure contained in sections which, in this connection, might be overlooked.

Clause 335A.—We have recast the language of this clause for purposes of greater precision. The only point to which we would direct special attention is that, in paragraph (b), we have, as in clause 312, sub-clause (3), assimilated the provisions with respect to notice to those contained in the definition embodied in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 2.

Clause 343.—We have substituted "process" for "warrant" to follow the amendment proposed in clause 250.

CHAPTER XXI.

OF INSOLVENCY.

Clause 345.—We do not think that, at present, it would be expedient to introduce into British India, in its entirety, the principle of English law that, for the purposes of insolvency, a transaction may be fraudulent solely by reference to its effect irrespective of the intention of the parties thereto. In these circumstances, we have incorporated the original paragraph (b) as sub-head (iv) of paragraph (c) which is limited to cases of intent to defeat or delay creditors.

In paragraph (b), as re-numbered, we have, for analogous reasons, felt ourselves unable to retain the expression "fraudulent preference" in the absence of a definition such as that contained in the English Statute. We have accordingly substituted here and elsewhere the expression "undue preference" which is already familiar in Indian enactments. The same expression will be found inserted in clause 360E.

From paragraph (c), sub-head (iii), we have omitted the words "in his house," because, in our opinion, they would prove to be an inconvenient limitation in view of the circumstances of this country.

Clause 346.—With reference to sub-clause (1), we propose to confer upon the Local Government, in the case of agriculturist debtors, a power to fix the amount justifying recourse to the provisions of this Chapter in view of the extremely divergent views expressed with respect to the propriety of the fifty-rupee limit.

In sub-clause (2) we have added words to render it clear that the Court to which applications should be made is the Court empowered under clause 344.

Clause 347.—We have altered sub-clause (1), paragraph (a), to avoid the unnecessary formality of a negative statement where the applicant is not an agriculturist.

Clause 348.—In sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), we think that the, exemption from legal remedies should be limited to those available for the enforcement of any claim proveable under this Chapter.

With reference to sub-clause (3), there have been criticisms to the effect that publication in the local official Gazette is not always likely to be communicated to the classes of creditors concerned in the proceedings. We adhere to the views expressed in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that no system of insolvent relief is likely to succeed unless "gazetting" is declared to be the only notice to creditors required by law and rendered conclusive as against the assertion of claims otherwise than in accordance with this Chapter. At the same time, to meet the suggestions offered, we propose, in sub-clause (4), that, in addition to giving this legal notice, the Court shall give the creditors such further notice as it may consider expedient.

In sub-clause (6) we have added the words "in the first instance" to render it clear that such expenses are subsequently chargeable against the estate under clause 360GG.

Clause 349.—It has been represented that the penalty originally proposed on the analogy of certain contempts punishable under the Indian Penal Code would, in practice, prove to be inadequate as a deterrent. We have accordingly enhanced the maximum to six months' imprisonment or a fine of one thousand rupees. At the same time, we have inserted the words "on conviction by a Magistrate" to emphasize the principle, which we have adopted in other places also, that the Civil Court is not competent, in the course of its proceedings, to sentence persons for criminal offences. Where it is proposed to confine any person in the criminal prison, we think that, as a general rule, he is entitled to the benefit of an independent trial.

Clause 350.—The original Bill followed the language of the English Statute in authorizing the Court to take the action here prescribed whenever there was probable reason for believing that the debtor intended to behave in the manner contemplated by paragraphs (a) and (b). It has been represented that the highly penal action prescribed by the clause should not be taken until a definite inquiry has satisfied the Court of its necessity. Here as elsewhere we have sought to render it clear that detention ordered by a Civil Court will be in the civil prison.

Clause 351.—We have omitted the words "on oath" as superfluous in view of the terms of the Indian Oaths Act, 1873 (X of 1873), section 5, clause (a).

Clause 352.—In sub-clause (2) we would provide a ready means of realizing compensation which appears to us, to some extent, to stand on the same footing as compensation awarded under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, section 553, where the sum is declared to be recoverable as a fine. We propose, however, to enact, in clause 649A, a special procedure for the recovery of fines imposed under this Code to the exclusion of the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 25, which would import the provisions, inappropriate, we think, to civil proceedings, of the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. In these circumstances, we have adapted the language of clause 649A.

It is possible that Courts of Small Causes may be invested with insolvency jurisdiction under this Chapter. We have accordingly recast the provisos, as originally drafted, in conformity with the amendments explained under clause 491.

Clauses 356 and 358.—Objection has been raised to the expressions "proving for" "and ranking for dividend" as unknown to the practitioners of this country. We have accordingly substituted "proving" and "being entitled to participate in a dividend in order of priority".

To prevent any possible misconception, we have added to clause 358 a sub-clause declaring that these provisions do not relieve a receiver of the necessity for obtaining the leave of the Court where such leave is required by the provisions of clause 355.

Clauses 359 and 360.—We are of opinion that a rate of six per centum is more in accordance with the practice of the Courts. A similar alteration has been made in clause 360B, sub-clause (6).

Clause 360A.—We have sought to avoid the expressions "admitting", "expunging" and "reducing" a "proof" as unfamiliar to Indian practitioners.

Clause 360B.—As the expression "pari passu", which appears in sub-clause (5) of the Bill, seems to be unfamiliar to a number of authorities consulted, we have reverted to the expression "rateably according to the amounts of such debts respectively and without any preference," which is slightly adapted from the existing language of section 356, clause(e).

Clause 360E.—For the words "making title in good faith," which have been criticized as too technical, we have substituted the more familiar expression "proving a title acquired in good faith."

Clause 360H.—In sub-clause (4), paragraph (d), we have materially simplified the English practice, which requires a receiver to institute a separate suit and the insolvent to consent to a decree. It appears to us that such proceedings involve an unnecessary and cumbrous formality; and we propose to declare simply that the order itself shall be capable of execution as if it were a decree.

In sub-clause (5), paragraph (l), we have specified the common cases, mentioned in the existing section, of concealment or removal of property, to prevent argument to the effect that these acts were not intended to be included in the more general language employed in the original draft of the Bill.

Clause 360J.—In sub-clause (1) we have thought it safer to declare expressly that a debtor is a person entitled to obtain an order annulling the declaration of an insolvency. We have paraphrased the expression "revert to the debtor for all his estate", because we gather that some of the subordinate Courts may have some difficulty in interpreting it.

Clause 360K.—There has been some discussion on the question whether the criminal or the civil prison is the proper place of reception for a dishonest debtor punished by the Insolvent Court acting at the instance of a creditor. We are of opinion that, where the Insolvent Court acts upon materials collected by it in a civil proceeding, its powers should, as elsewhere, be limited to detention in the civil prison. If the debtor's conduct deserves punishment as a criminal offence, we think that the matter should be referred to the Court of the Magistrate to ensure the safeguard of an independent trial.

Clause 360M.—We have amplified sub-clause (3) by a reference to clause 360F, sub-clause (4), because we think that a receiver who has been ordered to pay interest out of his own pocket should be allowed to impeach such an order by way of appeal.

PART III.

OF INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXII.

OF THE DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

Clause 361.—Illustrations (a) and (b) have been omitted as founded upon an antiquated decision [Anderson v Martindale (1801), 1 East 497] which is not very intelligible to practitioners in this country.

Illustration (d), which we have re-lettered (b), is correct only under the Dayabhaga system, and the word "minor" has been omitted as not of the essence of the example.

Clause 363.—We have amalgamated clause 365 with sub-clause (2) of this provision, which relates to the same subject. Sub-clause (3) has been added to give effect to a decision from Allahabad [Ghamandi Lal v. Amir Begam (1894), I. L. R. 16 All. 211].

Clause 366.—Paragraph (a) has been amended so as to give effect to the principle accepted by us that abatement results from the operation of the law and does not depend upon the making of an order. Similar amendments have been imported into clause 2, paragraph (g), sub-head (v), and clause 368, sub-clause (3).

Clause 368A.—We have extended the provisions regarding representation to cover escheat [In re Barnett's Trusts (1902), 1 Ch. D. 847].

Clause 368B.—The present Code does not provide for cases in which the plaintiff or defendant sues or is sued in a representative capacity or as a holder of an office and, by reason of his death or otherwise, such representative capacity is filled or such office is held by another before the passing of the decree. In this connection provision has also been made for the inclusion of a Hindu or Muhammadan female where, on the death or re-marriage of such female, the estate will devolve on the legal representative of the last male holder.

Clause 368C.—From this clause, which represents clause 368A of the original Bill, we have omitted the proviso, which adds nothing material to the words "merely because" in the text.

Clause 370.—The words from "unless" to "order", which appeared in clause (1) of this provision as originally drafted, have been omitted as inconsistent with the remainder of the clause, which has been recast for closer agreement with Order XVII, rule 1. We have, however, thought it expedient to specify that the security is still to be for costs only.

Clause 372.—Sub-clause (2) has been added to meet a possible difficulty of limitation [compare, In the Matter of the Petition of Durga Prasad (1899), I. L. R. 22 All. 231].

Clause 372A.—We have omitted this clause and provided for it by an entry in the Fourth Schedule proposing an amendment of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, section 5.

Clause 372B.—The original Bill proposed to except all execution-proceedings from the operation of this Chapter. It appears to us that only clauses 366, 368, sub-clause (3), and 371 should not apply to such proceedings. Otherwise the provisions of the Chapter appear to us to be equally applicable to suits and to proceedings other than suits.

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF THE WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

Clause 373.—Sub-clause (3) of the original Bill, now re-numbered as sub-clause (4), incorporated a rule formulated by Their Lordships of the Privy Council under Act VIII of 1859 [Watson v. The Collector of Rajshahye (1869), 13 Moo. I A. 160], but equally applicable to subsequent revisions of the Code [Muddun Ram Doss v. Israil Ali Chowdhry (1874), 21 W. R. 291; Kudrat v. Dinu (1886), I. L. R. 9 All. 155; Banwari Das v. Muhammad Mashiat (1887), I. L. R. 9 All. 690; Sukh Lal v. Bhikhi (1888), I. L. R. 11 All. 187] to the effect that the Courts of this country cannot enter a non-suit after issues have been settled and the plaintiff has failed to adduce the necessary evidence. This rule, however, it was proposed to qualify where the adverse party agrees to the withdrawal of the suit with the object of avoiding a possible appeal. The qualification has been criticized as not likely to prove of practical value; and, in its absence, we prefer to leave to case-law the rule of practice upon which the Courts have hitherto acted.

Clause 375.—We propose to supersede, in the sense of two decisions [Hara Sundari Debi v. Kumar Dukhinessur Malia (1885), I. L R. 11 Cal. 250; Bandhu Bhagat v. Shah Muhammad Taqi (1892), I. L. R. 14 All. 350] the view more recently expressed at Bombay [Samibai v. Premji Pragji (1895), I. L. R. 20 Bom. 304], Calcutta [Brojodurlabh Sinha v. Ramanath Ghose (1897), I. L. R. 24 Cal. 908] and Madras [Sridharan Somayajipad v. Purumathan Somayajipad (1899), I. L. R. 23 Mad. 101] that the Court is at liberty to pass a decree upon a disputed compromise. With reference to a Bombay decision [Pragdas v. Girdhardas (1901), I. L. R. 26 Bom. 76], we have sought to explain how far the decree is "final and conclusive" as defined in clause 2, paragraph (j).

Clause 375A.—The explanation has been incorporated in the clause itself for the sake of conciseness.

Clause 375B.—We think it desirable to provide expressly for the application of this Chapter to set-off and counter-claim. A somewhat similar provision will be found in clause 413A.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OF PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Clause 379A.—In view of the addition of this clause, we have proposed verbal additions to Form No. 155 of the Third Schedule.

CHAPTER XXV.

OF REQUIRING SECURITY FOR COSTS.

Clause 381.—The addition to sub-clause (1) follows the principle and language of clause 108, sub-clause (2).

In sub-clause (4) the necessary provision has been made to meet the case of set-off or counter-claim. We are of opinion that payment of costs ordered in a previous suit is not a sufficient protection. We have accordingly provided that the Court may require security for costs likely to be incurred in the subsequent suit by the opposite party.

CHAPTER XXVI.

OF COMMISSIONS AND LOCAL INVESTIGATIONS.

The insertion of clauses 391A and 391AA, which do not refer to commissions, renders desirable an expansion of the title of this Chapter and of the second of the sub-titles. We have extended the provisions of the Chapter to proceedings other than suits.

Clause 387A.—We have transferred this clause to follow clause 396, because we think that it should apply generally to all commissions. We do not think that notice is necessary where the party affected is present when the commission is issued.

Clause 388.—Sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), has been inserted to relieve the Courts of so much of the burden of commissions as is avoidable.

Sub-clause (2), read with the addition to clause 397, sub-clause (1), is intended to meet a possible difficulty where a Court issuing a commission has not foreseen the possibility of an order making over the examination to a pleader or other person remunerated by a fee.

In sub-clause (3) we propose to give effect to an existing practice according to which notice of the day and hour fixed for executing a commission is given to the parties.

Clause 390.—The existing Code is defective in not containing a provision corresponding with clause 386, sub-clause (1), paragraph (c).

Clause 391.—On the analogy of clauses 229B and 229A we have provided for the case of Courts not established but continued by the authority of His Majesty or of the Governor General in Council.

Clauses 391A and 391AA.—We have broken up clause 391A into two separate clauses, because we think that the power of holding the trial in situ is a matter of sufficient importance to be enunciated as a separate proposition.

The provisions relating to local inspection have been slightly restated. If a Judge inspects a place connected with a trial for the purpose of observing facts, he should act after notice to the parties. A memorandum prepared by him of facts so observed should, if he so desires, be available as part of the record [Joy Coomar v. Bundhoo Lall (1882), I. L. R. 9 Cal. 363; compare also, Dwarka Nath Sardar v. Prosunno Kumar Hajra (1895), 1 Cal. W. N. 682], but it follows that any party should be at liberty to object to any inaccuracy in the contents and to have it corrected. All these formalities, however, are not required where the Judge visits the spot merely to enable him more readily to appreciate evidence; and in no case should the making of an inspection or of a memorandum entitle any person to convert the Judge into a witness and subject him to examination.

Clause 392.—We have inserted sub-clause (4) because some provision for further inquiry, as in the case of clause 394, sub-clause (3), and clause 396, sub-clause (4), is found necessary in practice.

Clause 396.—Sub-clause (1) has been shortened in view of the terms of clause 215B, to which a reference has been inserted.

In sub-clause (4) we propose to enable a decree to be passed where the Commissioners are not unanimous or where the report contains erroneous or irrelevant matter.

Clause 397.—At the suggestion of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces, we have provided in sub-clause (3) for the fixing of a fresh date for the return of a commission if the date originally fixed has already elapsed.

Clause 399.—Where a commission has been issued to a private person, we think that it would be straining analogy somewhat unduly to treat him as a "Court" for the purpose of exercising, for example, the highly coercive powers conferred by clause 168. The subject, we are aware is not free from difficulty; but, on the whole, we think that the Court having local jurisdiction where a witness resides, is the best judge of the proper process; and we would accordingly require the Commissioner to apply to such Court, upon which we would confer a full discretion in the matter.

PART IV.

OF SUITS IN PARTICULAR CASES.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST PAUPERS.

Clause 401.—It has been represented to us that, if the defence of suits in formâ pauperis is to be permitted, the Courts will be overwhelmed with frivolous applications for this purpose. We have accordingly omitted the references to the defence of suits throughout this Chapter.

Clause 403.—Under the amended sub-clause (2) applications to institute suits in formâ pauperis must contain the particulars prescribed in the case of plaints by clause 50. In these circumstances, it is only fair that the provisions relative to the rejection or amendment of plaints should also apply. The addition of such a provision enables us to cancel the words "framed and" in clause 407, paragraph (a).

Clause 407.—In paragraph (b), sub-head (iii), we have provided that the Court shall reject an application if the claim is obviously frivolous or vexatious. It is not clear that this power is given or that this duty is imposed by the clause as originally drafted.

Clause 408.—The period of notice has been increased from ten days to one month in order to enable correspondence to be conducted with the Government through the usual channel.

Clause 409.—Sub-clauses (1) and (2) have been recast because objection has been taken to the expression "cross-examine" as wholly inappropriate to an examination conducted by the Court.

Sub-clause (2) has been framed with the object of removing the doubts expressed on the question whether the rights given by the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (I of 1872), sections 137 and 138, are not superseded by the language of the existing section.

Clause 411.—We have omitted sub-clauses (2) and (3) but expanded their substance in a separate clause which we have inserted as clause 412A.

Clause 414.—We have modified paragraph (c) for greater conformity with clause 407, paragraph (b), sub-head (iv).

Clause 412.—We have omitted sub-clause (2) of the Bill because, although this provision exists in the present Code, we do not approve of the principle of allowing a Civil Court to sentence litigants as for a criminal offence.

Clause 413.—We have amalgamated in, it is believed, somewhat clearer language the provisions originally proposed in clauses 413 and 415.

Clause 413A.—Though we have proposed not to authorize the defence of suits in formâ pauperis, we are of opinion that, more especially with reference to the suggestions contained in clause 111, a set-off or counter-claim stands on the same footing as the institution of a plaint. We accordingly propose to render, so far as possible, the same provisions applicable.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST PUBLIC OFFICERS.

Clause 416.—In sub-clause (2) we propose to recognize the fact that the provisions relative to the signing and verifying of plaints and written statements cannot be applied in their entirety to litigation conducted by or against the Government.

Clause 418.—A compendious title is equally convenient in suits against, as in suits by, the Government.

Clause 424.—By an addition to the Fourth Schedule we propose to amend the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, by excluding the period of two months next after notice has been delivered or left in pursuance of clause 424. To meet cases of obvious hardship, we think that where a person, having given notice, dies before instituting his suit, his legal representative should have the benefit of such notice and should be entitled to institute a suit without further conditions.

In the explanation we propose to affirm, in supersession of the distinction imported by rulings from Madras [Anantharaman v. Ramasami (1888), I. L. R. 11 Mad. 317] and Bombay [Bhau Balapa v. Nana (1888), I. L. R. 13 Bom. 343], the broad principle that the Collector cannot be impleaded as a defendant in his capacity of agent of the Court of Wards without due notice.

Clause 424A.—On the recommendation of the Legal Remembrancer of Bengal, we propose to recognize the necessity for allowing reasonable time for departmental reference and the uselessness of insisting upon merely official affidavits.

Clause 425.—We propose to declare once for all that a public officer sued in respect of an act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity, is not to be arrested at all even with the consent of the District Judge. We have accordingly omitted this clause and amalgamated its substance with clause 428.

Clause 426.—We have consolidated clauses 426 and 427 as relating to the same subject-matter.

Clause 428.—In this clause, with which clause 425 has been combined, we have sought to remove a verbal inconsistency, which is to be found in the present Code, between that clause and the proviso to clause 427, now incorporated in clause 426. We have substituted the expression "where the Court is satisfied" to remove the misapprehension that, at present, the public officer is bound personally to satisfy the Court of his inability to attend.

Clause 547.—We have transferred hither the provisions relating to security in the case of an appeal inasmuch as they appear to us to be misplaced in Chapter XLI of the Code.

CHAPTER XXIX.

SUITS BY ALIENS AND BY OR AGAINST FOREIGN AND NATIVE RULERS.

Clause 430A, sub-clause (2).—To render the meaning clearer, we have removed to an explanation the exception relating to prisoners of war and other prisoners.

Clause 433.— In sub-clause (4), for the word "any", where it first occurred, we have substituted the word "a" to remove the misapprehension that the Governor General in Council must, in the case of each notification, authorize a particular Secretary.

CHAPTER XXX.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST CORPORATIONS AND COMPANIES.

Clause 435.—We have omitted the word "principal" in response to suggestions from the Province of Madras with a view to avoiding disputes [Delhi and London Bank Limited, v. Oldham (1893), I. L. R. 21 Cal. 60 ; Sreenath Banerjee v. East Indian Railway Company (1894), I. L. R. 22 Cal. 268] with regard to the classes of officers fitly described as "principal".

Clause 436A.—Sub-clause (2) has been added to make it clear that a corporation or company suffers in the suit for the default of its officer as though such default were its own.

CHAPTER XXXI.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

Clauses 438 and 439.—We have added a reference to trustees in view of the terms of clause 437.

CHAPTER XXXII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST MINORS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND.

The corresponding Chapter of the existing Code follows a most confused arrangement. We have sought to collect the various provisions into a sequence which, we hope, will be found more readily intelligible.

Clause 440.—We propose to abolish the distinction drawn [Beni Ram Bhutt v. Ram Lal Dhukri (1886), I. L. R. 13 Cal. 189] between orders removing plaints from the list of pending cases because they appear on their face to have been filed by minors, and decrees dismissing suits which are found upon the enquiry to have been so instituted. To prevent hardship where the fact of minority is ascertained on inquiry after the period of limitation for instituting a suit has expired, we propose, by an addition to clause 588, to give a right of appeal from orders under clause 440. We further do not consider it necessary to provide specially for the case, adverted to by the High Court at Bombay [Rattonbai v. Chabildas Lalloobhoy (1888), I. L. R. 13 Bom. 7] and incorporated in clause 442, sub-clause (3), as originally drafted, of a plaint proved to have been filed with the knowledge of the fact of minority and with the intention of deceiving the Court and evading payment of costs in the event of failure.

Clause 443.—Sub-clause (4) has been amplified for closer conformity with the terms of the proposed Form No. 157A.

Clause 445.—We propose to remove the disability, for which we see no adequate necessity, of a married woman under the existing section 457.

With regard to sub-clause (2), we think that a guardian appointed or declared by competent authority should continue to have preference over outsiders ; but, as between such guardians, we would enact that the guardian of property should ordinarily have preference over the guardian of the person.

Clause 441.—With reference to sub-clause (1), we think that a next friend should have all such general powers of acting on the minor's behalf in the conduct of the case as are conferred upon the guardian for the suit by the existing section 443.

While maintaining the existing provisions of section 440 relative to the payment of costs on behalf of a minor, we think it expedient to adapt, in sub-clause (2), the provisions of Order XLV, rule 13, by which the Court may put an official guardian for the suit in funds to make the necessary orders directing such costs to be borne by any party, or out of any fund of the minor under the control of the Court.

Clause 462.—We propose to supersede the distinction [Aman Singh v. Narain Singh (1897), I. L. R. 20 All. 98] according to which a decree passed in pursuance of an agreement or compromise can be set aside in appeal merely for failure to comply with the provisions of section 462, whereas, if the compromise is contested by the minor either by a suit by his next friend or on attainment of majority by review or regular suit, it is not enough to show that the sanction of the Court was not expressly given where the guardian ad litem has assented to a compromise accepted by the Court and resulting in a decree not prejudicial to the minor's interests. For this purpose, we would place appeals on the same footing as the other remedies.

With reference to the explanation, we propose to give legislative recognition to the interpretation that an agreement with reference to the suit includes an agreement to abide by an oath [Chengal Reddi v. Venkata Reddi (1889), I. L. R. 12 Mad. 483; Sheo Nath Saran v. Sukh Lal Singh (1899), I. L. R. 27 Cal. 229] or to refer to arbitration [Lakshmana Chetti v. Chinnathambi Chetti (1900), I. L. R. 24 Mad. 326].

Clause 455A.—We propose to extend the provisions of this Chapter to proceedings other than suits, and, in view of the amendments proposed with reference to set-off and counter-claim, to include these also within their purview.

Clause 464A.—It appears to us that orders for the payment of money under this Chapter should be summarily enforceable as if they were decrees. At present, the procedure applicable is somewhat doubtful.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST FIRMS AND PERSONS CARRYING ON BUSINESS IN NAMES OTHER THAN THEIR OWN.

On consideration of the opinions of the authorities consulted with reference to the necessity for the imposition of limitations upon the application of this Chapter to specific areas or particular classes, we think that the simplified procedure here proposed can properly be applied to all the territories in which the Code is to be enforced. At the same time, we recognize the force of the objections taken to the suggestion to render the Chapter applicable to the members of joint Hindu families carrying on trading business which form portion of the general assets. On the whole, we are of opinion that effect should be given to existing case-law declaring that members of a joint Hindu family, who are partners for the purposes of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 (IX of 1872), have not, by reason of their personal law, advantages not existing in the case of other partners. Following this principle, we propose that the provisions of this Chapter should not be extended to members of joint Hindu families as such though they will apply to partnerships, notwithstanding that the partnership consists of members of such a family.

Clause 469A.—We have inserted sub-clause (2) to meet a practical difficulty of procedure pointed out to us by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce with regard to the signing and verifying of documents where the litigants in question are a firm.

Clause 469AA.—The provision here proposed, on the strong recommendation of the Chambers of Commerce of Karachi and Bengal, follows to some extent the lines of the Indian Securities Act, 1886 (XII of 1886), section 5, and will, it is hoped, settle an extremely vexed question in the sense of rulings from Allahabad [Gobind Prasad v. Chandar Sekhar (1887), I. L. R. 9 All. 486; Debi Das v. Nirpat (1898), I. L. R. 20 All. 365], Madras [Vaidyanatha Ayyar v. Chinnasami Naik (1893), I. L. R. 17 Mad. 108] and Bombay [Motilal Bechardass v. Ghellabhai Hariram (1892), I. L. R. 17 Bom. 6; Aga Gulam Husain v. Sir A. D. Sassoon (1897), I. L. R. 21 Bom. 412] as against the view entertained at Calcutta [Ram Narain Nursing Doss v. Ram Chunder Jankee Loll (1890), I. L. R. 18 Cal. 86].

Clause 469D.—In sub-clause (1), paragraph (a), we have sought to meet objections that power is required to execute a decree against property outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree. We have added in a proviso a reference to the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, relating to the exemption from personal liability of a minor partner which otherwise might possibly be overlooked.

In sub-clause (3) we have declared, for convenience of procedure, that orders determining the liability of any person shall be capable of appeal and execution as if they were decrees.

CHAPTER XXXV.

INTERPLEADER.

Clause 470.—In defining the scope of this provision, we have referred to debts and sums of money and other moveable property as an indication of the ordinary cases arising under Order LVII, rule 1. At the same time, we find that the procedure here provided has been adopted with great benefit in relation to immoveable property held by the Court of Wards in the character of a stakeholder. We accordingly propose to render it clear that the provision is not confined, as has often been supposed (Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, ed. 1888, Vol. II, p. 646), to moveable property only. We think, moreover, that the bar created by the proviso should not be restricted to suits but should extend to other proceedings also.

Clause 472.—The procedure by payment or deposit is plainly not applicable to immoveable property to which clause 470, as redrafted, declares the provisions of the Chapter to extend. We have accordingly worded this clause as permissive instead of leaving it imperative as at present.

PART V.

PROVISIONAL REMEDIES.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

OF ARREST AND ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGMENT.

From the title we have removed the words "except as regards immoveable property" as inconsistent with the explanation to clause 483.

Clause 477.—We have amalgamated sub-clauses (1) and (2) which appear to us to be illogical as requiring a plaintiff to satisfy the Court of certain facts before he makes an application founded thereon. We think that, after the application has been presented, the Court should be satisfied of the facts before process is issued and should have a discretion to make such further inquiry, if any, as may appear to be desirable.

We have added a proviso to guard against the hardship of arrest where payment of any sum specified in the warrant is made to the officer executing it. It appears to us that in such circumstances it is quite unnecessary to drag the defendant in custody before the Court.

We have omitted the concluding passage of sub-clause (4) of the Bill as originally drafted because we consider it to be sufficiently covered by the provisions of clause 253.

Clause 481.—We have rendered it clear that, though the penalty is for contempt of a judicial order, the detention here contemplated is to be in the civil prison.

Clause 491A.—We have transferred this provision to what we consider a more appropriate position in the Code.

Clause 483.—We have amalgamated sub-clauses (1) and (3) for conformity with clause 477 as amended.

There is at present a conflict on the question whether the terms of the existing sections 483 and 484, read with section 648, do [Ram Pertab Jhowar v. Madho Rai (1902), 7 Cal. W. N. 216] or do not [Krishnasami v. Engel (1884), I. L. R. 8 Mad. 20] authorize the Court to attach property beyond jurisdiction. We think that the difficulty does not arise under our redraft of sub-clause (1), but, for greater clearness, we have expanded the explanation so as to give effect expressly to the Calcutta practice.

Clause 488.—The proviso which was intended to give effect to a ruling [Ram Chand v. Pitam Mal (1888), I. L. R. 10 All. 506] has been omitted because, in the case of attachments governed by clause 274, the order ceases to operate by the efflux of a specific period.

Clause 490.—We have introduced a reference to the subsistence of the attachment for the sake of conformity with clause 275 as proposed to be amended.

Clause 490A.—The exemption of growing crops from attachment before judgment would serve little purpose if the same crops are liable to attachment as soon as they are cut or gathered.

Clause 491.—It has been brought to our notice that the existing proviso is inadequate inasmuch as suits for compensation have been removed from the cognizance of Courts of Small Causes. In these circumstances, we have added a proviso fixing a pecuniary limit in the case of Courts incompetent to try such suits.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

OF TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS AND INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

Clause 492.—The expression "wrongfully", which savours of a tortious act, cannot be properly applied to a judicial sale, and we have accordingly proposed to substitute the word "improperly". The addition of the words "until the suit is disposed of or until the further order of the Court" is intended to give effect to two decisions on the subject [Shaikh Moheeooddeen v. Shaikh Ahmed Hossein (1870), 14 W. R. 384; Gossain Money Puree v. Guru Pershad Singh (1884), I. L. R. 11 Cal. 146].

Clause 493.—In sub-clause (1), for the words "a breach" and "other injury" or "injury," wherever they occur, we have substituted the words "any breach" and "tortious act", respectively, to supersede an Allahabad decision [Darab Kuar v. Gomti Kuar (1900), I. L. R. 22 All. 449], which has been criticized as of doubtful authority [compare, Earl of Mexborough v. Bower (1843), 7 Beav. 127; Hervey v. Smith (1855), 1 K. & J. 389].

We have remodelled sub-clause (3) to give effect to a Bombay decision [The Advocate General of Bombay v. Gangji Akhai (1894), I. L. R. 19 Bom. 152, at p. 155]; but, as in other cases, we would limit the penalty to detention in the civil prison.

Clause 498.—The benefit of the provisions of this clause should plainly be claimable in the case of attachment before judgment.

Clause 499.—To obviate difficulties arising in practice we propose to authorize the Court to inventory the property.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS.

Clause 503.—In sub-clause (2), paragraph (e), we have substituted the expression "officer of the Court appointed to be receiver of estates" for the words "official receiver" which have been misunderstood as covering any official who happens, for the purposes of a particular suit or attachment, to be appointed to be the receiver of specific property.

Sub-clause (3) of the Bill as originally drafted has been omitted because the underlying case-law [Sidheswari Dabi v. Abhoyeswari Dabi (1888), I. L. R. 15 Cal. 818; Chandidat Jha v. Padmanand Singh Bahadur (1895), I. L. R. 22 Cal. 459] appears to us to be too stringent for incorporation in the Code.

In sub-clauses (4) and (5) we propose to authorize a summary method of recovery by attachment of the property of the receiver, though we feel ourselves unable to extend this remedy to a surety also, because moneys paid over to a receiver are not in the hands of a private person but in custodia legis [compare, Orr v. Muthia Chetti (1893), I. L. R. 17 Mad 501; Muthia Chetti v. Orr (1895-1897), I. L R. 20 Mad. 224], whereas the determination of a surety's liability is a proper subject for a suit.

Clause 504.—Sub-clause (2) was originally drafted to give effect to a practice in many Courts of notifying to the Collector the appointment of a receiver of property paying revenue to the Government. While admitting the convenience of such a practice, we do not think it necessary to render it compulsory in all cases. We have accordingly omitted the sub-clause.

Clause 505.—Sub-clause (3) is intended to remove the ambiguity of the existing proviso and to supersede a decision from Allahabad [Amar Nath v. Raj Nath (1896), I. L. R. 18 All. 453] while giving effect to a ruling from Calcutta [Birajan Kooer v. Ram Churn Lall Mahata (1881), I. L. R. 7 Cal. 719].

PART VI.

OF SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

We have prefixed sub-titles to portions of this Chapter for facility of reference.

Clause 506.—We consider the provisions of this Chapter to be equally applicable to suits and other proceedings.

In sub-clause (2) we have omitted the word "particular" because a general reference relating to "all matters" in dispute is contemplated by Forms Nos. 170 and 171 of the Third Schedule.

We have added sub-clause (3) to give effect to the principle enunciated by Their Lordships of the Privy Council [Pestonjee Nussurwanjee v. Manockjee (1868), 12 Moo. I. A. 112, at page 130] that an agreement to refer to arbitration cannot be revoked by any party without good cause and that a mere arbitrary revocation will not be permitted by the Court.

Clause 507.—Sub-clause (2) of the original Bill has been omitted in view of the terms of clause 510 as redrafted.

Clauses 508 and 509.—The word "making" has been substituted for the word "delivery" in view of a decision of the High Court at Madras [Arumugam Chetti v. Arunachalam Chetti (1898), I. L. R. 22 Mad. 22]. A similar amendment will be found in clause 514.

Clause 510.—We have amalgamated clause 507, sub-clause (2), clause 510 and clause 511 on the analogy of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899 (IX of 1899), section 8, and have provided that the powers of the Court shall not be exercised until the parties have failed to act within a reasonable period. This principle, however, cannot be applied to the misconduct of an arbitrator in its entirety; and we have accordingly provided in sub-clause (1), paragraph (b), sub-head (iv), for the case not of misconduct but of removal by the Court; and we have inserted clause 512A, on the analogy of section 16 of the enactment already quoted, to enable the Court to remove an arbitrator or an umpire for misconduct. We do not think that it is necessary to preserve the power which is given by the concluding passage of the existing section 510 but has no counterpart in the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, to make an order superseding the arbitration in the cases referred to in this provision.

Clause 514.—The recital of causes in the existing section appears to us mere surplusage. We have, moreover, omitted the parentheses inserted in the Bill, because we think that, in the absence of an absolute discretion conferred on the Court, one party or the other is certain to object to the enlargement of the time.

Clause 516.—We think it embarrassing and unnecessary to exact signature from dissentient arbitrators.

In connection with this clause and clause 525 we have proposed, by an amendment of the Fourth Schedule, the substitution of two articles for the existing article 176 of the Second Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877. It has been pointed out to us that this article, in so far as it refers to section 516, is inaccurate because that section does not provide for an application by parties since the award is filed under the orders of the Court [Maharajah Sir Joy Mungul Singh v. Mohun Ram Marwaree (1869), 12 W.R. 397; Roberts v. Harrison (1881), I. L. R. 7 Cal. 333]. On the other hand, there is no provision for limitation in the case of an application under section 523. In respect of clause 525, the Bill proposes to exclude all the concurrent remedies which at present exist outside the limits of this Chapter. In these circumstances, hardship may arise if limitation is declared to run from the date of the award. It may happen, for example, that the award provides for the payment of a first instalment after the lapse of one year, or the parties may for years together act upon the terms of the award without infringing them. If, in these cases, the parties are strictly limited to a period of six months commencing to run from the date of the award, the result will be that they will be driven to the trouble and expense of a judicial proceeding long before any necessity for it arises. In fact, it would appear that, more especially in the case of conciliation proceedings, a large number of claims under awards would probably become time-barred before the provisions of the proposed Code are familiar, at any rate, to the lower classes. For these reasons it is proposed to declare in article 176A that limitation shall run from the date on which any right given by the award is infringed by the person against whom it is sought to enforce such award.

Clause 520.—In paragraph (a) we propose to obviate the necessity for remitting awards for the elimination of obvious irrelevancy.

Clause 521.—On the analogy of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, section 16, we have provided for the case in which the arbitration or the award has been improperly procured. In view of this addition, paragraph (b) of the Bill, as originally drafted, becomes unnecessary.

Clause 523.—There seems no reason to insist, in sub-clause (3), upon the issue of a notice where the Court on the materials before it sees reason to dismiss the application without further discussion.

Clause 523A.—The language adapted from the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, section 19, has been slightly modified as being more in harmony with the practice of the Presidency Courts than with the other provisions of this Code.

Clause 525.—From sub-clause (3), which we have re-arranged as sub-clause (4), the word "otherwise" has been omitted because the filing of an award is not a mode of enforcement

Clause 526A.—We have slightly recast this section to render it clear that an appeal will lie on the ground that there has been no valid submission to arbitration or no valid award. In other respects we propose to affirm the principle embodied in the Bill that the grounds capable of being taken in appeal against proceedings under this Chapter must relate to the failure of the Court to perform a duty imposed upon it or to exercise properly a discretion conferred upon it.

CHAPTER XLI.

OF SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

Clause 532.—Sub-clause (3) has been modified to meet a representation of the Madras Chamber of Commerce to the effect that a maximum rate of interest should be fixed in the Code where no rate is specified in the negotiable instrument.

Our attention has been directed to an unreported decision [per Amir Ali, J., Bhugutram v. Rajah Sir Surendro Mohun Tagore (1903)] in which the explanation, embodied as sub-clause (5) in the Bill, is criticized as unintelligible. The explanation, which is reproduced verbatim from Act X of 1877, was intended to supersede two decisions [The Chartered Mercantile Bank v. Seconde (1869), 3 B. L. R. (O. C.) 146; Remfry v. Shillingford (1876), I. L. R. 1 Cal. 130], necessitated, in the opinion of the High Court of Calcutta, by the terms of Act V of 1866, which that enactment repealed. Having regard to the practice of twenty-six years and to the terms of Order XIV of the Rules of the Supreme Court, we are strongly of opinion that there should be no reversion to the narrow scope of Act V of 1866, but that this summary and inexpensive process should be available, notwithstanding that the cause of action involves facts which, if not admitted by the defendant, would have to be proved by the plaintiff. As, however, we agree in thinking the explanation not to be readily intelligible without a knowledge of the superseded case-law, we have restated the rule and embodied as illustrations the facts of the decisions which it negatives.

CHAPTER XLII.

OF SUITS RELATING TO PUBLIC CHARITIES.

Clause 539.—For the words "public charitable or religious purposes" in sub-clause (1) we have substituted the words "public purposes of a charitable or religious nature" to obviate recurrence of the frequent misconception that "public" is merely co-ordinate with "charitable" or "religious."

Sub-clause (3) has been added because, though perhaps it is not strictly necessary, may serve to obviate barren discussions on the question whether action under this provision is necessary where a right of suit exists independently of it.

PART VII.

OF INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XLIII.

OF APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES.

Clause 540.—In sub-clause (3) we propose to supersede, in the sense of two rulings [Boloram Dey v. Ram Chundra Dey (1895), I. L. R 23 Cal. 279; Khadem Hossein v. Emdad Hossein (1901), I. L. R. 29 Cal. 758], the decision [Biswa Nath Chaki v. Bani Kanta Dutta (1896), I. L. R. 23 Cal. 406] to which the Bill originally proposed to give effect.

Clause 540A.—The words "or other proceeding" have been inserted in view of a Calcutta decision [Hira Lal Ghosh v. Chunder Kant Ghosh (1899), 3 Cal. W. N. 403] with reference to appeals from decrees under section 244.

We apprehend that inconvenience would be occasioned by the double inquiry contemplated by this provision as originally drafted. It appears to us that the reference to the Court which passed the decree is hardly necessary and that it would suffice to declare that the appellant-transferee shall set forth his title for the information of the Appellate Court, to whose satisfaction he shall be bound to prove his title before he can claim to be heard on the merits

Clauses 541 to 543F.—It has been represented to us, more especially from opinions given in the Central Provinces, that the procedure relative to the presentation of the memoranda of appeal and to their amendment and rejection is most inadequately stated in the Code. In fact, it is understood that the existing sections have to be largely supplemented by varying practice borrowed by analogy from the sections relating to plaints in suits. It is proposed, therefore, to adapt these provisions, so far as possible, for the guidance of Courts which are not always in a position to have ready access to law libraries. In making this adaptation, we have decided that the reasons for requiring as many copies of a plaint as there are defendants do not exist in the case of memoranda of appeal; and we accordingly propose not to require copies of the memorandum to be filed until, as provided in the addition to clause 552, sub-clause (1), the Court has determined not to dismiss the appeal summarily but to fix a day for the hearing.

Clause 542.—The general opinion appears to be that the case-law which it was sought to embody in clause 541, sub-clause (4), paragraph (b), of the Bill is too stringently expressed. In our opinion, the appellant should always be at liberty to raise questions of law arising upon the record, inasmuch as there can be no waiver in this respect. On the other hand, we are clearly of opinion that objections of fact not taken or taken and waived in the Lower Court should not be taken without the leave of the Appellate Court. Otherwise, it appears to us, the hearing will necessarily be prolonged by the necessity for remands upon questions of fact by which unscrupulous litigants attempt to surprise the adverse party in appeal and with reference to which protracted and expensive remands would become necessary.

Clause 545.—We have recast this provision to give effect to a ruling [Pasupati Nath Bose v. Nanda Lal Bose (1901), I. L. R. 28 Cal. 734] according to which not merely an incidental decree under appeal under section 244 but also the substantive decree under execution may be stayed under this provision. We think, moreover, that, following the principle of the decision [Multanchand Shivram v. Khan Saheb Kharsedji Nasarvanji (1891), I. L. R. 15 Bom. 536] underlying the amendments proposed in the original Bill, the Court should have the fullest discretion in the matter of stay, provided that no final order is made without notice to the decree-holder. We accordingly propose to give the Court a discretion to dispense with deposit of the decretal amount or security for the due performance of the decree or final order. We have further amplified the clause to render it clear that, where the Court considers immediate stay of execution to be necessary, it may make an ex parte order to the effect which will, however, be liable to be discharged after hearing the parties.

Clause 546.—Sub-clause (1) has been transferred to clause 238A and sub-clause (3) has been inserted after clause 327, as more appropriate positions in the Code.

Clause 547.—We have transferred this provision to Chapter XXVIII, to which the subject seems more appropriately to belong.

Clause 549.—Sub-clause (3), as originally drafted, was intended to embody and settle a considerable amount of case-law which has been the subject of much discussion and conflict. There seems, however, to be a feeling that it proceeds too far in the direction of instructions to the Courts, and that questions of this description should be left to be settled by the practice of the principal tribunals concerned. In these circumstances, we have proposed to omit the provision altogether.

Clause 550.—We think that this provision would more appropriately follow clause 552. It does not appear to us to be necessary that notice should be sent whenever a memorandum of appeal is registered as provided by clause 548. In our opinion it would suffice that such notice should be sent if the Appellate Court does not dismiss the appeal summarily under clause 551.

Clause 551.—We are of opinion that, before summarily dismissing an appeal without notice to the respondent, the Court should be expressly empowered to send for the record in accordance with the practice prescribed by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, section 421, sub-section (2).

Clause 552.—In sub-clause (1) we have provided that the appellant shall, within such time as the Court may direct, furnish as many copies on plain paper of the memorandum of appeal as there are respondents. This provision will harmonize the procedure with that prescribed in the case of plaints except that it will not be necessary to provide the copies until it is certain that process will issue to the respondent.

Clause 555.—It has been represented to us that sub-clause (1), paragraph (c), of the Bill was too widely expressed for the circumstances of litigation in Appellate Courts subordinate to the High Courts upon whose procedure the provision was originally modelled. It is accordingly proposed to limit the provision by declaring that the list shall contain only so many appeals as are set down for hearing within a specified period, and that it shall apply only to cases in which all the parties appearing are represented by pleader.

Sub-clause (3), which was intended to give effect to a Bombay decision [Rustomji Burjorji v. Kessowji (1884), I. L. R. 8 Bom. 287] has been omitted in view of opinions expressed to the effect that guidance on this point is not required by the Courts.

Clause 556.—We have relaxed the stringency of sub-clause (1) because it has been represented to us that, where parties are detained by some interruption of communication like a flood, the Court might reasonably adjourn the hearing without putting the appellant to the trouble and expense of a separate proceeding under clause 558.

Clauses 558 to 560.—The amendments, which are self-explanatory, are intended to meet difficulties disclosed by practice.

Clause 561.—The insertion of the provisions contained in sub-clause (4) have rendered it essential, by re-modelling sub-clause (2), to render objections liable to the court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal.

Sub-clause (3) has been modified to provide for the case of matters in controversy between parties arrayed on the same side.

Sub-clause (4) has been omitted because we propose, as explained under Chapter XLVI, to abolish the right to object in formâ pauperis.

Clause 562.—Exception has been taken to the expression "grounds other than the merits" which, in paragraph (a) as provisionally drafted, it was proposed to substitute for the words "preliminary point" on the authority of certain cases [Sheoambar Singh v. Lallu Singh, referred to in Sohawan v. Babu Nand (1886), I. L. R. 9 All. 26, note at p. 32; Muhammad Allahdad Khan v. Muhammad Ismail Khan (1888), I. L. R. 10 All. 289; Ramachandra Joishi v. Hasi Kassim (1892), I. L. R. 16 Mad. 207; Kanakammal v. Rangachariar (1896), I. L. R. 20 Mad. 25]. It may often happen [Habib Baksh v. Baldeo Prasad (1901), I. L. R. 23 All. 167] that a remand is necessary in a case in which there has been a decision upon a part of the merits, but the point determined does not, in the opinion of the Appellate Court, amount to a complete and effectual adjudication on the whole matter in controversy. It has been reported to us that the practice in various Provinces differs on the question whether evidence recorded in the proceedings leading up to the decree set aside under section 562 is in itself available as evidence during the retrial or whether it can only be made admissible, in the case of witnesses attending at the hearing, by examining them upon their previous depositions as statements recorded in a different proceeding. We are of opinion that, subject to all just exceptions, such depositions should, of their own force, be available as evidence.

Clause 565.—The scope of this clause is limited to cases in which the evidence upon the record is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to determine the suit. We are of opinion that, in such cases, the Appellate Court should have the power of requiring the Court of first instance, which has had the advantage of seeing and hearing the witnesses, to record its finding upon an issue which it has erroneously left undetermined.

Clause 571.—We have recast sub-clauses (1) and (2) with a view to leaving all questions of language to the operation of clause 645 and harmonizing the provisions with the procedure introduced in clause 198.

From sub-clause (4) we have omitted paragraph (a), which required a concise statement of the case, because we think that this can be sufficiently gathered from the judgment leading up to the decree appealed from.

The two provisos of this sub-clause were intended, in the interests of public time and economy, to prevent the writing of formal judgments, which really amount to repetition of the decision affirmed, on the principle now accepted in criminal cases [Rash Behari Das v. Balgopal Singh (1893), I. L. R. 21 Cal. 92; Queen-Empress v. Warubai (1895), I. L R. 20 Bom. 540; see also Queen-Empress v. Nannhu (1895), I. L R. 17 All. 241; Queen-Empress v. Pandeh Bhat (1897), I. L. R. 19 All. 506]. It was accordingly proposed to supersede a decision to the effect that a formal judgment must be recorded in dismissing a civil appeal summarily under section 551 [Rami Deka v. Brojo Nath Saikia (1897), I. L. R. 25 Cal. 97] and that reasons must be given [Sohawan v. Babu Nand (1886), I. L. R. 9 All. 26; Haimabati Dasi v. Govinda Chandra alias Sham Ghosh (1898), 2 Cal. W. N. 695], even though the Appellate Court generally agrees in the judgment of first instance [Khettur Mohun Gossain v. Bhyrub Chunder Sheet (1865), 3 W. R. 126; Bhagbut Khan v. Puddo Bewa (1865), 3 W. R. 192; Korban Ali v. Ashan Ali alias Lott Ali (1865), 4 W. R. 4; Sitarama Sastrulu v. Suryanarayana Sastrulu (1898), I. L. R 22 Mad. 12]. There appears, however, to be a strong feeling that, even in the case of summary dismissal, a record of reasons affords a necessary safeguard against hasty or negligent methods of disposal. In these circumstances, both the provisos have been omitted.

Clause 575.—We have harmonized the language of sub-clause (4) in view of the alteration introduced into sub clause (2).

Clause 578A.—This provision, which reproduced the language of the Suits Valuation Act, 1887 (VII of 1887), section 11, has been criticized as needlessly elaborate; and it has been pointed out more especially that paragraph (b) of sub-clause (1), as originally drafted, is unnecessary because, as a matter of practice, over-valuation or under-valuation of a suit or appeal can in no way affect the disposal of the suit or appeal on the merits. We have accordingly omitted this paragraph and proposed a consequential redraft in a simplified form of the whole provision.

Sub-clause (4) we propose to omit; and its substance will be found reproduced in an addition to clause 622.

Clause 579.—The proviso to sub-clause (1), as originally drafted, proposed to relieve Judges dissenting from the decision of the duty of signing the decree. We see no necessity for providing for this matter.

Clause 579A.—We have added sub-clause (4) to give effect to the existing practice according to which the decree of the Appellate Court is deemed for all purposes relating to execution to be the decree of the Court of first instance.

Clause 579B.—We have recast this provision to render it clear that not merely the powers of amendment but also the appellate remedies given by clause 206A are to apply to decrees of the Appellate Court.

The proviso in the Bill, as originally drafted, proposed to make a sacrifice of strictly logical principle for the convenience of suitors by obviating the necessity for elaborate and expensive references to the High Court or to the District Judge where the decree sought to be amended has been simply affirmed on appeal. In view of the opposition disclosed in the opinions of authorities consulted, we feel constrained to revert to the principle underlying the existing case-law, that the decree of the Court of first instance is superseded by the appellate decree, which alone is capable of amendment and can, therefore, be amended only by the Court passing it.

Clause 582A.—We have omitted this provision, the substance of which it is proposed to reproduce in clause 543A and in Chapter XLVII.

Clause 583.—In sub-clause (1) the expression "suit contemplated by Chapter XIX", now XX, has been criticized as too general. We think that it will be more in accordance with the usages of statutory draftsmanship to limit the provision to suits "a right to which is expressly given or order expressly saved" by the provisions referred to.

We have slightly altered the language of sub-clause (2) in order to avoid a possible misconception in connection with its application to second appeals by virtue of the operation of clause 587. It might be gathered that, where an appellate decree is reversed in second appeal, the application for execution would have to be made to the Court of intermediate appeal.

In regard to sub-clause (4), we think that the powers here given should not be exercised by the Court of its own motion but should be limited to cases in which the party desiring restitution applies for it.

CHAPTER XLIV.

OF APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES.

Clause 584.—In sub-clause (1), paragraph (c), the words "or enactment for the time being in force" were inserted to prevent recurrence of the misconception that, on the ejusdem generis principle, "law" is limited to "written law" of the same nature as the Code. We have omitted the words in two places because we consider the meaning of "law" to be sufficiently explicit.

In sub-clause (2) we have, with respect to suits of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, restored the existing minimum valuation of five hundred rupees now prescribed by section 586. On the other hand, we propose to take the subject-matter of the appeal, and not that of the original suit, to be, as is partly the case with appeals to His Majesty in Council, the test of appealability.

With regard to other suits, we are of opinion that the imposition of a hard and fast money limit would be productive of hardship. For the purposes of court-fees, land is valued at a specially low figure; and many suits, such as those for declarations, are assessed a fixed duty of ten rupees, although, in such cases, a second appeal ought not to be excluded. We accordingly propose to allow a second appeal in all cases, not of a nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, in which the value or subject-matter of the original suit exceeds one hundred rupees or the decree appealed from involves a claim to, or question respecting, property exceeding such value. Below this limit, we would authorize the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council for the sake of preventing avoidable divergences of practice, to bar the right of second appeal in any class of cases in which they are of opinion that the decree of the Court of first appeal ought to be final. As, however, such action would have the effect of barring rights actually existing, we think that the Local Government should be bound to publish a draft of its proposed notification for previous criticism.

We have omitted the provisions of the Bill relating to security for second appeals in the case of concurrent decrees. A respondent decree-holder is at liberty, under clause 545, to execute his decree notwithstanding the preferment of an appeal; and, if the appellant desires a stay of such execution, the same provision already authorizes the taking of security. To compel the Courts to take security in every second appeal might, we think, debar the poorer classes of litigants from their remedy even where the illegality is patent on the face of the decree.

Clause 585.—We think that the proviso to clause 585, as originally drafted, should be enacted as a substantive proposition.

Clause 587.—We recognize the necessity for careful scrutiny of second appeals before their admission. It would, however, be a waste of labour to take action under clause 551 if the appeal, on the face of it, cannot be summarily dismissed. We would leave it to the High Courts to determine whether notice should or should not be issued to the respondent without a preliminary hearing of the appellant.

CHAPTER XLV.

OF APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

Clause 588.—On the representation of the various Chartered High Courts, we have considerably shortened the list of appealable orders.

Sub-heads (1) to (5), (9), (10), (13), (14), (22) and (26) of the original Bill have been altogether omitted.

So much of sub-heads (6) and (11), now re-numbered (1) and (5), as relate to return for purposes of amendment does not appear to us to be required. In fact, we have altogether struck out of sub-head (11) so much as related to rejection or return of a written statement, in regard to which we think that proceedings should not be delayed by a separate appeal.

Sub-head (7), now re-numbered (2), we have amplified by a reference to clause 99, which seems to us to stand, for the present purpose, on the same footing as clause 103.

Sub-head (8), now re-numbered (3), should, like sub-head (7), now re-numbered (2), be limited to cases open to appeal.

With reference to sub-head (15), now re-numbered (6), we see no reason why a right of appeal should be given against the sale of property attached entirely for purposes of a coercive process to enforce attendance.

Sub-head (19), as amplified by us in the present sub-head (10), will supersede a decision [Rahima v. Nepal Rai (1892), I. L. R. 14 All. 520] according to which an order under the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (IV of 1882), section 7, postponing the day appointed for payment is at present a decree open to first and second appeal. In our opinion, the order of the Court of first appeal should be final and conclusive whether the order which it is sought to impeach extends or refuses to extend the time for the payment of mortgage-money.

With regard to sub-head (24), now re-numbered (14), we think that any order under section 372, whether it does or does not disallow an objection, should be open to one appeal only.

Sub-head (16), as newly inserted by us, is necessary because, in clause 440, we have proposed to supersede a Calcutta ruling [Beni Ram Bhutt v. Ram Lal Dhukri (1886), I. L. R. 13 Cal. 189] according to which a suit instituted by an unrepresented minor must, if the fact of minority does not appear on the face of the plaint but is discovered after inquiry, be dismissed by a decree open to first and second appeal. Our suggestion is to extend to such cases the procedure of taking the plaint off the list of pending cases ; but, if a right of appeal is not given, hardship might arise where the fact of minority is discovered after the period of limitation has expired.

Sub-head (26) has been omitted by us on the ground that an application to institute or continue a suit as a pauper is a matter of grace with respect to which the Court's discretion should be final.

By an addition to sub-head (29), now re-numbered (19), we propose, in cases other than those tried by a Court of Small Causes, to allow a single appeal against orders regarding compensation for improper arrest or attachment prior to judgment. We see, however, no reason why an order discharging a surety under clause 480 or directing a deposit of money or other property under clause 502 should be liable to be impeached by appeal.

Our suggested sub-head (22) will supersede decisions [Gulab Rai v. Mangli Lal (1884), I. L. R. 7 All. 42 ; Gunga Dass Dey v. Ramjoy Dey (1885), I. L. R. 12 Cal. 30] declaring a decision rejecting an appeal as time-barred to be a decree. We think that in this instance, as also in the case of rejection of appeal under clause 543A or clause 549, one appeal furnishes an adequate remedy.

Sub-head (23), as proposed by us, seeks to place orders returning a memorandum of appeal under clause 543F upon the same footing as corresponding orders returning a plaint under sub-head (1).

We have declared the operation of sub-clause (2) to be "subject to the provisions of Chapter XLVII" because, without this qualification, the expression "final and conclusive", as now defined in clause 2, paragraph (j), will preclude right of appeal to the Privy Council.

Clause 589.—We have omitted the proviso because we propose to exclude the existing sub-head (17) of clause 588, relating to insolvency matters, from the Bill.

Clause 591.—We think that the "errors, difficulties or irregularities" here referred to should be limited to those affecting the decision of the case "on the merits" [Chintamony Dassi v. Raghoonath Sahoo (1895), I. L. R. 22 Cal. 981]. The words "from which no separate appeal lies under this Code" were imported into the Bill to supersede the very numerous rulings to the effect that there is no law in India compelling a party to resort to a right of appeal from an interlocutory order under the penalty of forfeiting the power to impugn such order in appeal from the final decree. Having abandoned this principle in clause 540, sub-clause (3), in the case of preliminary and final decrees, we do not feel justified in insisting upon it in the case of orders appealable under clause 588. It may be added that, in view of the removal of most of the interlocutory orders at present included in section 588, the retention of these words is not a matter of great importance.

CHAPTER XLVI.

OF PAUPER APPEALS.

Clause 592.—We do not think that the exceptional liberty of moving a Court in formâ pauperis should extend to objections to appeals.

CHAPTER XLVII.

OF APPEALS TO THE KING IN COUNCIL.

Clause 596.—From sub-clause (2) we have omitted the words "each final and conclusive" in view of the definition proposed in clause 2, paragraph (j).

Clause 608.—From sub-clause (1) we have omitted the words "admitting the appeal" inasmuch as they create a difficulty of interpretation for the removal of which a decision [Dame Janbai v. Sale Mahomed (1894), I. L. R. 19 Bom. 10] was required.

Clause 610.—We have redrafted sub-clause (3) to supersede a ruling from Madras [Arunachellam v. Arunachellam (1891), I. L. R. 15 Mad. 203; see, also Surjoo Das v. Balmakund Das (1895), I. L. R. 23 Cal. 212].

Clause 611.—Our redraft of the opening portion of this provision covers the substance of clause 2, sub-clause (1), paragraph (f), sub-head (xii) [compare, In the Matter of the Petition of Kally Soondery Dabia (1881), I. L. R. 6 Cal. 594] standing in the Bill as originally drafted.

Clause 615.—This provision, which has been reproduced at the various revisions of the Code from the Privy Council Appeals Act, 1874 (IV of 1874), section 24, has long had reference to an entirely obsolete procedure. Bengal Regulation III of 1828, section IV, has disappeared from the statute book by the passing of the Repealing and Amending Act, 1903 (I of 1903). In these circumstances, we propose the omission of clause 615.

PART VIII.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

OF REFERENCES TO THE HIGH COURT.

Clause 619.—At the suggestion of the High Court for the North-Western Provinces we have relaxed the existing language of the Code, which, if strictly interpreted, requires a hearing of the parties even though they have not appeared.

Clauses 646A and 646B.—We have transferred these provisions from the existing Chapter XLIX in which they appear to us to be misplaced.

CHAPTER XLIX.

OF REVISION BY THE HIGH COURT.

Clause 622.—Paragraph (a) of sub-clause (1) has been redrafted in accordance with the principles adopted with reference to clauses 578 and 578A.

In paragraph (c), the language, which has been criticized as cumbrous, has been slightly modified.

Sub-clause (2), as added by us, reproduces the substance of sub-clause (4), which we propose to omit from clause 578A.

The Bill as originally drafted proposed, by an entry in the Second Schedule, to render the provisions of this Chapter applicable to Provincial Courts of Small Causes. The opinions of authorities consulted appear to be in favour of adhering to the wider provisions of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 (IX of 1887), section 25. We have accordingly expunged the entry from the Schedule.

PART IX.

CHAPTER L.

OF REVIEW.

Clause 623.—Sub-clauses (3) and (4) aim at providing for a procedure in two cases with respect to which the existing Code is silent [compare Bharat Chandra Masumdar v. Ramgunga Sen (1866), B. L. R. (F. B.) 362; Thacoor Prosad v. Baluck Ram (1882), 12 C. L. R. 64].

Clause 624.—We have placed arithmetical on the same footing as clerical errors, and have somewhat shortened sub-clause (2) for the purpose of closer conformity with clause 623.

Clause 625.—At present, it is not necessary that an application for review should be accompanied by a copy of the judgment, decree or order sought to be reviewed [Wajid Ali Shah v. Nawal Kishore (1893), I. L. R. 17 All 213]. This position is inconvenient in so far as the Court cannot summarily decide whether the application is time-barred and the applicant is not entitled to exclude from the period of limitation the time occupied in obtaining a copy. We propose, therefore, to assimilate the procedure to that prescribed by clause 541 in the case of appeals.

PART X.

CHAPTER LI.

SPECIAL RULES RELATING TO CHARTERED HIGH COURTS.

Clause 638.—The omission of a reference to section 185A in the present Code seems to be due to inadvertence. We have added references to the proviso to clause 220, sub-clause (2), and to clause 571, which are not in accordance with the rules and the practice of the High Court of Calcutta.

PART XI.

CHAPTER LII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Clause 645.—Doubts have been entertained on the question whether the existing provisions of the Code, which authorize the Local Government to declare what shall be the language of the Court, also authorize it to declare in what character that language shall be written. We are of opinion that, if the Local Government is to determine the language to be employed, it should also be empowered to decide which character is likely to be most convenient.

In sub-clause (3) we have sought to deal broadly with the general question of the use of English in place of any other language of the Court. In our opinion, there is no objection to the use of English as the medium of any written proceeding of the Court or of the parties other than the recording of evidence, provided that reasonable facilities for obtaining translations into the language of the Court are afforded to the parties or pleaders not acquainted with English.

Clause 649.—Clause 653 has been transferred to follow clause 337 in Chapter XX as a more appropriate position in the Code. In these circumstances, we have inserted, in clause 649, a reference to the provisions of Chapter XX relating to detention in the civil prison.

The explanation to clause 649, having already been reproduced as clause 222C, has here been omitted.

Clause 649A.—We have throughout accepted the principle that acts committed in the course of civil proceedings should not render any person liable to confinement in the criminal prison without the benefit of an independent trial before a Magistrate. In the absence of special provision, however, default in paying a fine imposed by a Civil Court will, by the operation of the General Clauses Act, 1897, section 25, entail imprisonment in accordance with the Indian Penal Code, sections 63 and 70, and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. The view which commends itself to us is that the defaulter should be detained in the civil prison, as nearly as may be, in the same manner and for the like period as if he were detained in execution of a decree. If the fine is imposed for an act in the nature of a contempt, no question of process-fees or diet-money should ordinarily arise; but, where the Court acts at the instance of a private party and the fine is virtually a step in civil litigation, the Judge should, we think, have the power to treat the matter not merely as if the order were a decree but also as if the party were a decree-holder liable to deposit the necessary amount. In such cases, the general provisions relative to release should apply with this important exception, that the prisoner should not be entitled to escape punishment by having recourse to the insolvency provisions.

In examining the provisions of the Bill our attention has been directed to a number of clauses in which power is given to the Court to fix a period or to give or allow time for the performance of any act by a party. On the strength of the facts underlying reported decisions, the clauses have been expanded to render it clear, in some cases, that the period or time may be extended and, in others, that this power of extension may be exercised even though the original period or time has expired. We are of opinion that uniformity in this matter is of the utmost importance because it may not impossibly be argued that the express conferment of these powers in certain cases negatives them by necessary implication in others. It may be contended, for example, that there is no power of extension where a period has been fixed under clauses 93 (2), 95, 110 (2), 116 (1), 263 (7), 370, proviso, 380 (1) and 605 (1). It has been suggested to us that this difficulty could be removed by enacting, in the Miscellaneous Chapter, an express provision to the effect that, "where, by any provision of this Code, a power is given to the Court to fix any period or to give or allow time for the performance of any act by any party to a suit or other proceeding, the Court may, from time to time, extend such period or time, even though the original period or time has expired." If a provision to this effect were enacted, the whole of clauses 54AA and 543C, and so much of clauses 54B, 113, 541 (2), proviso, 543BB, proviso, 549 (3) and 625A, proviso, as purports to confer a power of extension would be superfluous. On the other hand, it has been represented that, for the purpo ses of actual practice, it is inconvenient to have to refer to the Miscellaneo Chapter for provisions which, by reason of their generality, are apt to be overlooked. Should this view be adopted, it would become necessary, at the risk of some repetition, to render each provision complete in itself. We think that the choice between these alternatives might conveniently be considered by the authorities consulted when the Bill i rep ublished for further criticism.

THE SCHEDULES.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

At the request of the Government of Bombay, we have substituted a revised schedule in view of the amendments suggested in clauses 4, 6 and 7.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

We have omitted the reference to Chapter XLVIA, now re-numbered XLIX, for reasons indicated under clause 622.

THE THIRD SCHEDULE

Some degree of re-arrangement has been necessitated by the redistribution of Chapter XIX, now re-numbered XX.

Form No. 134.—This certificate, which is no longer required under the precept system, has been omitted with clause 224

Form No. 144.—This form will no longer be required as the procedure under clause 278, as revised by us, is assimilated to that in suits.

Form No. 151.—In consequence of the amendments introduced into clause 316, the holder of the certificate, who is entitled to the order of the Court under clause 318, will no longer be necessarily the actual purchaser.

Form No. 155.—We have adapted this form for use under clause 379A.

Form No. 158.—The amendments imported into clause 477 render it necessary to harmonize this form with Form No. 154 and to specify the amount upon payment of which the defendant may escape arrest.

Form No. 173.—A "demand of judgment" has been added, on the analogy of the forms for plaints, in view of clause 541A, paragraph (f).

THE FOURTH SCHEDULE.

The Court-fees Act, 1870.—The enlarged provisions of clause 111 relating to set-off and counter-claim render it expedient to place written statements raising such pleas on the same footing as plaints for the purposes of court-fees leviable under Schedule I, article 1.

Orders rejecting plaints will, in future, be decrees under clause 2, paragraph (g), sub-head (i), of the Bill In these circumstances, the reference in Schedule II, article 11, to an "order rejecting a plaint" is no longer accurate.

Schedule II, article 18, contains an obsolete reference to section 326 of Act VIII of 1859, which has to be read, in view of the interpretation-clause in section 3 of the Code, as relating to section 523. It seems desirable to place applications under clauses 523 and 525 on the same footing in regard to court-fees. This involves a consequential amendment of article 19.

The Indian Limitation Act, 1877.—We have expunged clause 372A from the Bill and incorporated its substance in the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, section 5. In these circumstances, we consider it expedient to supplement section 5 and add corresponding articles after article 175C, fixing at six months the period of limitation for the applications in question. The only point requiring separate notice is that article 175D will supersede a Calcutta decision [Lalji Sakai v. Walker (1902), 6 Cal. W. N. lx] in which the period was held to be three years under article 178.

With reference to section 12, we have, in accordance with existing practice, provided that the applicant shall not be entitled to the benefit of any period during which the preparation of a copy has been stopped owing to his default in paying the costs or fees.

In proposing an additional section 16A, we have acted on the view that the purpose of clause 424 is to give notice and to facilitate compromise but not to shorten the period of limitation. Where, for example, the period of limitation is only thirty days, the deduction of two months on account of notice negatives the right of suit; and the matter generally assumes importance from the consideration that the Bill extends the necessity for notice to cases in which the Secretary of State for India in Council or a public officer is made a defendant under clause 32

Article 12AA, which we propose to insert in the Second Schedule, is a necessary corollary of our proposals under clauses 278 and 335A Their Lordships of the Privy Council have gone very far in applying the principle [Malkarjun bin Shidramappa Pasare v Narhari bin Shivappa (1900), L R. 27 I A. 216], in which we would concur, that, where property has been sold by a Court having jurisdiction, the sale should not be treated as a nullity for the purpose of depriving the purchaser of the security afforded to his title by the restriction of the period of limitation from twelve years to one for the institution of suits by adverse claimants. We felt ourselves unable to retain clause 283 which purported to debar a third person from enforcing his claim if, having notice, he failed to have recourse to the remedy provided by clause 278. Where, however, such a claimant is dispossessed by the purchaser, we think that he has notice of a judicial act creating an adverse title in favour of a person who cannot be treated as a mere trespasser.

Articles 163 and 164 have been expanded to cover the decree-holder and judgment-debtor who, for the purposes of execution-proceedings, have been placed by clauses 248F and 248J on the same footing as a plaintiff and defendant respectively.

The proposed article 164A, as inserted in the original Bill, purported to fix the period of limitation at thirty days from the date of executing any process for enforcing the judgment It has been pointed out that the process in question may relate to matters not involving a breach of the agreement or adjustment between the parties. We propose, therefore, that limitation should run from the execution of process for enforcing the decree in contravention of such agreement or adjustment.

As we have noted under clause 290, we propose to declare that, where a sale is held in contravention of the explicit provisions intended to give publicity to the proposed auction, such sale shall, upon application of the decree-holder or judgment-debtor, be set aside. On the facts assumed, the only point of time, of which the applicant has cognizance, is the date on which the period specified in sub-clause (1) expires. We propose, therefore, to make this date the starting point of the period of thirty days' limitation which governs similar applications.

The amendments in articles 166 and 172 follow the revised wording of clauses 311 and 313, respectively

We have inserted article 172A as a necessary consequence of the addition of explanation IV to clause 244. In the absence of such a provision the period would, under article 178, amount to three years [compare, Bhubon Mohun Pal v. Nunda Lal Dey (1899), I. L. R. 26 Cal. 324], which, in the circumstances, appears to us excessive.

The amendment of article 176 and the insertion of article 176A have been explained under clause 516.

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 We propose to add references to clause 29 in sections 89 and 90. The sections, as thus altered, will supersede a Calcutta decision [Kedar Nath Raut v. Kali Churn Ram (1898), I. L. R. 25 Cal. 703, overruling Ashruf Ali Chowdhry v Net Lal Sahu (1896), I. L. R. 23 Cal 682] in the sense of rulings from Allahabad [Raja Ram Singhji v. Chunni Lal (1897), I. L. R. 19 All. 205 : Harjas Rai v. Rameshar (1898), I. L. R. 20 All. 354], Bombay [Krishnaji v Mahadev Vinayak (1900), I. L. R. 25 Bom. 104] and Madras [Tirumal Rao v. Syed Dastaghiri Miyah (1898), I L. R. 22 Mad. 286 : Mallikarjunadu Setti v. Lingamurti Pantulu (1902), I. L. R. 25 Mad. 244].

Note.

I have signed the Report, accepting it as a correct record of the changes made by the Select Committee. I am, however, not wholly satisfied with the result of our labours and desire to indicate certain points at which the Bill as amended will not, in my opinion, make satisfactory law.

Before passing to specific points I would offer three remarks upon the general character of the proposed legislation. First, I think that too little regard has been paid to settled law and the necessary inconvenience of changes; secondly, that clearness of expression has been too far sacrificed to the object—impossible of complete attainment—of absolute precision of language; and, thirdly, that the system of cross-references from one section to another and of express warnings that one provision is not to be taken as overriding another, has been carried too far. The effect of the last two characteristics is to render particular sections of the Code not readily intelligible in themselves. And there is danger of this further effect, that those who have to administer the law will learn to look always for a precise direction in words instead of imbibing the general intention of the Act and using their own common sense in applying it.

A single clause of the Bill will suffice to illustrate all the three points mentioned above. Clause 13 is a re-statement of the law of res judicata in a new form, and a form, to my mind, less scientific and less convenient than that of the present Code The new clause is difficult reading, and when the force of the words is realized, the reader has to turn to several other clauses of the Bill to gather the whole intention of the statement. The warning that a matter is not to be held the less "finally decided" because a clerical or arithmetical error remained to be corrected in the judgment is an apt illustration of my third objection. No doubt some additions to the section as it stands in the Code had become necessary; but these could, I think, have been more conveniently made without departing from the general form of the section.

Chapter XX.—Of the Execution of Decrees and Orders.—Though I think that many very desirable changes have been made in this Chapter, there are certain factors which I cannot but regard with much concern There are principally :—

(1) concurrent execution, and

(2) execution by one Court under the direction of another.

The practice of allowing two or more Courts to proceed at the same time with the execution of a decree is almost unknown in this country, nor was there, judging by the reports received, any demand for it. The present proposed enactment seems to have had its origin in the case of Saroda Prosaud v. Lutchmeeput (10 B. L. R. 214); but it is worthy of note that in that case Sir R. Palmer argued that such concurrent execution as was then allowed was not authorized by the Code, and that the proceedings were irregular. And the instances in which the ruling in this case has been followed are very few. Further, the restrictions and precautions mentioned in that judgment as appropriate are, I think more stringent than those made in the present Bill.

There are two other objections which apply both to concurrent execution and to execution by one Court under the control of another. These are that it may be an undue hardship on the judgment-debtor to have to defend his property at the same time in places possibly as far distant as Madras and the Panjab; and that it will usually involve him in extra expense in having to provide pleaders in different places at the same time.

These conditions will be in great contrast with the present practice, under which there is only one Court at one time carrying out the execution of a decree.

And to the provision allowing one Court to maintain control over the execution while other Courts under its precepts carry out the execution, there is the further grave objection that it will lead to conflict between the Courts. It will not always be easy to decide whether a particular question should be determined by the Court receiving a precept or should be referred by it to the Court which passed the decree, and differences of opinion are sure to arise.

Again, neither as to concurrent execution nor as to execution by precept can any sound analogy be taken, I think, from English practice. For in England distances are short, the language is one only, and the lowest Courts are of comparatively high calibre, and therefore less liable to be jealous one of another.

While fully concurring in the view that it is expedient to make special provisions for the maintenance of agriculturists upon their land from season to season, I think clause 269B goes too far in permitting the Collector, or any subordinate of his deputed by him, to determine what proportion of the crop it may be necessary to exempt from attachment.

In the present Code, as also in the Bill as referred to the Committee, there is a marked distinction between the procedure to be adopted (1) in the case of claims to, and objections to attachment of, attached property (section 278), and (2) in the case of obstruction by a claimant in good faith, other than the judgment-debtor (section 331). The two provisions fall under different sub-heads "F.—Of attachment of property" and "H.—Of Resistance to execution." But this distinction has been in one essential effaced, and I think a sound principle departed from, by now applying part of the procedure of section 331 of the Code to that of section 278, and permitting a mere "claimant" to property attached to have his "claim" registered as a suit. Not only is the claim registered as a suit (without regular institution by plaint), but the claimant may, under clause 278 as now amended be put into the favourable position of defendant in stead of having to prove his title and the Court may find it a very difficult task to determine whether the decree-holder or the claimant should be made plaintiff; for they are both of them claimants asking for action to be taken by the Court, and their two claims may quite conceivably be primâ facie on a par. Under the present law there is no such anomaly or difficulty, a claim being allowed to be registered as a suit only when it is proposed in execution proceedings to take property away from a person claiming in good faith to be in possession of it.

Chapter XXXIV.—Suits by or against Firms, &c.—I should have preferred to limit the application of this Chapter to the Presidency-towns and Karachi and Rangoon, or to such places as the Local Governments might by notification apply it.

Chapter XXXIX.—Reference to Arbitration.—I regret that some provision has not been made to enable a Court to some extent to control extravagance on the part of an arbitrator. Such power is retained to the arbitrator under the English law and also under the Indian Arbitration Act. But the Committee appear to think that if allowed under the Code it would destroy the finality, and therefore also the utility, of arbitration. I do not share that opinion. I do not think Courts would be inclined to interfere unnecessarily with the discretion of an arbitrator. I only wish to enable them to restrain outrageous or clearly inequitable decisions. Many instances of such decisions—decisions which, under the present law, Courts are obliged to accept without question, contrary to their own sense of justice—have been put before us in the reports upon the Bill. It should, I think, be considered that, as a Court is made use of to give effect to arbitration, so it should be allowed some discretion, however limited, and not be treated as a mere registering machine.

Chapter XLIV.—Of Appeals from Appellate Decrees.—I think the Code ought itself to determine, as in the past it always has determined, when a second appeal should be allowed; and should not, as now proposed in clause 584 (3), ever leave such a question to be settled by the executive.

I am of opinion also that the nature of a suit and not its money value should be the test applied.

Further, I think regard should be had to the character of the decision in first appeal, and a second appeal be allowed (even on a question of fact alone) when that decision is a reversal of the first decree. Much may be said for restricting appeals generally, but when one appeal has been allowed and the two Courts have come to different conclusions, there is, I think, good ground for permitting resort to a third Court.

The 12th March, 1903.

Note.

I have signed the above report, subject to the following observations in regard to certain salient points in the Bill to which I feel bound to take exception.

(1) There is in the Bill no definition of the expression "rule of law," which occurs in clauses 2 (g), 4A, 11, 14 (1) (b), 14 (1) (e), 54 (2) (c), 193A, 543A (2) (c) and 592. I consider that there ought to be a definition of this phrase, which is a novel one, and which appears to me to be vague and indefinite. It has been suggested that the Courts will readily understand it as including (a) enactments of the Legislature, (b) rules framed under enactments, (c) rules established by decisions of the Courts, and (d) rules of custom; and that it would be difficult and dangerous to draw up an exhaustive definition of the expression. It seems to me, however, that the Courts will not readily apprehend what is meant by "rule of law." It should be remembered that the Courts of this country are presided over by Judges, many of whom are inexperienced and without any high legal training. Some of the Courts are even presided over by executive officers who have little legal knowledge and who have had no legal training at all. Hence, I feel certain that this expression will give rise to misapprehension and to diverse interpretations, varying according to the ideas and qualifications of individual officers. The omission to define "rule of law", therefore, seems to me to be a serious defect in the Bill. Their Lordships of the Privy Council in a recent case (Gokul Mandar v. Padmanand Singh, I. L. R., 29 Cal., 707) have said: "The essence of a Code is to be exhaustive on the matters in respect of which it declares the law," and on this principle the omission is not one which should be allowed to remain. It may be difficult to frame an appropriate definition of the phrase; but, if it is introduced into the Code of Civil Procedure, some attempt should be made at least to explain it. We should not leave the Courts without some guidance on the point or throw on them the burden of a duty which the Legislature should itself discharge. If it be dangerous to define it exhaustively, the usual legislative device of describing it as "including" what it is considered to mean, may be adopted; so that nothing will be excluded which, it may afterwards be seen, properly comes within the expression.

(2) I regret that I cannot approve of the changes proposed to be introduced into Chapter V, "Of the frame of the suit". Hitherto the principle underlying this Chapter of the Code has been that there shall be one suit and one trial in respect of one cause of action, and that, except in special specified cases, in which it may be convenient and proper to unite the trial of claims founded on several causes of action, the joinder in one suit of claims founded on several distinct causes of action shall not be allowed. In pursuance of this principle, sections 44 and 45 of the present Code enumerate the cases in which several causes of action may be joined in one suit, and sections 45, 46 and 47 prescribe when even in these cases separate trials may be ordered, and the procedure by which an order to this effect may be obtained. All this is now practically changed. According to clause 44 of the Bill (1) any number of plaintiffs may in one suit unite their claims against apparently any number of defendants in respect of several properties, provided they base their claims to relief (which need not be joint but may be several claims) on a common ground, and (2) any number of plaintiffs may unite in one suit several causes of action in which they are jointly interested against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly, whether they base their claims to relief on a common ground or not. An illustration is appended to clause 44, sub-clause (1), with the object of overruling two decisions of the High Court of Allahabad (Rahim Bakhsh v. Amiran Bibi, I. L. R. 18 All. 219 and Salima Bibi v. Sheikh Muhammad, I. L. R. 18 All. 131) in which suits in which two distinct causes of action were united were held to be bad for misjoinder. The next clause 46 gives the Court power either on its own motion or on the application of the defendant at or before the settlement of the issues, or if the parties agree at any subsequent stage of the suit, to order separate trials; but no principle is laid down, as in the present Code, by which a Court is to be guided in passing such an order. Clause 47, however, follows the lines of section 44 of the present Code, and prohibits the joinder of all except specified claims with a claim for the recovery of immoveable property.

Now, these changes do not seem to me to be judicious. They tend, in my opinion, to encourage, rather than to discourage, the joinder of causes of action, and they will have the effect, I fear, of making the trial of civil suits even more complicated and protracted than they are at present. The result of all practical judicial experience would seem to me to be that the simpler a case is made, the narrower the issue, the smaller the quantity of evidence that has to be adduced in it, he easier it is to decide it correctly; while the more complicated it is made, the more numerous the issues that necessarily arise in it, the greater the mass of evidence that has to be considered, the more difficult it is to dispose of it, and the greater the danger of deciding it wrongly. This principle has been recognized by the framers of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, who have provided in section 233 of that Code that there shall be a separate trial for each offence an accused may have committed, subject to the exception (see section 234) that he may be tried at one trial for three offences of the same kind, if committed within the space of one year. I accordingly very much deprecate the departure from this principle in the present Bill. Under the clauses as they are now framed even more disconnected causes of action than those referred to in the new illustration might be united in one suit. Thus, several reversioners might in one suit sue the persons in possession of different portions of the estate of a deceased Hindu, which were alienated by his widow at different times for different reasons. The joinder of such distinct causes of action in one suit would make the proper decision of it most difficult, and there would be no real saving of expense to the parties, which is presumably what is aimed at by the amendments. I further deprecate the omission from clause 46 of any allusion to the principle which should guide Courts in ordering separate trials and of the procedure prescribed by sections 46 and 47 of the Code for an application to confine the suit to such of the causes of action as may be conveniently tried in it, and for the disposal of such an application.

(3) I do not consider that the way in which the provisions of section 111 of the present Code have been extended in the revised Bill is desirable. It may be admitted that the provisions of the present section are too narrow. They provide (1) that any set-off claimed by a defendant must be for an ascertained sum of money legally recoverable by him from the plaintiff, and (2) that in the claim of the defendant against the plaintiff both parties fill the same character as they fill in the plaintiff's suit. The provisions of the section have, however, been widened by case law so as to include cross demands arising out of the same transaction or when they are so connected in their nature and circumstances as to make it inequitable that the plaintiff should recover and the defendant be driven to a cross suit [see Bhagbat Panda v. Bamdeb Panda, I. L. R. 11 Cal. 557]. But the provisions of clause 111 of the Bill go far beyond this. They make a most startling change in the law. They allow of any claim which can conveniently be disposed of in the suit being raised as a set-off or counter-claim, so that a claim of any kind, however unconnected with the plaintiff's claim, whether for an ascertained or an unascertained sum of money of any amount, and whether arising within or without the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court within which the plaintiff's suit is brought, may be raised as a set-off or counter-claim. Thus, in a suit on an ordinary bond, there may be a claim by way of set-off for the recovery of immoveable property, or a claim founded on some unsettled account, or in a suit to prove or disprove a right of occupancy, there may be a counter-claim for Rs. 10,000 for damages for wrongful confinement, or for the possession of immoveable property. Then, the clause goes on to prescribe a most elaborate procedure for the disposal of the suit, when the set-off or counter-claim is alleged to have arisen beyond the limits of the Court's jurisdiction, from which it will be seen that such set-off or counter-claim may have arisen even in a different province from that in which the plaintiff's cause of action has accrued, provided both provinces are within the jurisdiction of the same High Court. Even if the suit is stayed, withdrawn, dismissed or abated, the set-off or counter-claim may be proceeded with. Under the proposed system a plaintiff suing in Puri in Orissa on a bond for Rs. 500 may be met with a counter-claim for Rs. 10,000 for damages for assault alleged to have been committed in the district of Sibsagar in Assam. The case will have then to be reported to the High Court and to be transferred for trial to the district of Sibsagar, and even if the plaintiff prefers in these circumstances to withdraw his suit on the bond, the case against him may go on, and he may be obliged to journey to Sibsagar to meet it. It appears to me that the provisions of clause 111 of the present Bill go far beyond the exigencies of litigation at the present time in this country. No demand has been made, and no case established, for such an extension of the provisions of the present section as now interpreted by the Courts. It may be that the provisions of this clause of the Bill are in accordance with the English law on the subject, but the legal systems and the means of communication in the two countries are different, while England is not covered with the same elaborate net work of Courts as India is; so that what may be convenient and appropriate there may be very much the reverse in this country. The proposed system will, I feel sure, tend to encourage the raising of false and vexatious counter-claims, intended to complicate and protract perfectly simple and honest suits, and will be used, I fear, in such a way as to defeat the ends of justice. The provision that a Court may refuse leave to the defendant to avail himself of any set-off or counter-claim which cannot be conveniently disposed of in the pending suit will not afford any effective remedy for this evil; for it will always be a matter of difficulty to decide what is and what is not convenient. What may appear convenient to one Court may not be considered convenient by another. As a matter of fact, it would seem to me that it will always be inconvenient to try any counter-claim in a suit, unless the two claims can be decided on the same evidence. But, in any case, the degree of inconvenience will be a variable quantity, depending upon the number of issues which will have to be decided in the suit and counter-claim, and the quantity of evidence that will have to be recorded to enable them to be decided The procedure which it is proposed to prescribe for the trial of suits in which counter-claims which are beyond the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was instituted are raised, will be another cause of delay and inconvenience. Correspondence will have to pass between the Court in which the suit has been instituted and the Court to which the case is referred. The District Court and the High Court will certainly be asked, and may desire, before passing an order referring the case for trial to a competent Court, to hear the parties or their pleaders, and the question of the convenience of trying the counter-claim will doubtless be raised and re-argued before them. I foresee a still further way in which the terms of the proposed clause 111 will be abused and that is that when a plaintiff institutes a suit triable under a summary procedure, e g., when he institutes a claim in a Small Cause Court or one of a Small Cause Court nature in a regular Court, the defendant will be certain to raise a plea of set-off or counter-claim, which is beyond the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court, or which is of a nature triable only under the regular procedure. The case may then have to be referred to the District Court, which will have to transfer it to a regular Court, or to a Court which will try it as a regular suit, and so the summary suit will be converted into a regular suit and the defendant will gain a right of appeal, and perhaps of second appeal to which he would not be otherwise entitled For these reasons, I consider that the proposed scheme permitting the raising in a suit of any claim by way of set-off or counter-claim without any restriction, except that of convenience, which depends entirely on the exercise of the Court's discretion, cannot work well, but must inevitably cause delay, complication and difficulty in the trial of suits

change in the law. The result will be the introduction of a double system of review, one under the provisions of the chapter relating to reviews, and one under clause 206A, which will be the more popular, as it will be subject to absolutely no limitation as regards time. There will in future be no finality about decrees. Decrees which have not been executed may be amended, if clause 206A of the Bill becomes law, long after—it may be 50 or 100 years after—they have been passed, and when all the parties to it are dead. If the decree is then amended in any particular, however insignificant, an appeal will lie, and as time will run from the date of the amendment, there may be endless appeals from the decree, one from the original decree before it is amended, and then as many more as there are amendments of it. What is worse is that there may be a fresh starting point for execution [see Kali Prasanno Basu Rai v. Lal Mohan Guha Rai, I. L. R. 25 Cal. 258.] Furthermore, there is no restriction, as in the case of reviews, as to the Judge to whom application must be made; so that decrees may be amended under clause 206A, not only by the Judges who passed them, but by their successors, and by the successors of their successors. In my opinion no such change in the law is required. There has been no complaint made against, and no inconvenience shown to result from, the provisions of section 206 of the present Code. The amendment is said to be necessary to meet a case of hardship, similar to that reported in Narayanasami v. Natesa, I. L. R., 16 Mad. 424. In this case there had been an error in the plaint in the description of the boundaries of the plot of land, which was the subject of the suit. Naturally, a similar error occurred in the decree. The Court of First Instance corrected the error under the provisions of section 206, which it should not have done, for the plaintiff's remedy was by review. Mr. Justice Parker set aside the Lower Court's order on revision, in which he was technically right, but in a Letters Patent appeal his order was reversed, and that of the Court of First Instance was restored, as being right on the merits, though wrong in form. But this case, to my mind, affords no argument for making any change in the law. The plaintiff, who was entirely to blame for the mistake which occurred, had a sufficient remedy, if he had chosen to have recourse to it. He invited the Court of First Instance to exercise its powers under the wrong section, and hence the resulting appeals. If such a case occurs again, the plaintiff has only to ask for a review of judgment, and he will get it and there will probably be no appeals. The amendment which the Select Committee have made in the section will afford him no relief, for an error in the decree which arises from a mistake in the plaint cannot be held to be at variance with the judgment, or a verbal or arithmetical error or an accidental defect in the decree not affecting a material part of it, such as can properly be corrected or remedied under the terms of clause 206A.

Another case has been mentioned as one likely to occur in the Central Provinces. A plaintiff, it is said, may sue for possession of a field, described in the survey proceedings as $\frac{100A}{3}$. He may get a decree, and by an accidental error in drawing up the formal decree, the field is described as $\frac{100}{3}$, which, as a matter of fact, is not the subject of the dispute in the suit but is the field of a third person. In these circumstances, it is said, the defendant, knowing that the decree which has been given against him is ostensibly for a field not his, will be justified in refraining from appealing, and when the plaintiff discovers the accidental omission of the letter A in the decree, and has this error corrected, it will only be fair to give the defendant an opportunity of appealing against the decree on the merits. My reply is that this appears to me to be an illustration of the way in which, if sub-clauses (3) and (4) of clause 206A become law, the clause will be abused. It seems to me that in the case described above, the defendant can have been under no misapprehension as to the field for which the Court intended to give the plaintiff a decree. He must have well known that what the plaintiff sued for was the field $\frac{100A}{3}$, which was in his (the defendant's) possession and not field $\frac{100}{3}$, which was in the possession of somebody else. In the case put the mistake occurred only in the decree, and the defendant must, therefore, have fully understood that the field to which the decree really related was his field, No. $\frac{100A}{3}$, though the letter A may have been omitted. If he wished to dispute the correctness of this decree, he should have appealed at once, and was not justified in abstaining from appealing merely owing to a clerical mistake for which, as both parties' pleaders have now to sign the decree as an admission of its correctness, [clause 205, sub-clause (3)], his pleader would be as much to blame as the plaintiff's pleader. If he did not choose to appeal within the time allowed him by law for doing so, he should not be permitted to do so afterwards, when the merely accidental mistake not affecting the decree in any material point is corrected. For these reasons I consider that the giving of a right of appeal against the amended decree is unnecessary and will have a disastrous result, as it will destroy the finality of decrees, and allow of their being altered at any future time and that without the restriction of the conditions now imposed by the law on the preferring of appeals and applications for review, and will further give a fresh starting point for their execution.

What is aimed at in the amendments introduced in this clause is no doubt the enlargement of the right of review. It may be that the right of review, and in particular the period allowed for an application of this nature, is too limited. But, if so, the remedy lies in an enlargement of the right of review, and the prescription of a longer period of limitation for such applications and not in the introduction of two concurrent procedures for reviewing decrees.

(5) I very strongly object to the system of executing decrees by precepts, which it is proposed to introduce by clauses 223, 223A, 223B, 244A and 238B of the Bill. Under the present system a decree-holder wishing to have his decree executed, applies to the Court which passed the decree, and such Court may either execute it itself or may transfer it for execution to another Court, and it adopts this latter course only when the judgment-debtor resides, carries on business or works for gain within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, has not sufficient property within the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree to satisfy it, or the decree directs the sale of property situate beyond these limits. When a decree is once transferred for execution to another Court, that Court has practically seizin of the execution proceeding and carries it on until execution is obtained, or the property of the judgment-debtor within its jurisdiction is exhausted. The process may then be repeated, and the decree transferred for execution to another Court. Concurrent execution is practically unknown. There is no provision in the Code expressly authorizing it: the spirit of section 223 (b) is against it; and though there is an old decision of the Privy Council [Saroda Prasad Mullick v. Luchmeeput Singh, 14 Moo. I. A. 529] which seems to hold that concurrent execution is permissible, yet it is pointed out that it might be right to refuse it and that, if allowed, it would "be in many cases, proper to impose terms on the decree-holders that they should not proceed to sale under all the attachments at once." It is now proposed to make radical changes on all these points. A decree-holder, when he wishes to have his decree executed, is to apply to the Court which passed the decree, and that Court is not only to execute the decree itself, but may at the same time issue precepts to any other Court or Courts, whether situated in the same or in another province, or in other provinces, directing the simultaneous execution of the decree by the arrest of the judgment-debtor, or the attachment and sale of his property or in any other mode in which a decree may be enforced. The conduct of the execution is to remain in the hands of the Court which passed the decree, and it may from time to time give such directions as it thinks fit, for the execution of the decree to the Court to which the precept is issued, which is not at liberty to entertain any objection regarding (a) the legality or propriety of the precept or of any directions given for its execution or (b) the right of the person shown in the precept as the decree-holder to execute the decree. If any such objection is raised before it, unless it considers it to be groundless and vexatious, it shall stay execution and refer the matter for decision to the Court which passed the decree. It has, however, jurisdiction to entertain objections of any other nature. This scheme is understood to have been devised for the purpose of facilitating the execution of decrees; but it would appear to me that this advantage, if gained, which I consider it is unlikely that it will be, will be more than counterbalanced by the probable ruin of many honest and solvent judgment-debtors, who under it will be completely crushed. Under this system execution may proceed simultaneously against a judgment-debtor in several districts and even in several provinces; his property may be attached and sold in several places without any restriction or safe-guard that not more than what is necessary to satisfy the decree against him will be dealt with. It is said in the report of the Select Committee that "excessive realization, which the" (i.e., the present) "system was primarily intended to prevent can be quite as effectively obviated by reserving the power of ordering attachment and sale, as we suggest, to the Court which passed the decree, and which will not issue a precept for either of these purposes, unless looking to the amount of assets obtained from all sources, it considers such action to be necessary." In another passage it is added: "The mechanical guarantee which we propose against excessive realization is that the Court which passed the decree and is responsible for its execution must, in each case, separately decide whether property which has been attached ought also to be sold to make up any deficiency still outstanding." But there are no clauses in the Bill embodying these principles. There is no clause instructing the Court to which application for the issue of a precept is made that it should use its discretion in granting or refusing simultaneous execution, or that it should not proceed to sell the judgment-debtor's property, unless it considers that such action is necessary. The provision that a Court must record its reasons before issuing precepts to two or more Courts would seem to be no effective safe guard, for a Court, provided it records its reasons, may issue any precepts it thinks fit No form of precept is prescribed, so that a Court issuing a precept might, provided it records its reasons, in one precept, order both the attachment and sale of a judgment-debtor's property, and there is the greatest danger of its being deceived as to the necessity for the issue of precepts for simultaneous execution, seeing that these precepts are apparently to be issued ex parte. If execution is taken out against the judgment-debtor within a year of the passing of the decree against him, no notice will ordinarily be given him of the application for execution, and the proceedings preliminary to the issue of precepts may be entirely ex parte. Even if execution is taken out more than a year after the passing of the decree, execution may, for reasons to be recorded, be taken out without notice [clause 248 (a)]: but even if notice of the execution be given to the judgment-debtor, the precept may apparently be issued without notice. It is true that from the service of notices of attachment and proclamations of the sale of the property, the judgment-debtor may come to learn of the issue of the precepts; but if they are enforced simultaneously as they may be, and as it is apparently intended that, if considered necessary by the Court, they should be, how is he to be in attendance in the different places (it may be in the different provinces) where precepts are being executed, at one and the same time? It has been said he may apply for adjournments, and they will be easily obtained. But they may not be granted, and, in any case, while he is applying for an adjournment in one place, his property may be being sold in another. The proposed new clauses, moreover, provide no means of redress, if more property is sold than is necessary to satisfy the decree, and even if the Courts in the exercise of their inherent powers make over to him the surplus proceeds of the sales, they cannot give him back his property itself, if sold to bonâ fide purchasers other than the decree-holder. Further, whether or not his property is unnecessarily sold off, he may have to make long journeys between distant places and provinces. He may have to apply first to the Courts to which the precepts are issued for the stay of execution and then to proceed to the Court which issued the precepts to press his objections to the legality and propriety of the precepts or of the directions given for their enforcement or as to the right of the decree-holder to execute the decree. Then, he may have to go back to the Court to which the precepts are issued to press his other objections to their enforcement. Similarly, the decree-holder, too, may have to journey backwards and forwards between the Courts to oppose stay of execution and to refute the objections raised by the judgment-debtor. The system will, therefore, probably not afford such a speedy means of execution, as it is anticipated it will. In the Select Committee's Report it is explained that a Court to which a precept is issued need not execute it itself, but may, under clause 25 of the Bill, transfer it to another Court for execution. This is somewhat inconsistent with the principle that the Court which passed the decree is to retain control of the execution, and that the Court to which the precept is issued is to enforce it itself under the directions of the Court which passed the decree. This would also seem to be reverting to the present system of transferring decrees for execution. Thirdly, it would seem to be creating an additional cause of expense and delay to the parties, for it introduces a third Court to which they may have to have recourse in following the course of the execution. Another objection to the scheme, at least from the judgment-debtor's point of view, is that it increases the facilities for his arrest. It is true that section 245B of the Code, which was introduced by the Debtors Act, VI of 1888, and which gives a Court a discretionary power, instead of at once ordering the issue of a warrant of arrest to call upon a judgment-debtor to show cause why he should not be arrested, is still retained in the Bill, and it may be that it is intended that the clause relating to the issue of precepts for the arrest of a judgment-debtor should be read subject to the provisions of this section. But this is nowhere clearly laid down. Then, at present a warrant can only be issued for the arrest of a judgment-debtor, if he resides, carries on business, or works for gain within the jurisdiction of the Court by which the warrant is executed. In future, precepts may be issued for his arrest anywhere, and the Court to which they are issued cannot in any way question the legality or propriety of their issue.

Other objections to the scheme are that (1) under the present system, certain papers must accompany the order transferring a decree for execution, so that the Court executing a decree can judge whether it is doing right or wrong, and this provision is now abrogated; (2) there is no clause allowing a precept once issued to be withdrawn; (3) under the proposed system a Court of the lowest grade may issue a precept to one of the highest grade and that Court must proceed to enforce it, either itself or by a Court subordinate to it, however it may disapprove of it, and though it may have power to cancel it in appeal; and (4) under the proposed system appeals may very much increase. Every order passed on an objection preferred to a Court issuing a precept will be an order under clause 244, and, therefore, subject to both a first and a second appeal. Similarly, every order passed on an objection preferred to a Court to which a precept is issued will be an order under clause 244, and, consequently, subject to two appeals. If execution is carried on concurrently in different provinces, there may be several second appeals relating to the same execution being simultaneously prosecuted in several High Courts. Even if a decree is not concurrently executed in more places than one, still the opportunities for preferring first and second appeals will be greater under the proposed system than under the present one, and this cannot fail both to retard execution and to increase the expenses of the parties.

I feel certain that such a system will be fraught with difficulties and troubles from which the present system is free. The present system is somewhat cumbrous, but this drawback was remedied in the Bill of last year by a clause [clause 228, sub-clause (4)] providing that a Court to which a decree has been transferred for execution may, after executing it as far as it can, transfer it directly to a third Court, within the jurisdiction of which the judgment-debtor may have property, without referring it back to the Court, which passed it, which causes delay. There has been no demand for such a one-sided system as it is now proposed to introduce. It may be just to attach at once all the property of a judgment-debtor, wherever it may be; but to permit the simultaneous sale of his property in more places than one without instructing the Courts as to when this may, and as to when this should not, be done, and so to incur the danger of realising much more than is necessary to satisfy the decree is a system for which it appears to me there is no justification. Further, I feel sure that the system will not work well, and that, instead of facilitating, it will tend rather to retard the execution of decrees.

The journeying backwards and forwards from one Court, and it may be from one province, to another, in order to attach and sell the property of the judgment-debtor and to meet his objections, the practical suspension of business in the Court to which the precept is issued during the interval that must necessarily elapse between its asking for, and its receiving, instructions from, the Court which passed the decree, and the impossibility of the Court which issued the precept giving instructions immediately to the Court to which the precept is issued without hearing the parties, and the more numerous appeals and second appeals that will be possible, will certainly protract the proceedings. Under the present system the Court to which a decree is transferred for execution, once seized of the case, can proceed expeditiously, for its powers in execution are the same as those of the Court which passed the decree. But I believe that execution under the precept system will proceed far more slowly than formerly. If a precept is issued for the attachment of property, the Court to which the precept is issued can only attach and should await further instructions. If a precept is then issued for the sale of the property, it proceeds to sell and must forward the proceeds to the Court which passed the decree. If, however, nothing is realized by the sale, it must await further instructions again. It can do nothing itself. On the other hand, under the present system, if there are surplus sale proceeds of property of the judgment-debtor realised in another execution in the Court to which the decree is transferred, such Court can at once give the decree-holder rateable distribution of these sale proceeds without the instructions of the Court which passed the decree. This cannot be done in future, and the new system, if it comes into force will, I am sure, involve so much correspondence and communication between Courts, so many journeyings backwards and forwards of both decree-holder and judgment-debtor, with all the attendant expenses and the instructing and feeing of pleaders in all the different Courts, that the position of both the decree-holder and judgment-debtor will be much worse than under the present system, which, if slow, can in this respect be improved, and is at all events sure and fair to both parties.

(6) In the Bill as originally framed it was proposed to enact in clause 257A that agreements relating to the satisfaction of a judgment debt should be illegal, unless made with the sanction of the Court which passed the decree. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons it was explained that it was considered advisable to supersede the interpretation sometimes put upon the word "void," which occurs in the corresponding section of the present Code, as meaning that unsanctioned agreements are not in their nature illegal, but only incapable of being enforced by way of execution. Now, it is proposed to enact in the Bill exactly the contrary of what, according to the Statement of Objects and Reasons, was then considered advisable, and to preclude only a Court executing a decree from recognizing or giving effect to unsanctioned agreements for the satisfaction of a judgment-debt,—in other words, to allow of such agreements being proved in all proceedings other than execution cases. The idea underlying the provisions of the present law on this point is that once a Court has passed a decree, the parties should not be allowed to alter it or satisfy it by a payment in excess of the amount decreed without the sanction of the Court. The object of this provision is to protect the judgment-debtor from any undue pressure or unfairness on the part of the decree-holder. With this laudable object section 257 was framed as it is at present in the Code, and the provisions of the Bill of last year were intended to prevent attempts to evade the section so as to defeat the policy of the Legislature. Now, it is proposed to depart from this wise policy and to encourage evasions of the law which cannot fail to be detrimental to the interests of judgment-debtors as a body. The terms of sub-clause (1) of clause 257A would seem to me to be entirely inconsistent with the policy of the Legislature embodied in the other sub-clauses of the clause. The logical conclusion of the new policy would appear to be to allow even the Court executing a decree to recognize such agreements,—in short, entirely to abrogate clause 257A.

(7) A very great alteration is proposed to be made, in section 278, which prescribes the procedure for the investigation of claims to attached property. The present procedure is that when any claim is made to property which has been attached in execution of a decree, the claim is summarily enquired into. The claim is either allowed or disallowed, and the execution proceeds. The person against whom the order in the claim case is made is at liberty to institute a suit within a year to establish his right to the property he lays claim to, but subject to the result of this suit, the order in the summary claim case is final (section 283). This procedure works well. Any claim preferred under this section is promptly enquired into and disposed of. In most cases no subsequent regular suit is brought, but in any case the execution is proceeded with and there is no necessity to keep it pending until the termination of the suit. It is proposed in future to radically change this procedure. In future, there will be no summary enquiry at all. Whenever a claim to attached property or an objection to its attachment is made, the Court is to register the claim or objection as a suit and to proceed to try it, as if a suit for the property had been instituted, and every order under this section is to have the same force, and be subject to the same conditions as to appeal and otherwise, as a decree. Section 283, which makes the summary order final and provides for its propriety being called in question only in a suit, is to be omitted. The advantage of this plan, it is said, is that it does away with the present dual procedure of a summary enquiry and a subsequent suit, and settles all questions relating to the attached property once and for all. But the present system, I venture to say, has hitherto worked well, and has tended to the expeditious disposal of execution proceedings. The advantage to be gained by the abolition of the dual system, will, in my opinion, be more than counterbalanced by the great delay in the disposal of execution cases that must inevitably result. Every order under the new clause is to be a decree and consequently to be subject to a double appeal Hence any execution case in which a claim to attached property is preferred must, in future, remain pending for years; for the execution cannot be proceeded with pending the double appeal. In my opinion, however, there is no necessity for the introduction of any such system. The great majority of claimants at present remain satisfied with the result of the summary enquiry. The proportion of regular suits brought subsequently is very small, and the proportion of cases in which the decisions in the summary enquiries are set aside, still less. If enquiry were made and statistics collected on this point, I am sure it would be clearly established that there is not the slightest necessity for disturbing the present system or for changing it for one which must inevitably cause the greatest delay in the disposal of all execution cases in which claims are preferred. Further, no reason whatever is assigned for remitting the Court-fee duty now leviable in all regular suits brought to establish a claimant's rights to attached property.

A still further change is proposed to be made in the present section. Hitherto, the operation of the section has been confined to claims to attached property. In future, the procedure prescribed by the section is to be applicable to any property which has not been attached, but which is declared by a decree to be liable to be sold in satisfaction thereof, in other words, to mortgage-decrees. In the Bill, as it was at first drafted, the provisions of the clause were still more objectionable. They explicitly provided for the attachment of property forming the subject of mortgage-decrees, an antiquated and obsolete practice discouraged by the framers of the Transfer of Property Act (vide section 99 of that Act), and absolutely forbidden by the Bombay High Court. The words "including a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage", which at first appeared in the clause have now been omitted, but other words have been inserted which give any person claiming an interest in property, the subject of a mortgage-decree, the right of coming forward and raising a claim or objection under the section. So, in future, any stranger to a mortgage suit who is absolutely unaffected by the decree may prefer a claim or object to the sale about to take place, and his claim is to be tried as a suit subject to the payment of no ad valorem Court-fee duty. This procedure seems to me to be most undesirable. It is contrary to the policy of the Transfer of Property Act, by section 85 of which it is provided that all parties having an interest in the property comprised in a mortgage must be joined as parties to any suit relating to it. If such persons are not made parties to the suit, they are unaffected by the decree or by any subsequent proceeding in execution until their possession in the property, if they are in possession of it, is attempted to be disturbed. There is, therefore, no necessity for their coming forward until an attempt to take possession of the property is made, and the provisions of sections 328 to 335 of the Code, relating to "resistance to execution" afford them ample opportunities of their having their rights enquired into, and of their obtaining redress, if necessary, at this stage of the execution. These are the sections, it has been pointed out in the leading case of Deefholts v. Peters (I. L. R. 14 Cal. 631), of which they should avail themselves, and they are not entitled to come forward at any earlier stage. This exposition of the law has been accepted all over India (vide Himatram v. Khushal Jethiram Gujar, I. L. R. 18 Bom. 98; Sanwal Das v. Bismillah Begam, I. L. R. 19 All. 480; and Krishnan v. Chadayan Kutti, I. L. R. 17 Mad. 17). But it is said that it is an advantage that persons having claims to property declared liable to sale, should be able to come forward and raise their objections at an earlier stage than they can at present. But what advantage is it that people should be able to come forward and litigate before their rights are affected? The position of parties to a decree in which property has been declared liable to be sold would seem to be analogous to that under the Bengal Tenancy Act of a landlord and the tenant of a tenure or holding. In the former case there is an express contract—in the latter, a statutory provision—that the property shall be liable for the debt or rent. But by section 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which is one of the most recent important Acts of the Legislature, the provisions of sections 278 to 283 of the Code of Civil Procedure do not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for rent. Any person having a claim to such a tenure or holding must consequently wait till the purchaser attempts to take possession before he can prefer any objection. Then, why should the same rule not prevail, as hitherto, in the case of property declared by a decree to be liable to sale? Further, I would point out that there is a reason why there should be a difference in the procedure with regard to the preferring of claims to property attached in execution of money decrees and to property declared by a decree to be liable to sale. In the case of the attachment of property in execution of a money-decree, there is no property definitely pledged as security for the debt. The decree-holder has to find out where the judgment-debtor's property is, as best he can. It is to the interest of the judgment-debtor to conceal his property from the decree-holder; so the decree-holder in attaching property may easily make mistakes and attach the wrong property. The owner of property so attached should therefore have a prompt remedy against the mistakes, or, it may be, the fraud, of the decree-holder. There is not the same danger of mistake or of fraud in the case of property declared in a decree liable to be sold. In such a case the decree-holder and judgment-debtor have entered into a solemn contract—most probably many years previously—that a certain definite property shall be pledged as security for the debt. There is very little danger in this case of the decree-holder proceeding against the wrong property. There may be fraud. The decree-holder and judgment-debtor may be in collusion and the decree may be altogether fraudulent. But this affects no one until the possession of the occupier of the property is disturbed. Then, in the case of property declared by the decree to be liable to be sold also, no reason has been assigned why an order which is to have the effect of a decree in a suit should be obtained without the payment of the Court-fee, which would have to be paid if such a suit was brought under the present law.

The proposed new clause has the further disadvantage of dealing in one place with two perfectly distinct subjects, hitherto dealt with in two distinct parts of the Code, viz., attachment and sale.

(8) The provisions of clause 268AA are novel and introduce into this country for the first time the English practice as regards the garnishment of debts. I am of opinion that this practice should be introduced gradually and at first only experimentally and tentatively and that it is inexpedient to make the procedure for the attachment of debts by garnishee orders applicable to rents and profits derivable from agricultural land or to any unascertained sum of money. It appears to me to be manifestly inadvisable to apply this procedure to the rents due to a large zemindar, who may have thousands of tenants owing rent to him, or to the debts due to a banking or commercial firm, which may have running and unsettled accounts with a large number of constituents. To apply the garnishment procedure to such debts when a decree is obtained for any sum, however small, against a landlord, landholder, banking firm or merchant, would seem to me to render the proceedings in execution of such decrees most complicated and protracted. In rent suits, that is, in ostensibly simple suits for arrears of rent, it is usual to raise the most difficult questions of title, of the right to enhance and so forth, while in the case of the garnishment of debts due to a commercial firm it may be necessary to enter into debits and credits extending over a long series of years. If the garnishee clauses of the Bill are made applicable to such debts, all these questions may be raised and may have to be decided, and all these accounts may have to be examined in the course of execution proceedings (see clause 268C.) For these reasons, I proposed to insert words in clause 268AA, rendering the garnishment procedure inapplicable to such debts. This view did not, however, commend itself to the Select Committee, who have instead introduced into the Bill a new clause 268EE, providing that where the property to be attached consists of rents of agricultural land or profits payable in respect of such land or of any other debts, each of which cannot be conveniently garnished under section 268AA, the Court may in its discretion and upon the application of the decree-holder, make a charging order, declaring the right of the judgment-debtor to realize such rents, profits or debts to be attached for the satisfaction of the decree and in such case to appoint a receiver for their realization in the manner prescribed by Chapter XXXVIII. This would seem to me to be only substituting one complicated and unsuitable procedure for another and providing for the appointment of receivers in a class of cases in which the present Code does not provide for their appointment. The provisions of clause 268AA will be very indefinite and uncertain in their operation. It will never be possible to be certain what debts may be garnished and what debts it may be considered inconvenient to garnish. The procedure laid down in clause 268C will in future have the effect of converting execution cases in which the garnishment of rents and profits derivable from agricultural land or of any unascertained sum of money is sought, into complicated regular suits, and the provisions of clause 268EE, under which receivers may be appointed in such cases, will have the effect of protracting them for years.

(9) It is proposed to make great changes in the provisions of sections 310A and 311. The former section was introduced into the Code in 1894 with the object of extending to the owners of property sold in execution of decrees of all kinds the privilege conferred on the owners of tenures or holdings sold in execution of rent decrees by section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, by which they are permitted within 30 days of the sale to have the sale set aside on payment to the purchaser of a sum equal to 5 per cent. on the purchase-money and to the decree-holder of the decretal amount. This was considered a great boon at the time, and though the Courts have in some cases widened the provisions of the section so as to extend the benefit of it to mortgagees, no general demand for any further extension of it so as to increase the facilities for setting aside sales has been made by the public or the legal profession. During the progress of the Bill through the Select Committee a proposal was received from the Bombay Government for a radical alteration in the terms of the section with the view of remedying the abuse of the sale provisions of the Code prevalent in the Bombay Presidency, which results in property being there sold at Civil Court sales for grossly inadequate prices. The proposals of the Bombay Government have been accepted, and the Bill has now been drafted so as to give any person either owning such property or holding an interest therein a right to set aside the sale on payment of 5 per cent. to the purchaser and to the decree-holder, not as hitherto, of the decretal amount, but of the purchase-money, and a provision has been added that a property, the sale of which has been set aside under this clause, shall not be liable to be sold again in execution of the same decree. With the object of obviating, as far as possible, the danger of collusion between the purchaser and the judgment-debtor, the decree-holder is in future to be at liberty to bid for the property even without leave of the Court. Words have further been inserted in the clause so as to make the operation of the section clearly applicable to sales held in execution of mortgage-decrees, and expressly to overrule the terms of section 89 of the Transfer of Property Act. In making these alterations the interests of the decree-holder have been entirely disregarded and another clause to his prejudice has been added by which when the property is sold in lots, the judgment-debtor can have the sale of any particular lot set aside and can leave the decree-holder the owner of any other lot he pleases. The judgment-debtor will, of course, in future set aside the sale of only the valuable lots and leave the decree-holder in possession of any bad bargain he may have made, or of any lot he may have purchased in consideration of its being valuable only owing to its contiguity to another lot, of the ownership of which he may be deprived. In clause 311, which is a section allowing a judgment-debtor to set aside a sale on the ground of any material irregularity in publishing or conducting it, which he can prove to have caused him substantial injury, words have been inserted by which a sale may in future be set aside merely on the ground of gross inadequacy of price without proof of any irregularity from which it can have resulted. This is to entirely change the scope of the section and to introduce into it a new ground for setting aside a sale of an entirely different nature from that of the other grounds specified in the section. It is unnecessary for me to discuss these provisions at length. It is sufficient for me to say that in my opinion they are the result of a mistaken policy and that they will not achieve the object which is aimed at. They may be useful in mitigating the hardships of Court sales in the case of some individual debtors, but they will, in the long run, injure judgment-debtors as a class, and lower generally the prices for which properties will be sold by the Courts. It should be remembered that properties sold at Court sales are never, and can never be, sold for their full value. This is the case in all forced sales and in all sales in which there is a risk of a subsequent litigation, e.g., as in the case of sales by a Hindu widow. It is notorious, in Bengal at least, that a person purchasing from a Hindu widow cannot safely pay the full value of the property he buys. At Court sales, the property must always sell for much less than its full value, because the purchaser knows that he buys a litigation. The more the facilities for setting aside Court sales are increased, the greater the speculation the purchaser embarks on, and the less he can afford to pay for the property. There appear to me to be four means by which the average rate at which properties are sold at Court sales can be raised. They are, first, by giving ample notice of the sale, so as to attract numerous bidders; 2nd, by giving full information about the property to be sold to intending purchasers; 3rd, by employing, to conduct the sale, a responsible and trustworthy officer of the Court, who will not collude with either party; and, 4th, by giving the purchaser a good title and a certainty that a sale once held will not be readily disturbed. In these circumstances, the purchaser can afford to give a good price for the property, and, if there are numerous bidders, the property must realize a fairly adequate price. But the greater the uncertainty that attaches to a sale, the greater the doubt the purchaser feels as to his being left in possession of his bargain, and the greater the risk of his being involved in subsequent litigation, the less he will bid and the less he will pay. For these reasons, I feel confident that the changes it is proposed with the most laudable motives to introduce into sections 310A and 311 will not have the desired effect, and, while affording means of alleviating cases of individual hardship, will be injurious to judgment-debtors as a body, and will increase rather than lessen the inadequacy of prices realized for properties at Court sales.

(10) It appears to me that clauses 366 and 368 are not complete and that in the former clause provision should be made for the case when the sole plaintiff or sole surviving plaintiff dies and the right to sue does not survive, and in the latter clause for the case when a sole defendant or sole surviving defendant dies, and the right to sue does not survive, which cases are nowhere provided for. In either case the Court should have power to declare by order that the suit has abated. Of the former case, an illustration is given in illustration (a) to clause 361, but this does not seem to me to be sufficient. There being no such provision, the Court can either do nothing or must pass an order under a section not properly applicable. The matter is of importance as affecting the right of appeal. An appeal now lies from an order declaring that a suit has abated. If no order, or an order under a clause not properly applicable, or an erroneous order is passed, the representative of the deceased plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, may find obstacles in the way of his preferring an appeal.

(11) I am opposed to sub-clause (5) and the illustrations which the Select Committee propose to add to clause 532 of the Bill. Chapter XLI, in which this clause occurs, relates to the summary procedure on negotiable instruments, and embodies the provisions of Act V of 1866, relating to the "summary procedure on Bills of Exchange". In two cases under that Act, (Chartered Mercantile Bank v. Seconde, 3 B. L. R., O. C., 146, and Remfry v. Shillingford, I. L. R. 1 Cal. 130) it was held that the Act must be strictly construed and care should be taken not to admit a suit under the summary procedure, unless it is clearly within the Act. In the two cases above cited leave to admit suits under the summary procedure was refused, because in them it was necessary for the plaintiffs to adduce evidence before establishing their right to sue. In the latter case, Phear, J., said: "I think the Act was only intended to apply to those cases in which the Bill itself, together with mere lapse of time, is sufficient to establish for the plaintiff a primâ facie right to recover." The "Explanation" to section 532, may be read as meaning that it was intended to extend the operation of the section, but this would appear to be an erroneous interpretation of its meaning. The fact is Mr. Justice Phear in the passage from the judgment above cited defined the application of the Act too narrowly. The verified statements made in a plaint in a suit under Act V of 1866 were always regarded as evidence, and the Explanation added to section 532 of Act X of 1877 probably only meant to negative Mr. Justice Phear's too narrow view of the scope of the Act. The Select Committee have, however, by the sub-clause (5) they propose to add to clause 532 adopted the, in my opinion, erroneous reading of the meaning of the Explanation; while the illustrations they have appended to the clause give the facts of the cases of the Chartered Mercantile Bank v. Seconde and Remfry v. Shillingford, but lay down the law in exactly a contrary way to the manner in which these cases were decided. This sub-clause (5) and these illustrations very much widen the scope of the section and make the summary procedure applicable to a perfectly different class of cases from that to which Act V of 1866 was held, and was intended, to apply, viz., to cases in which the plaintiff has to produce evidence in order to establish his right to sue. It seems to me that this is wrong. The summary procedure of Chapter XLI should, in my opinion, not be applicable to such cases. Just as, when a defendant obtains leave to defend, the suit ceases to be a summary one, and has to be tried as a regular suit under Chapter VI, so when a plaintiff has to produce evidence to establish his right to a decree, the suit should be tried as a regular one under Chapter VI (formerly Chapter V of the Code). It the summary procedure is made applicable to such cases, then there is little or no difference between them and regular suits. The Indian Bills of Exchange Act of 1866 was founded on the provisions of the English Bills of Exchange Act, 1855, and there is, therefore, no reason why the provisions of Chapter XXXIX of the Code (now Chapter XLI of the Bill) which was intended to extend to this country the procedure in force in England under which decrees are summarily obtained, formerly under that Act and now under the Judicature Acts, should be widened so as to apply to a perfectly different class of cases, which cannot properly be tried summarily. I accordingly disapprove of the addition of sub-clause (5), and of the illustrations to clause 532, and consider that the proper way to amend the present section is by omitting the Explanation and restoring the law to what it was under Act V of 1866.

(12) In clause 540 of the Bill of last year it was provided that where an appeal lies under this section against a decree which is preliminary to a final decree, such preliminary decree shall not be set aside or altered in appeal unless the appeal is preferred against it, and no plea which has been or might have been taken in such an appeal shall be heard in an appeal preferred against the final decree. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons it was explained that it was proposed in the interests of despatch and finality to supersede a ruling of the High Court of Calcutta to the effect that omission to appeal against a preliminary decree will not preclude objections to it being urged in an appeal against the final decree. The Select Committee have accepted in clause 2 of the Bill the distinction drawn between a preliminary and a final decree, which was intended to lead up to clause 540 of the Bill of last year; but they have reversed the declared policy of the Government of India and have proposed by sub-clause (3) of clause 540 of the Bill to enact that when an appeal lies from a decree which by this Code is preliminary to a final decree, any party to a suit adversely affected by such preliminary decree may at his option either prefer a separate appeal against it or await the passing of the final decree and then prefer a single appeal against both decrees together. I consider this a most unfortunate alteration. Preliminary decrees are principally passed in partition suits, suits for accounts and suits for the dissolution and winding up of partnerships. They generally settle questions as to the shares of the parties and of their liability to render accounts. It is to the interests of all parties that appeals against decrees of this nature should be settled at once before the partitions are actually made or the accounts gone into. If any party adversely affected by such a decree is to be allowed to await the result of the final decree before appealing against the preliminary decree, he may upset the whole partition and the settlement of accounts which may have been going on for years, and render useless all the expense incurred, which might have been saved, if he had only appealed at once. It has been said, and no doubt it is sometimes true, that a party, while dissatisfied with the preliminary decree, may, on the whole, find it to his interest to accept the final decree, and so he should not be compelled to appeal against the preliminary decree, or that he may only find on the passing of the final decree that it is necessary for him to appeal against the preliminary decree and hence he should not be barred from so appealing. To this it may be replied that this view of the case has regard only to the interest of individuals, while in partition suits and suits for accounts the parties are generally numerous, and that in the interest of all the parties it is better that any one dissatisfied with the preliminary decree should be bound to appeal at once. In short, the balance of convenience is in favour of the clause as drafted in the Bill of last year. It would also seem as if a party who cannot see clearly that it is to his interest to appeal when a preliminary decree is passed against him cannot have much reason to be dissatisfied with it, and so should not be allowed to await the passing of the final decree before appealing.

Another objection to sub-clause (3) of clause 540, would appear to be that, while the Select Committee in their report observe that they only "propose to supersede in the sense of two rulings (Balaram Dey v. Ram Chandra Dey, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 279, and Khadim Hossein v. Imdad Hossein, I. L. R. 29 Cal. 758) the decision (Biswa Nath Chaki v. Bani Kanta Datta, I. L. R. 23 Cal. 406) to which the Bill proposed to give effect," they would seem to have done more than this. In Biswa Nath Chaki v. Bani Kanta Datta it was laid down that "any person entitled to an appeal against an order to take an account, who did not do so, but who allowed an account to be taken, and then on an appeal against the final decree succeeded in his objection to that order, would certainly suffer in costs in consequence of his having without objection allowed the subsequent proceedings to take place." This rule was approved of in the judgment of the majority of the Judges who decided Khadim Hossein v. Imdad Hossein. But, as the Select Committee by sub-clause (3) of clause 540 now propose to expressly confer on an appellant who is aggrieved by a preliminary decree the right to await the passing of the final decree before appealing, it is difficult to see how an Appellate Court will in future be justified in refusing him his costs, simply because he has exercised a right which the law gives him.

(13) I do not approve of the changes proposed to be made in the provisions of section 561 of the Code. By sub-clause (4) now added to clause 561 of the Bill, when an appeal is stayed, discontinued or dismissed, any objection filed by the respondent may nevertheless be proceeded with, and by sub-clause (5) this objection may be continued not only against the appellant, but against any co-respondent or even any party to the suit not a party to the appeal. It has been said that this will have the effect of discouraging appeals, and that a would-be appellant will in future think twice before instituting an appeal, which may have the effect of giving his adversary an opportunity of raising an objection against him, which may be proceeded with, if the appeal is withdrawn. I cannot, however, see the propriety of allowing a respondent who did not choose to appeal, to raise and prosecute an objection after his period for appealing has expired; and even if it may be just that he be allowed to press his objections against the person who brought him into Court, what equitable or reasonable ground is there for his being allowed to prosecute his objection against a mere co-respondent or against a party to the suit who is no party to the appeal?

(14) In section 575 of the present Code it is enacted that in the case of a difference of opinion on a point of law between Judges hearing an appeal, the appeal may be referred to one or more of the other Judges of the same Court, and shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority (if any) of all the Judges who heard the appeal, including those who first heard it. Under the provisions of this section it has been the practice of the High Court of Calcutta, when a difference of opinion on a point of law arose between Judges hearing a second appeal, for these Judges to submit the case to the Chief Justice with their opinions in writing and the Chief Justice then refers the case to a third Judge who sits alone and disposes of the appeal. Occasionally, but only rarely, the third Judge sits with the two Judges who have differed and the case is re-argued and disposed of in accordance with the views of the majority. This practice has worked well. As a general rule, it is useless to compel Judges who have heard the case and fully made up their minds on the point of law on which they have differed to sit again with the third Judge and listen again to all the arguments they have heard before and considered. It is only in the rare cases, when they consider it possible for them to change their views, that there is anything to be gained by their sitting with the third Judge. But the Select Committee have altered the section so as to preclude the third Judge from sitting alone and hearing the appeal by himself in any case, and they propose in all cases to compel the Judges who have differed to sit with the third Judge and re-hear the appeal. This proposed provision is perhaps intended to discourage differences of opinion on a point of law, which, however, should, in my opinion, be rather encouraged. In any case it seems to me that in the great majority of cases this re-hearing of the case by the Judges who have differed will be nothing but a mere waste of time. The Judges who have differed will differ again and will not change their views. This plan will further involve the practical inconvenience of breaking up two Benches and perhaps leaving the colleague of the third Judge called in to sit with the differing Judges with nothing to do. The plan would not cause so much inconvenience, if it applied only to second appeals. But the provisions of clause 575 are applicable to first appeals as well. Hence, if, in the hearing of a first appeal in which there is frequently a large mass of evidence to be considered, and the reading of which may extend over many days, there is a difference of opinion on a point of law between the two Judges of the Bench, the whole appeal has to be re-heard by them and the third Judge, and even though the two Judges who differ may agree as to the facts, the evidence will all have to be read over and considered again. This will certainly be a most irksome task for the Judges and will cause a needless waste of public time. I am, therefore, of opinion that the clause should be drafted so as to allow of the present practice of the High Court of Calcutta above alluded to being followed, and of its being left optional to the Judges who differ either to sit with the third Judge and re-hear the appeal, or to leave him to sit and decide the appeal alone, as they may in the circumstances of the case deem advisable.

(15) One of the principal objects with which the present Bill was framed was to curtail the right of second appeal so as to lessen the evils which now follow from the protracted system of civil appeals which prevails in this country. Indeed, a Bill was at first introduced into Council specially for this purpose, but, when it was determined to revise the whole Code of Civil Procedure, this special Bill became merged in the present one. In the Bill as introduced into Council it was proposed to allow no second appeal in cases of a Small Cause Court nature, unless the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeded one thousand rupees, and in other suits, unless the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeded one hundred rupees. Further, it was proposed in the case of concurrent decrees to bar an appeal, unless the appellant gave security for costs, and, when the decree was for the payment of money, for the decretal amount also. All these provisions have now disappeared from the Bill. Clause 584 allows a second appeal in cases of a Small Cause Court nature, unless the amount or value of the subject-matter of such appeal is less than five hundred rupees, while with regard to other suits power is given to the Local Government, with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, to declare by notification that an appeal will not lie, if the subject-matter of either the original suit or of the appeal does not exceed one hundred rupees. The provision as to the giving of security in the case of concurrent decrees has been entirely omitted. Clause 584, as it now stands, is very different from what it was last year, and it will not in my opinion, have the effect of curtailing the right of second appeal to any appreciable extent. Under the provisions of section 586 of the Code, which has now disappeared from the Bill, there is no second appeal in cases of a Small Cause Court nature, when the value of the suit does not exceed five hundred rupees. There would seem to me to be no good reason why, as provided in the Bill of last year, this provision should not be extended so as to bar second appeals in such cases when the value of the suit does not exceed one thousand rupees. The restriction of the right of appeal in cases of a Small Cause Court nature is not an innovation. Cases of the class that come before Small Cause Courts are of a simple nature, in which legal questions of any intricacy do not, or should not, arise. At present in such cases there is in Presidency-towns no first appeal, far less a second appeal, and the Presidency Small Cause Courts can dispose of cases up to a pecuniary limit of Rs. 2,000. In the Mofussil the ordinary limit of the jurisdiction of Small Cause Courts in respect of the value of the cause of action is Rs. 500, but this limit can be raised to Rs. 1,000 (see section 15 (3) Act IX of 1887) and this special jurisdiction is exercised in Bengal by at least one Mofussil Small Cause Court. In these circumstances, it seems to me that there will be no hardship or danger in making the decision of the First Appellate Court final in all such cases not exceeding Rs. 1,000 in value. Moreover, from statistics prepared by the Calcutta High Court, it appears that the number of cases in Bengal that will be affected by this provision will be very small. In suits not of a Small Cause Court nature, there can be no doubt that the right of second appeal is abused. I have had second appeals before me in which the value of the subject-matter was a very minute strip of land valued at two annas, and second appeals in which the value of the subject-matter is less than ten rupees are common. The proposal of the Select Committtee to give local Governments the power of declaring by notification that second appeals shall not lie in such cases, when the value of the subject-matter of either the original suit or of the appeal is less than Rs. 100, does not commend itself to me. This is throwing on the local Governments a duty which should be discharged by the Legislature, and which the Local Governments from their want of acquaintance with the circumstances of litigation in the provinces they administer or for other reasons may be reluctant to perform. Further, it will in any case introduce into the different provinces of the empire a diversity in respect of the right of second appeal which will inevitably give rise to dissatisfaction.

(16) I do not think that the provisions of clause 585 of the Bill are either necessary or advisable. This clause permits a second Appellate Court, if the evidence on the record is sufficient to enable it to dispose of the appeal, to determine any issue of fact necessary for the proper adjudication of the case, but omitted to be determined by either of the Lower Courts. The language of the clause is doubtless permissive; but I fear they may be read, and endeavours will be made to have them read, as directory. In my opinion, it is inexpedient for the second Appellate Court to have this power. Such a Court is not a Court of fact, and it should not determine any issue of fact. To do so is to assume a jurisdiction which does not belong to it, to cause delay and expense involved in the translating and printing of the evidence, to deprive the parties of the finding on the facts of the Court which heard and saw the witnesses, and to preclude their appealing against such a finding. I deprecate this clause most strongly, as it appears to me to be likely to encourage the endeavour which is always being made, and which, though constantly defeated, is ever renewed, to convert the second Appellate Court into a Court of fact, and so to set aside the finality which the law desires to attach to the findings of fact of the first Appellate Court. In support of this endeavour the terms of clause 565 will doubtless in future be relied on. In Act X of 1877 the provisions of section 565 were to the effect that where the evidence on the record is sufficient to enable the Court to pronounce judgment, the Court shall determine the case. In Act XIV of 1882 the word "may" was deliberately substituted in section 565 for "shall." Now, in clause 565 of the Bill, the terms of the section, as enacted in Act X of 1877, have been reproduced, and the word "shall" has been restored. This will certainly be cited in all applications under clause 585 for a finding of fact by the second Appellate Court, and may lead to a misapprehension as to the entirely permissive nature of the terms of the clause.

Note.

I sign this Report subject to the following remarks.

I regret to say that I am unable to agree with the majority of my Hon'ble Colleagues on some of the provisions of the Bill which is now going to be presented to the Council. As the proposal is to republish the Bill for public criticism, I consider it proper to draw attention to some of the important points on which my views differ from those of the majority of the members of the Select Committee.

Clause 111.—This clause contains provisions for introducing in this country, for the first time, the practice of allowing a defendant to plead any claim by way of counter-claim against the plaintiff's suit. These provisions are substantially taken from the Rules of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England. There are two points, with regard to them, which require consideration.

The first is the advisability of the introduction of the aforesaid practice in this country. There is a great danger of its being resorted to by the defendant to cause vexation and harrassment to the plaintiff and to prolong the litigation by throwing obstacles in the way of bringing the action to a speedy termination.

The next point deserving consideration in connection with this matter is, whether some restrictions should not be placed on defendant's right to plead a counter-claim. The only restriction which the Bill provides is the test whether the counter-claim can conveniently be disposed of in the suit. The decision of the question of convenience will depend solely on the individual opinion of the presiding officer of the Court before whom a counter-claim is set up. What may be considered as convenient by one officer may be thought otherwise by another. It is therefore desirable that some limitation should be placed on the right of the defendant to plead a counter-claim. Instead of giving him an unlimited scope to plead any claim, he should be restricted to set up only a claim for money, or a claim which can adequately be relieved by compensation in money, or which arises out of the same transaction or series of transactions on which the plaintiff's suit is founded, or which is so connected in its nature and circumstances with the plaintiff's suit, that, for the ends of justice, the two should be tried together, and the defendant ought not to be compelled to bring a separate suit for the enforcement of his claim.

Clause 189.—An alteration of an important character is proposed to be introduced by this clause in the mode of recording evidence in appealable cases. Except where any local or special law provides otherwise, the existing Code lays down the rule that in all such cases the whole of the evidence given by a witness should be recorded. Section 182 enacts that in all such cases the evidence shall be taken down in the form of a narrative and when completed, shall be read over to the witness. Clause 182 of the Bill makes an addition to the present law by enjoining that the evidence so recorded should be signed by the witness. Clause 189 of the Bill introduces a new provision that in all appealable cases or class of cases with respect to which the Court or the Judge has been specially empowered by the Local Government, with the concurrence of the High Court, it shall not be necessary to take down the evidence of witnesses at length, but only a memorandum of the substance of their depositions is to be made. In support of this alteration it is urged that "a record in extenso of every incidental statement of the witnesses serves no useful purpose and that a note taken by a Judge of experience would be sufficient for the Appellate Court and would conduce to promptitude and efficiency at trials." This innovation of the law is suggested on the analogy of sections 260 and 355 of the Criminal Procedure Code and of section 148 (f) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

In some instances it is possible that the record of evidence might have gone to an inordinate length, but they are very rare and not of frequent occurrence. The power given to the Courts by the law to disallow irrelevant questions, if exercised by them properly, is an efficient safeguard against any abuse of the rules of the existing law, and no strong case has been made out for the introduction of the new provision. The Allahabad and Madras High Courts are not in favour of the proposed alteration. Other judicial officers have also expressed an adverse opinion on this point. An Appellate Court cannot be in a position to decide satisfactorily the question of credibility of a witness unless the full record of everything said by him be available to it. In order to enable an Appellate Court to decide a question of fact properly, it is decidedly advantageous that the whole of the evidence given by witnesses should be before it.

Clause 253.—There is one point with respect to this clause which deserves notice. Of course it is not intended by this clause to place a surety in a worse position with respect to right of appeal than the judgment-debtor. But it does not lay down in specific terms that a surety will have rights of appeal to the same extent as the judgment-debtor has. It is therefore submitted that it should be provided in clear and unambiguous words that a surety against whom execution of a decree or order is sought should have the same right of appeal as the judgment-debtor, so that there may be no room for any doubt on this point.

Clause 310A.—The existing law enables a judgment-debtor to redeem his immoveable property sold in execution of a decree by depositing in Court the amount of the decretal money specified in the sale proclamation and 5 per cent. of the purchase-money. A material alteration on this subject is now proposed by sub-clause (1) (ii) of this clause. By depositing in Court an amount equal to the sale-price instead of the decretal money, a judgment-debtor would be able to redeem the property. The proposed relaxation of the existing law, as embodied in the above-mentioned sub-clause, is open to some serious objections. In a case where the amount of the decree for which the property is sold is less than the purchase-money, it does not appear proper that the judgment-debtor should be required to deposit the whole of the purchase-money in order to get his property redeemed. Moreover, a dishonest judgment-debtor will try to take advantage of this alteration by getting the property sold at a small price and have it redeemed by the payment of that sum; and as sub-clause (4) protects the property, so redeemed, from further liability to attachment and sale in execution of the same decree, the judgment-debtor will be enabled to retain the property and defeat the just claims of the judgment-creditor. In cases of sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree for enforcement of mortgage, a judgment-creditor's interest is more likely to be jeopardized, specially when the judgment-debtor has got no other property from which the decree can be satisfied.

Clause 311.—Material irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale when resulting in a substantial injury to a judgment-debtor has been considered a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale of immoveable property held in execution of a decree, ever since the introduction of the first Code of Civil Procedure (Act VIII of 1859) in this country. The Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, makes a totally new departure in this respect by providing that a sale may be set aside on the ground of gross inadequacy of price alone. The original Bill had adopted the interpretation of the existing law by Their Lordships of the Privy Council that mere inadequacy of price, unless established as the direct result of the material irregularity, cannot be held to be a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale. In the majority of cases it is almost impossible to prove by direct evidence that the inadequacy of the price is the result of the material irregularity. The only modification, therefore, required of the existing law in this respect is, that if a material irregularity has been committed and the property has been sold at a grossly inadequate price, the Court may presume that the price was inadequate by reason of the irregularity. The proposed amendment of the law goes to the other extreme, and I am afraid it may open the door to the practice of fraud on the decree-holders. In connection with this clause as well as the preceding one, it may be observed that the aim of the law of Civil Procedure should be to provide for greater facilities for creditors in getting their just demands satisfied as speedily as the circumstances of the case would allow. Any provisions which may be conducive to placing into a judgment-debtor's hands means of delaying the recovery of the just demands of a decree-holder should be avoided. The greater there are the facilities for getting a sale set aside, the less there will be attraction for would-be purchasers to come forward to bid at auction-sales in execution of decrees, or to offer an adequate price for the property to be sold. Measures of this nature cannot be expected to encourage the flow of capital in this country; on the contrary, they are in the end likely to react to the detriment of the persons who are in need of borrowing money. Uncertainties in the speedy recovery of the debt to be advanced are sure to tend to the contraction of the credit of the borrowing classes, with the attendant consequences of a demand for a higher rate of interest and the depreciation in value of their property. Therefore, instead of making any material alteration in the existing law by way of providing additional facilities for getting a sale set aside, the adoption of more effective precautionary measures in publishing and conducting the sale with the view of avoiding the property being sold at an under-value would be the more desirable course. This object may be attained by framing necessary rules for the publication, fixing of an upset price, conduct, and confirmation of sale. Such rules may be embodied in the Code itself, or the more preferable course of empowering the High Courts to frame them with the concurrence of the Local Government may be adopted.

Clause 584.—The original Bill provided that no second appeal shall lie in any suit not of the nature cognizable by the Court of Small Causes, unless the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees. In the Bill as now presented by the Select Committee, that provision has been modified to this extent, that Local Governments are empowered to declare, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council by notification, that in any suits or class of suits not of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, when the value does not exceed Rs. 100 a second appeal should not lie. Thus the curtailment of the right of second appeal in suits of the class mentioned above, will in future be entirely in the power of the Executive Government, which it can exercise at any time after going through the formalities prescribed by sub-clauses (3) and (4). It is submitted that, so long as the Government does not or cannot improve the constitution of the intermediate Appellate Courts and the personnel of the presiding officers of those tribunals, there ought not to be any material curtailment of the right of second appeal. The proposed alteration is open to serious objections. In the first place, suits instituted in this country, though small in value, do often relate to landed property or interests therein; and, considering the great importance which the people attach to such property, any curtailment in the right of second appeal is not desirable. In suits relating to land—and it must be noted that I do not include in this category suits for the enforcement of hypothecation or mortgage-contracts—the application of the pecuniary test is most fallacious and misleading. Many such suits are really incapable of being valued in money, and their valuation according to the artificial standard and rules laid down in the Court-fees and Suits Valuation Acts cannot serve as a true criterion of their real value. There are other suits too which, though not relating to landed property, are nevertheless of great importance and which do not admit of being valued in money. There are other classes of cases which involve directly and indirectly interests which are considerably higher in value than the artificial valuation which a suitor is bound to put upon them for fiscal and jurisdiction purposes. The taking away of the right of second appeal in such cases will entail a great hardship on a litigant. He is the best judge as to whether he should or should not carry it in second appeal to the High Court. Such suits, therefore, should be exempted by express legislation from the operation of this clause, and it should not be left to the Executive Government to include or exclude them, in or from, the notifiation which it may issue on the subject.

Fourth Schedule, Article 173A.—There is another point on which I consider that no case for any alteration in the law has been made out. It is limiting to ninety days the period within which a purchaser of immoveable property at an auction-sale in execution of decree must apply for a certificate under clause 316 of the Code; the period being computed from the day on which the sale becomes absolute under clause 312. The consequence of this alteration would be that, though an appeal may be pending from the order confirming the sale, the purchaser will nevertheless be bound to apply for the grant of a certificate. It will not always be the case that the Court will keep the application for certificate pending for an indefinite period till the decision of the appeal. In cases of sale of property of considerable value, the purchaser would have to pay a large sum for Stamp; and, if the decision of the Appellate Court be against him, he will lose the value of the Stamp. In order to avoid such consequences either provision should be made in the Stamp Act for the refund of the value of Stamp of a sale-certificate which may become void on the sale being set aside by the Appellate Court, or the limitation of the period of ninety days should not be prescribed. The purchaser is the best judge to decide whether he should apply for the certificate as soon as the sale becomes absolute under clause 312, or if an appeal is preferred after the decision of the appeal. Sub-clause (2) of clause 316 provides that the title to the property sold shall vest in the purchaser from the date of the certificate and not from before. Every purchaser, therefore, in order to acquire title in the property sold to him is bound to take out the certificate. It should be left to his discretion as to where he should apply for the certificate.

There are some minor points in the Bill on which I would have liked to make some observation, but I refrain at present to say anything regarding them.

Stay of suit where matter in issue in previous suit.

12. Save where a suit has been stayed under the provisions of section 20, the Court shall stay any suit or other proceeding in which the matter in issue is also directly and substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit or other proceeding between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, pending in the same or any other Court, whether superior, co-ordinate or inferior, in British India having jurisdiction to grant the relief sought, or in any Court beyond the limits of British India established by the Governor General in Council and having like jurisdiction, or before His Majesty in Council:

Provided also that nothing in this section shall be deemed to dispense with the necessity for instituting any suit or other proceeding within the period prescribed by the law of limitation for the time being in force.

Res judicata.

13. The adjudication by a finding of fact or of law or of both, expressed in a final and subsisting judgment, order or decree of a competent Court, against which no appeal is pending, shall as a plea be a bar and as evidence be conclusive in any suit or other proceeding to be subsequently decided, subject to the following conditions, namely:— [13 and Expl. (IV).]

I.—The matter directly and substantially in issue in the suit or other proceeding must have been directly and substantially in issue in the previously decided suit or other proceeding. [13.]

Explanation.—For the purposes of this condition,— [Expl. I.]

(a) any matter which was alleged by one party and denied or admitted, expressly or by necessary implication, by the other in the previously decided suit or other proceeding, shall be deemed to have been directly and substantially in issue therein: and

(b) any matter which might and ought to have formed a ground of attack or defence in the previously decided suit or other proceeding and which was omitted to be alleged shall be deemed to have been in issue as aforesaid and to have been adversely decided against the party who omitted to allege it. [Expl. II.]

II. The parties in the suit or other proceeding must be— [13.]

(a) parties to the previously decided suit or other proceeding, or persons claiming under any such parties by a title arising subsequently to the commencement of such suit or proceeding, or

(b) persons who were represented in the previously decided suit or other proceeding by any of the parties therein either— [Expl. V.]

(i) by virtue of any law for the time being in force, or

(ii) by virtue of permission given by the Court under section 30.

[13.] IV.—The judgment, order or decree in the previously decided suit or other proceeding must have been delivered, made or passed by a Court of exclusive or of concurrent jurisdiction upon a matter falling within such jurisdiction, and, where the jurisdiction is concurrent, the Court which adjudicated on the previously decided suit or other proceeding must have been such a Court as would have been competent to adjudicate upon the suit or other proceeding.

xpl. .] Explanation.—For the purposes of this condition, Courts of Small Causes and Criminal Courts shall be deemed not to be Courts of exclusive jurisdiction.

V. The matter must have been heard and finally decided and the decision must have been necessary to the determination of the previously decided suit or other proceeding and not capable of being altered by the Court which gave it otherwise than on review or under sections 202, 206A and 210, and, where the parties were ranged on the same side, it must have adjudicated upon a matter of conflicting interest then in controversy between them.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this condition,—

(a) any matter of the nature referred to in condition I shall be deemed to have been heard and finally decided, notwithstanding that the suit or other proceeding was disposed of—

19. (1) Where a suit is to obtain relief respecting, or compensation for wrong to, immoveable property situate within the limits of a single district, but within the jurisdiction of different Courts, the suit may be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any portion of the property is situate:

(2) Every objection as to jurisdiction arising under sub-section (1) shall be taken at or before the first hearing or, where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, and the Court shall adjudicate upon it before proceeding to try the suit.

(3) Any objection not taken in accordance with sub-clause (1) shall be deemed to have been waived.

Explanation I.—For the purposes of this section, where a person has a permanent dwelling at one place and also a lodging at another place for a temporary purpose only, he shall be deemed to reside at both places in respect of any cause of action arising at the place where he has such temporary lodging.

Explanation II.—For the purposes of this section, a corporation or company shall be deemed to carry on business at its sole or principal office in British India or, in respect of any cause of action arising at any place where it has also a subordinate office, at such place.

Explanation III.—Where the cause of action has arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Court, this section shall not be deemed to be inapplicable merely because the defendant is a foreigner not resident within the territories to which this Code applies.

Illustrations.

(a) A is a tradesman in Calcutta. B carries on business in Delhi. B, by his agent in Calcutta, buys goods of A, and requests A to deliver them to the East Indian Railway Company. A delivers the goods accordingly in Calcutta. A may sue B for the price of the goods either in Calcutta, where the cause of action has arisen, or in Delhi, where B carries on business.

(b) A resides at Simla, B at Calcutta and C at Delhi. A, B and C being together at Benares, B and C make a joint promissory-note payable on demand, and deliver it to A. A may sue B and C at Benares, where the cause of action arose. He may also sue them at Calcutta, where B resides, or at Delhi, where C resides; but in each of these cases, if the non-resident defendant objects, the suit cannot be maintained without the leave of the Court.

(c) A, a subject of the Native State of Sangli and resident therein, borrows money from B within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Subordinate Judge of Belgaum. After A's decease, B sues, in that Court, for recovery of the money from A's legal representatives, being also subjects of the Native State and resident therein. The Subordinate Judge may entertain the suit, as the cause of action arose within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

(2) Where the Court to which the application is made, after hearing such of the parties as desire to be heard, is satisfied that justice is more likely to be done by the suit being instituted or proceeded with in some Court other than the Court where it is pending, it may stay proceedings accordingly.

24. (1) Where a suit may be instituted in any one of two or more Courts and is instituted in one of such Courts and—

CHAPTER IV.

OF PARTIES AND THEIR APPEARANCES, APPLICATIONS AND ACTS.

26. (1) All persons may be joined in one suit as plaintiffs in whom any right to relief in respect of or arising out of the same transaction or series of transactions is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally or in the alternative, where, if such persons brought separate suits, any common question of law or fact would arise: [Cf. O. xvi, r. 1.]

Persons who may be joined as plaintiffs.

Provided that, if, upon the application of any defendant, it appears that such joinder may embarrass or delay the trial of the suit, the Court may order separate trials or make such other order as may be expedient.

Illustrations.

(a) A, a shareholder in a company, sues B, C and D, the directors, to recover damages for loss alleged to have been sustained by him personally through having been fraudulently induced by a declaration by them of an illegal dividend to purchase shares. He cannot join in the same suit a claim on behalf of himself and all other shareholders for repayment of the dividend, because the rights to the reliefs claimed in a personal and in a representative capacity have not arisen out of the same transaction or series of transactions.

(b) A publishes a series of books under the title of the "Aligarh and Agra Publications" so as to induce the belief that the books are publications of corporations at Aligarh and Agra, or either of them. The corporations may join as plaintiffs in a suit to restrain A from using the title because the publication and the belief induced are common questions of fact arising out of the same series of transactions.

(c) In a suit instituted by A, B and C jointly for an injunction against D, E and F it is alleged that all three defendants, as officers of several associations of workmen, conspired to prevent all persons, not belonging to the associations, from obtaining employment in place of the members of the associations. To constitute the overt acts alleged to have been committed in furtherance of the conspiracy, it is averred that D, E and F caused A, B and C to be molested, that E used threatening language to A, and that F assaulted C. It is proved that D was no party to the conspiracy. As the claim arises out of the same series of transactions, and involves the common question of fact and law whether the overt acts were committed in furtherance of the conspiracy, A, B and C may join in the suit, notwithstanding that an injunction is granted against E and F only.

27. Where a suit has been instituted in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, or where it is doubtful whether it has been instituted in the name of the right plaintiff, the Court may at any stage of the suit, subject to the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, section 22, if satisfied that the suit was so commenced through a mistake made in good faith and that it is necessary for the determination of the real matter in dispute so to do, order any other person or persons, [Amended by VII of 1888, s. 8.]

Who may be joined as defendants.

28. All persons may be joined as defendants against whom the right to any relief in respect of the same matter is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally or in the alternative; and judgment may be given against such one or more of the defendants as may be found to be liable, according to their respective liabilities, without any amendment.

Illustration.

A purchases a plot of land from B and obtains possession of it. C dispossesses A from the land, and claims it by right of prior purchase from B. A sues C for possession with an alternative claim for refund of the purchase-money against B. The suit is maintainable.

Joinder of parties liable on same contract.

29. The plaintiff may, at his option, join as parties to the same suit all or any of the persons severally, or jointly and severally, liable on any one contract, including parties to bills of exchange, hundis and promissory-notes.

Suit or defence by one person on behalf of all having same interest.

30. (1) Where there are numerous persons capable of being ascertained, and having the same interest in one suit, one or more of such persons, with the express permission of the Court given before the commencement of the suit or at any time afterwards, may sue or be sued, or may defend, in such suit, on behalf of all persons so interested; but the Court shall in such case give notice of the institution of the suit to all such persons either by personal service or, where from the number of persons or any other cause such service is not reasonably practicable, by public advertisement, as the Court in each case may direct; and the Court shall direct by whom the costs of and incident to such notice shall be paid.

(2) Any person on whose behalf a suit is instituted or defended under sub-section (1) may apply to the Court to be made a party to the suit.

Effect of misjoinder or non-joinder of parties.

31. (1) Save as otherwise provided in sub-section (2), no plaint shall be rejected or suit dismissed by reason of the misjoinder or non-joinder of any party, and the Court may in every suit deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it.

(2) Where the plaintiff, by reason of the misjoinder or non-joinder of any party, has no right to sue and, after a reasonable opportunity to remedy the defect has been given him by the Court, has failed to do so, the plaint may be rejected or the suit dismissed.

Striking out and adding parties.

32. (1) The Court may,—

(a) at or before the first hearing, or, where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, upon the application of either party and on such terms as the Court thinks just, order that the name of any party improperly joined, whether as plaintiff or as defendant, be struck out; and

(b) at any time, subject to the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, section 22, either upon or without such application and on such terms as the Court thinks just, order that any plaintiff be made a defendant or that any defendant be made a plaintiff, and that the name of any person who ought to have been joined, whether as plaintiff or defendant, or whose presence before the Court may be necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, be added.

XV of 1877.

(2) No person shall, without his consent, be added as a plaintiff.

(3) Every party whose name is added under this section as a defendant except where his name is so added on his own application shall be served with a summons in manner hereinafter prescribed.

(4) The Court may give the conduct of the suit to such plaintiff as it deems proper.

(5) The Court may add as a party to a suit any person who appears to it to be a necessary party, although, as against such person, no relief can be granted in view of the law of limitation for the time being in force.

(6) Where a person found by the Court to be a necessary party does not consent to be added as a plaintiff, the Court shall add him as a defendant.

Where defendant added, plaint to be amended.

33. Where a defendant is added, the plaint shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be amended in such manner as may be necessary, and amended copies of the summons and of the plaint shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be served on the new defendant and the original defendants.

Time for taking objections as to non-joinder or misjoinder of parties.

34. All objections on the ground of non-joinder or misjoinder of parties shall be taken before the first hearing or, where issues are

(c) persons carrying on trade or business for and in the names of parties not resident within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court within which limits the appearance, application or act is made or done, in matters connected with such trade or business only, where no other agent is expressly authorized to make and do such appearances, applications and acts.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to apply to the territories for the time being administered, respectively, by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, and the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces or to Oudh; but in those territories and in Oudh the recognized agents of parties by whom such appearances, applications and acts may be made and done, shall be such persons as the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare in this behalf.

OF THE FRAME OF THE SUIT.

42. Every suit shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a final decision upon the subjects in dispute, and so to prevent further litigation concerning them.

Suit how to be framed.

43. (1) Every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled, at the time of the institution of the suit, to make in respect of the cause of action, or, in the case of successive causes of action, in respect of such causes *of action; and, where a plaintiff omits to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquishes, any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished.

Suits to be commenced by plaint.

48. Every suit shall be instituted by the presentation of a plaint to the Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, and the person presenting the plaint shall, at or before the time of presentation, endorse or cause to be endorsed thereon his name, description and place of residence.

Particulars to be contained in plaint.

50. (1) The plaint shall contain the following particulars, namely:—

(a) the name of the Court in which the suit is brought;

(b) the name, description and place of residence of the plaintiff;

(c) the name, description and place of residence of the defendant, so far as they can be ascertained;

(d) where the plaintiff or the defendant is a minor, a statement to that effect;

(2) Where the plaintiff seeks the recovery of money, the plaint shall state the precise amount so far as the case admits:

Provided that, where the plaintiff sues for mesne profits or for damages or for an amount which will be found due to him on taking unsettled accounts between him and the defendant, the plaint need only state approximately the amount sued for.

(3) Where the subject-matter of the suit is immoveable property, the plaint shall contain a description of such property sufficient to identify the same and, in case such property is identified by boundaries or by numbers in a record of settlement or survey, the plaint shall specify such boundaries or numbers.

(4) Where the plaintiff sues in a representative character, the plaint shall show not only that he has an actual existing interest in the subject-matter, but that he has taken the steps (if any) necessary to enable him to institute a suit concerning it.

(5) The plaint shall show that the defendant is or claims to be interested in the subject-matter, and that he is liable to be called upon to answer the plaintiff's demand.

(6) Where the suit is instituted after the expiration of the period ordinarily prescribed by the law of limitation for the time being in force, the plaint shall show the ground upon which exemption from such law is claimed.

Plaints to be signed.

51. The plaint shall be signed by the plaintiff and his pleader (if any), or, where there are two or more plaintiffs, by each of the plaintiffs and his pleader (if any):

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter VI.—Of the Institution of Suits.—Sections 53-54B.)

Amendment of plaint.

53. (1) The plaint may, in the discretion of the Court,—

(a) at any time before judgment, be amended by the Court upon such terms as to the payment of costs as the Court thinks fit;

(b) at or before the first hearing, or, where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, be returned for amendment within a period to be fixed by the Court and upon such terms as to the payment of costs occasioned by such amendment as the Court thinks fit, if—

(i) it is not signed and verified as hereinbefore required, or

(ii) it does not state correctly and without prolixity the several particulars hereinbefore required or contains particulars other than those so required, or

(iii) it is wrongly framed by reason of non-joinder or misjoinder of parties or misjoinder of claims, or

(iv) it is not framed in accordance with the provisions of section 42:

Provided that a plaint shall not be amended either by the Court or by the party to whom it is returned for amendment so as to convert a suit of one character into a suit of a different and inconsistent character.

(2) Where a plaint is amended under this section the amendment shall be signed or initialled by the Judge.

(3) Where the plaint has been returned for amendment and duly amended, the suit shall be deemed to have been instituted on the date when the plaint was first presented.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the official assignee of a deceased insolvent's estate, sues B for Rs. 1,50,000 alleged in the plaint to be unlawfully withheld from the estate in consequence of a payment fraudulently concealed from A's predecessor in office. It is proved that A's predecessor was aware of the payment. A applies to amend his plaint by alleging that, though his predecessor consented to the payment, such consent was illegal, as being a fraud, of a different kind, upon the Court. The amendment cannot be allowed, because to allege fraud of one kind and to substitute fraud of another kind is to convert the suit into one of an inconsistent character.

(b) A, having been put in possession of immoveable property in execution of a decree under appeal, sues B for a declaration of title relating to the property. After the presentation of the plaint, the decree is reversed by the Appellate Court on a technical objection with regard to the framing of the suit, and possession of the property affected thereby is restored to B. A applies to amend his plaint by adding a prayer for possession. The amendment may be allowed as not converting the suit into one of an inconsistent character.

Rejection of plaint.

54. (1) The plaint may, in the discretion of the Court, at or before the first hearing or, where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, be rejected if—

(a) it does not disclose a cause of action, or

(b) it is obviously frivolous or vexatious, or

(c) the plaintiff fails to comply with the provisions of section 58.

(2) The plaint shall, at any stage of the hearing, be rejected if—

(a) the relief sought is undervalued, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to correct the valuation within a period to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so; or

(b) the plaint is written upon paper insufficiently stamped, and the plaintiff, on being required by the Court to supply the requisite stamp-paper within a period to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so; or

(c) the suit appears from the statement in the plaint to be barred by any enactment or rule of law; or

(d) the plaint, having been returned for amendment within a period fixed by the Court, is not amended within such period; or

(e) the provisions of section 58 are not complied with within a period to be fixed by the Court.

Saving of power of Court to prevent abuse of procedure.

54A. Nothing in sections 53 and 54 shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the inherent power of the Court at any time to stay or dismiss any suit or other proceeding or to strike out any passage in any plaint, written statement or application, which is shown to the satisfaction of the Court to be frivolous or vexatious, scandalous and impertinent, or in any way an abuse of its procedure.

Extension of time granted under section 53 or 54.

54AA. Any period fixed by the Court under section 53 or section 54 may from time to time be extended, even though the original period has expired, if such extension appears to the Court to be reasonable and proper. [New. Cf. cl. 52A.]

Validation of certain plaints.

54B. Where a plaint has been presented within the period allowed by the law of limitation for the time being in force, but is written upon paper insufficiently stamped and the insufficiency of the stamp was caused by mistake on the part of the plaintiff as to the amount of the requisite stamp, the Court shall, on his application, fix a period within which he shall supply such requisite stamp.

(2) Where the plaintiff supplies the requisite stamp within the period fixed under sub-section (1) or within such further period as may from time to time be allowed by the Court, the plaint shall have the same effect and be as valid as if it had been properly stamped.

(3) Where the plaintiff fails to supply the requisite stamp as required by sub-section (2), the plaint shall be rejected.

Procedure on rejecting plaint.

55. Where a plaint is rejected, the Judge shall record or cause to be recorded an order, to be signed by him, to that effect with the reasons therefor.

When rejection of plaint does not preclude presentation of fresh plaint.

56. The rejection of the plaint on any of the grounds hereinbefore mentioned shall not of its own force preclude the plaintiff from presenting a fresh plaint in respect of the same cause of action

Return of plaint for presentation to proper Court.

57. (1) The plaint shall, at any stage of the hearing, be returned to be presented to the proper Court if the suit has been instituted in a Court other than *a Court competent to try it.

(2) Where the plaint is returned in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), the Judge shall endorse, or cause to be endorsed, thereon the date of its presentation and return, the name of the party presenting it, and a brief statement, to be signed by him, of the reasons for returning it.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the length of the plaint or the number of the defendants, or for any other sufficient reason, permit the plaintiff to present, in lieu of the copies of the plaint referred to in sub-section (1), a like number of concise statements of the nature of the claim made or of the relief or remedy prayed for, in the suit, and thereupon the plaintiff shall present such statements.

(3) Where the plaintiff sues, or the defendant or any of the defendants is sued, in a representative capacity, the concise statements (if any) presented under sub-section (2) shall show in what capacity the plaintiff or defendant sues or is sued.

(4) The plaintiff may, by leave of the Court, amend such statements so as to make them correspond with the plaint.

(5) The lists, copies of plaint or concise statements referred to in this section shall be signed and certified to be correct by the plaintiff or by his pleader (if any).

(6) The plaintiff shall, either at the time of the admission of the plaint or within such period as the Court may, by general or special order, fix, or within such further period as it may from time to time allow, furnish the copies of the plaint or concise statements hereinbefore referred to and all such information as may be necessary for the purpose of issuing the summons referred to in section 64.

Production of document on which plaintiff sues.

(2) Where the plaintiff relies on any other documents (whether in his possession or power or not) as evidence in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list to be added or annexed to the plaint.

(3) Where any such document is not in the possession or power of the plaintiff, he shall, if possible, state in whose possession or power it is.

Suits on lost negotiable instruments.

61. Where a suit is founded upon a negotiable instrument, and it is proved that the instrument is lost and an indemnity is given by the plaintiff, to the satisfaction of the Court, against the claims of any other person upon the instrument, the Court may pass such decree as it would have passed if the plaintiff had produced the instrument in Court when the plaint was presented and had at the same time delivered a copy of the instrument to be filed with the plaint.

97. Where, on the day and at or after the hour so fixed, it is found, when the suit is called on for hearing, that the summons has not been served upon the defendant in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay, within the time fixed under section 93 and section 95, the court-fee and postal charges (if any) leviable or payable for such service, the Court may dismiss the suit:

CHAPTER IX.

OF WRITTEN STATEMENTS, SET-OFF and counter-claim.

[110 and 112.] Written statement.

110. (1) Any party may tender a written statement of his case at any time before or at the first hearing or, with the leave of the Court, at any later time.

[112, first prov.] (2) The Court may at any time, on the application of any party or of its own motion, require a written statement, or an additional written statement, from any party, and may fix a time for tendering the same.

[114.] (3) Every written statement shall be as brief as the nature of the case admits, and shall not be argumentative; but it shall contain a simple statement of the facts or grounds of law which the party tendering it believes to be material and which he either admits or believes himself to be able to prove or establish; and, where such written statement is tendered by the defendant, he shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, endorse thereon or annex thereto a list of all documents, whether such documents are or not in his possession or power, upon which he intends to rely in support of his case, and the provisions of section 63, so far as they can be made applicable, shall be deemed to apply to such documents as though the defendant were a plaintiff and the written statement were a plaint.

[115.] (4) Every written statement shall be divided into numbered paragraphs, each containing, as nearly as may be, a separate allegation, and shall be signed and verified in the manner provided for the signing and verification of plaints.

Amendment and rejection of written statement

116. (1) Where any written statement—

(a) is not in accordance with the provisions of section 110, or

(b) contains any frivolous, vexatious or irrelevant matter, the Court may amend it then and there, or may, by an order to be endorsed thereon and signed by the Judge, reject it or return it to the party tendering it for amendment within such time as it may fix, subject to such terms with regard to costs or otherwise as it may think fit to impose:

Provided that a written statement shall not be amended, either by the Court or by any party to whom it is returned for amendment, so as to convert the case of the party tendering it into a case of a different and inconsistent character.

(2) Every amendment of a written statement shall be signed or initialled by the Judge.

(3) Where a written statement has been rejected under this section, the party tendering it shall not tender another written statement, unless the Court expressly requires such statement or grants leave to tender it.

Consequences of failure to tender or amend written statement.

113. Where any party fails—

(a) to tender any written statement required by the Court, or [42.]

(b) to amend any written statement returned to him for amendment, within the time fixed by the Court or such further time as the Court may allow, he shall be liable, if a plaintiff, to have his suit dismissed or, if a defendant, to have his defence struck out and to be placed in the same position as if he had not appeared and answered. [cf. 136.]

Set-off and counter-claim.

111. (1) Subject to the foregoing provisions, the defendant may, by written statement, plead, by way of set-off or counter-claim, any claim which can conveniently be disposed of in the suit; and, subject to the law of limitation for the time being in force, such written statement shall have the same effect as a plaint in a cross-suit so as to enable the Court to deliver judgment in the same suit both on the original and on the cross claim.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), the Court may, of its own motion or on the application of the plaintiff made at or before the first hearing or, where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, refuse leave to the defendant to avail himself of any set-off or counter-claim which cannot be conveniently disposed of in the pending suit.

(3) Where the set-off or counter-claim involves matter which is beyond the jurisdiction of the Court but which can be conveniently disposed of in the pending suit, such Court, if it is a Court subordinate to the District Court, shall submit the record with a statement of the circumstances to such District Court.

(4) On the receipt of the record and statement referred to in sub-section (3), the District Court, if it is competent to grant relief in respect of the suit and the set-off or counter-claim, shall either try the suit itself or transfer it for trial to any Court subordinate to it and competent as aforesaid.

(5) Where, on receipt of the record and statement referred to in sub-section (3) or with respect to a suit pending before it, the District Court finds that the set-off or counter-claim involves matter beyond its jurisdiction, it shall, if in its opinion such set off or counter-claim can be conveniently disposed of in the pending suit, submit the record with a report of the circumstances to the High Court to which it is subordinate; and, if the High Court or any Court subordinate to the High Court is competent to grant relief in respect of the whole matter in controversy, the High Court may try the suit or transfer it for trial to such subordinate Court.

(6) Where no Court is competent to grant relief in respect of the whole matter in controversy, the defendant shall be precluded from availing himself of the set-off or counter-claim.

(7) Nothing in sub-sections (3) to (6) shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the right of the defendant to abandon any part of his set-off or counter-claim; but, where any such part is so abandoned, the defendant shall be precluded from bringing a suit in respect of the same part or from again pleading it by way of set-off or counter-claim.

(8) Where the defendant has pleaded a set-off or counter-claim and the suit is stayed, withdrawn or dismissed or abates, the set-off or counter-claim may nevertheless be proceeded with, and, where a set-off or counter-claim is established, the Court may, if the balance between such set-off or counter-claim is in favour of the defendant, pass a decree for the defendant for such balance or may otherwise adjudge to the defendant such relief as he may be entitled to on the merits of the case:

Provided that the lien of any pleader in respect of costs payable to him shall not affect the set-off or counter-claim.

(9) Where the proper court-fee has been paid in respect of any set-off or counter-claim, and—

(a) the Court has, under sub-section (2), refused leave to the defendant to avail himself of such set-off or counter-claim, or

(b) the defendant is precluded by sub-section (6) from availing himself thereof, the defendant, if he institutes a suit in respect of the same claim, shall not be liable to pay any further court-fee on the plaint in such suit.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE EXAMINATION OF THE PARTIES BY THE COURT.

117. (1) At the first hearing of the suit the Court shall ascertain from the parties or their pleaders whether they admit or deny the allegations of fact made in the plaint or written statement (if any) of the opposite party, and not expressly or by necessary implication admitted or denied by the party against whom they are made.

Ascertainment as to admission or denial of allegations in plaint and written statements.

(2) Every admission or denial so ascertained shall be recorded or caused to be recorded by the Court, and such record shall be signed by the Judge.

118. At the first hearing of the suit, or at any subsequent hearing, any party appearing in person or present in Court, or any person able to answer any material question relating to the suit by whom such party or his pleader is accompanied, may be examined orally by the Court: and the Court may, if it thinks fit, put in the course of such examination any question suggested by either party.

Substance of examination to be written.

119. The substance of every examination made under section 118 shall be reduced to writing by, or under the personal direction and superintendence of, the Judge in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XVI with respect to the taking down of the evidence of witnesses, and shall form part of the record of the suit.

Consequence of refusal or inability of pleader to answer.

120. (1) Where the pleader of any party who appears by a pleader, or any such person accompanying the pleader as is referred to in section 118, refuses or is unable to answer any material question relating to the suit which the Court is of opinion that the party whom he represents ought to answer, and is likely to be able to answer if interrogated in person, the Court may postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day and hour and, subject to the provisions of section 66, sub-section (3), direct that such party shall appear in person on such day.

(2) Where, on the day and at or after the hour so appointed, such party fails without lawful excuse, when the suit is called on for hearing,—

(a) to appear in person, or

(b) to answer any such question as is referred to in sub-section (1),

[Cf. 136.] he shall be liable, if a plaintiff, to have his suit dismissed for want of prosecution and, if a defendant, to have his defence (if any) struck out and to be placed in the same position as if he had not appeared and answered.

121. Any party may at any time, by leave of the Court, deliver through the Court interrogatories in writing for the examination of the opposite party, or, where there are two or more opposite parties, of any one or more of such parties, with a note at the foot thereof stating which of such interrogatories each of such persons is required to answer:

Provided that no party shall, except by leave of the Court, deliver more than one set of interrogatories to the same person, and that no defendant shall deliver interrogatories for the examination of the plaintiff unless such defendant has previously tendered a written statement and such statement has been received and placed on the record:

Provided also that interrogatories which do not relate to any matter in question in the suit shall be deemed to be irrelevant, notwithstanding that they might be admissible on the oral cross-examination of a witness.

Particular interrogatories to be submitted to Court.

121A. On an application for leave to deliver interrogatories under section 121, the particular interrogatories proposed to be delivered shall be submitted to the Court; and, in deciding upon the application, the Court shall take into account any offer made by the party sought to be interrogated to deliver particulars or to make admissions or to produce documents relating to the matters in question or any of them; and leave shall be granted as to such only of the interrogatories submitted as the Court considers necessary either for disposing fairly of the suit or for saving costs. [New. Cf. O. xxxi, r. 2.]

Service of interrogatories.

122. Interrogatories delivered under section 121 shall be served on the pleader (if any) of the party interrogated or in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of summons, and the provisions of sections 79 to 83 shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply.

Inquiry into propriety of delivering interrogatories.

123. The Court, in adjusting the costs of the suit, shall, at the instance of any party, inquire, or cause inquiry to be made, into the propriety of any interrogatories delivered; and, if it thinks that such interrogatories have been delivered unreasonably, vexatiously or at improper length, the costs occasioned by the said interrogatories and the answers thereto shall be borne by the party in fault.

Service of interrogatories on person appointed by Government or on member or officer of corporation or company.

124. (1) Where the Secretary of State for India in Council is a party to any suit, any opposite party may apply to the Court for an order allowing him to deliver interrogatories to such person as the Government may appoint in this behalf.

(2) Where any party to a suit is a body corporate or a joint stock company, whether incorporated or not, or any other body of persons empowered by law to sue or to be sued, whether in its own name or in the name of any officer or other person, any opposite party may similarly apply for an order allowing him to

126. Interrogatories shall be answered by affidavit to be filed in Court within ten days from the service thereof or within such further time as the Court may allow.

Interrogatories to be answered by affidavit within certain time.

125. Any party called upon to answer interrogatories, whether by himself or by any such member or officer, may, in the affidavit referred to in section 126, refuse to answer any interrogatory on the ground that it is scandalous or irrelevant, or is not put in good faith for the purposes of the suit, or that the matter inquired into is not sufficiently material at that stage of the suit, or on any other like ground.

Power to refuse to answer interrogatories.

125A. (1) At any time within seven days after the service of interrogatories as provided by section 122 or within such further time as the Court may allow, the party sought to be interrogated may apply to the Court to set aside any interrogatory on the ground that it is unreasonable, vexatious, prolix, oppressive, unnecessary or scandalous.

Application to set aside interrogatories.

(2) An interrogatory shall not be set aside under this section merely because it is intended to supply a defect in pleading which the Court would be competent to remedy by the exercise of the powers conferred on it by section 110, sub-section (2), or section 146; but the Court shall set aside any interrogatory delivered for the purpose of eliciting facts bearing upon any matter in controversy between the parties to the suit, if the object of such interrogatory is one to which the procedure prescribed by sections 133, sub-section (2), and 134C is applicable.

127. Where any person interrogated omits or refuses to answer, or answers insufficiently, any interrogatory, the party interrogating may apply to the Court for an order requiring him to answer or to answer further, as the case may be; and an order may be made requiring him to answer or to answer further, either by affidavit or by oral examination, as the Court may direct:

128. (1) Either party may, by a notice through the Court, within a reasonable time not less than ten days before the hearing, require the other party to admit, saving all just exceptions to the admissibility of such document in evidence, the genuineness of any document material to the suit.

Power to demand admission of genuineness of documents.

(2) Where such notice is not given, the costs of proving such document shall not, unless the Court otherwise directs, be allowed.

(3) Where such notice is given and is not complied with within four days from the service thereof, the party refusing shall bear the expense of proving such document, whatever may be the result of the suit, unless the Court otherwise directs.

(4) Every admission made under this section shall be in writing signed by the other party or his pleader, and shall form part of the record of the suit.

129. (1) The Court may, at any time during the pendency therein of any suit, order any party to the suit to declare by affidavit all the documents which are or have been in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in the suit, and any party to the suit may, at any time before the first hearing, apply to the Court for such an order:

Power to order discovery by affidavit of documents.

Provided that no such order shall be made where and in so far as the Court is of opinion that it is not necessary either for disposing fairly of the suit or for saving costs.

(2) Every affidavit made under this section shall specify which (if any) of the documents therein mentioned the declarant objects to produce, together with the grounds of his objection.

130. The Court may, in its discretion, at any time during the pendency therein of any suit, order the production by any party thereto of such of the documents in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in such suit as the Court thinks fit; and the Court may deal with such documents when produced in such manner as appears just.

Power to order production of documents during suit.

131. (1) Any party to a suit may at any time, before or at the hearing thereof, give notice through the Court to any other party to produce any documents referred to in the plaint, written statement or affidavit of documents for the inspection of the party giving such notice or of his pleader, and to permit such party or pleader to take a copy thereof.

Notice to produce for inspection documents referred to in plaint, written statement or affidavit.

(2) No party failing to comply with such notice shall afterwards be at liberty to put any such document in evidence on his behalf in the suit, unless he satisfies the Court that such document relates only to his own title, or that he had some other and sufficient cause for not complying with the notice.

Notice in reply to notice under section 131.

132. Any party to a suit served with a notice under section 131 shall, within ten days from the service thereof, deliver through the Court to the party giving the same a notice stating a time, within three days from such delivery, at which the documents, or such of them as he does not object to produce, may be inspected at his pleader's office or some other convenient place, and stating which (if any) of the documents he objects to produce, and on what grounds.

Application for order of inspection.

133. (1) Where any party to a suit served with notice under section 131 omits to deliver notice under section 132 of the time for inspection, or objects to give inspection, or names an inconvenient place for inspection, the Court may, on the application of the party desiring it, make an order for inspection at such place and in such manner as it thinks fit.

[134.]

(2) Save in the case of documents referred to in the plaint, written statement or affidavit of the party against whom the application is made, or disclosed in his affidavit of documents, such application shall be founded upon an affidavit showing—

(a) of what documents inspection is sought,

(b) that the party applying is entitled to inspect them, and

(c) that they are in the possession or power of the party against whom the application is made.

(3) An order for inspection shall not be made under this section where and in so far as the Court is of opinion that it is not necessary either for disposing fairly of the suit or for saving costs.

[New. Cf. O. xxxi, r. 19A.]

Production of verified copies of business books in lieu of inspection.

134A. Where the inspection of any business books is applied for, the Court may, if it thinks fit, instead of ordering inspection of the original books, order a copy of any entries therein to be furnished and verified by the affidavit of some person who has examined the copy with the original entries, and such affidavit shall state whether or not there are in the original book any and what erasures, interlineations or alterations:

Provided that, notwithstanding that such copy has been supplied, the Court may order inspection of the book from which the copy was made.

134C. (2) Every application under this section shall be made on an affidavit stating that, in the belief of the declarant, the party against whom the application is made has, or has at some time had, in his possession or power the document specified in the application, and that it relates to the matters in controversy in the suit, or to some of them.

Power to order issue or question on which right to discovery depends to be first determined.

135. Where the party from whom discovery of any kind or inspection is sought objects to the same or to any part thereof, and the Court is satisfied that the right to such discovery or inspection depends on the determination of any issue or question in dispute in the suit, or that for any other reason it is desirable that any such issue or question should be determined before deciding upon the right to the discovery or inspection, the Court may order that the issue or question be determined first and reserve the question as to the discovery or inspection.

[New.]

Applications for discovery, etc., between co-plaintiffs or co-defendants or against several plaintiffs.

135A. (1) Where any right to apply for discovery or for the admission, inspection or production of documents is given by this Chapter, it may be exercised as between parties arrayed on the same side either as plaintiffs or as defendants, if there are matters to be adjusted between them in the suit.

(2) Where there are several plaintiffs and an application for the exercise by the defendant of any such right has been granted, the plaintiffs shall all, unless the Court is satisfied that there is good reason to the contrary, be bound to join in the affidavit (if any) required by this Chapter.

Consequences of failure to answer or give inspection.

136. (1) Where any party fails to comply with any order under this Chapter to answer interrogatories or for discovery, production or inspection, which has been duly served, he shall be liable, if a plaintiff, to have his suit dismissed for want of prosecution, and, if a defendant, to have his defence (if any) struck out and to be

Application of Chapter to minors and persons of unsound mind.

136A. The provisions of the foregoing sections of this Chapter shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to minor parties and to parties of unsound mind and to their next friends and guardians for the suit, and, in the case of any such party, any affidavit mentioned in any of the said sections may be made by a next friend or by a guardian for the suit.

Power of Court to send for papers from its own records or from other Courts.

137. (1) The Court may of its own motion and may in its discretion upon the application of any of the parties to a suit, send for, either from its own records or from any other Court, the record of any other suit or proceeding, and inspect the same.

(2) Every application made under this section shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be supported by the affidavit of the applicant or of his pleader, showing how the record is material to the suit in which the application is made, and that the applicant cannot, without unreasonable delay or expense, obtain a duly authenticated copy of the record or of such portion thereof as the applicant requires, or that the production of the original is necessary for the purposes of justice.

(3) The Court receiving a requisition for the record of a pending suit or other proceeding may, for reasons to be recorded, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the Court making the requisition, postpone compliance with such requisition until the record can be sent without unduly delaying the business of the Court receiving the requisition or until adequate provision is made for the safe custody of the record or for the travelling expenses of an officer to be deputed to convey and guard the record.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to enable the Court to use in evidence any document which, under the law of evidence for the time being in force, would be inadmissible in the suit.

Production of documentary evidence.

138. (1) The parties or their pleaders shall produce at the first hearing of the suit or at such later time as may be fixed by the Court all the documentary evidence of every description in their possession or power, on which they intend to rely as evidence in support of their respective cases, and which has not already been filed in Court, and all documents which the Court has ordered to be produced.

(2) The Court shall receive the documents so produced: [140, § 1.]

Provided that the documents produced by each party are accompanied by an accurate list thereof prepared in such form as the High Court may from time to time direct.

(3) No documentary evidence in the possession or power of any party which should have been, but has not been, produced in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), shall be received at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless, for reasons to be recorded, the Court considers its admission, on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, to be necessary for the ends of justice. [139.]

(4) The Court may at any stage of the suit reject any document which it considers irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible, recording or causing to be recorded the grounds of such rejection. [140, § 2.]

(5) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect—

(a) the duty to produce any document called for by the Court, or

(b) the right to produce any document—

(i) for the cross-examination of the opposite party's witnesses, or

(ii) in answer to any case set up by the opposite party, or

142. Where a document relied on as evidence by either party is considered by the Court to be inadmissible in evidence, there shall be endorsed thereon the particulars mentioned in section 141, sub-section (1), clauses (a), (b) and (c), together with a statement of its having been rejected, and the endorsement shall be signed or initialled by the Judge.

Endorsements on documents rejected as inadmissible in evidence.

143. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 62, section 142A, sub-section (2), or section 141A, sub-section (3), the Court may, if it sees sufficient cause, direct any document or book produced before it in any suit to be impounded and kept in the custody of an officer of the Court, for such period and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

Court may order any document to be impounded.

144. (1) Any person, whether a party to the suit or not, desirous of receiving back any document produced by him in the suit and placed on the record, shall, unless the document is impounded under section 143, be entitled to receive back the same,—

(Part II.—Of Suits in General—Chapter XI.—Of Discovery and of the Admission, Inspection, Production, Impounding and Return of Documents.—Section 145. Chapter XII.—Of the Settlement of Issues.—Sections 146-150.)

Provisions as to documents applied to material objects.

145. The provisions herein contained as to documents shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to all other material objects capable of being produced as evidence.

CHAPTER XII.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ISSUES.

Framing of issues.

146. (1) Issues arise when a material proposition of fact or of law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other.

(2) Each material proposition affirmed by the one party and denied by the other shall form the subject of a distinct issue.

(3) Issues are of two kinds,—

(a) issues of fact, and

(b) issues of law.

(4) At the first hearing of the suit the Court shall, after reading the plaint and the written statements (if any), and after such examination of the parties as may appear necessary, ascertain upon what material propositions of fact or of law the parties are at variance, and shall thereupon proceed to frame and record or cause to be recorded the issues on which the right decision of the case appears to the Court to depend.

(5) Where issues both of fact and of law arise in the same suit and the Court is of opinion that the case may be disposed of on the issues of law only, it shall try those issues first, and for that purpose may, if it thinks fit, postpone the settlement of the issues of fact until after the issues of law have been determined.

(6) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to require the Court to frame and record or cause to be recorded issues where the defendant at the first hearing of the suit makes no defence.

Explanation.—Material propositions are those propositions of fact or of law which a plaintiff must allege in order to show a right to sue or a defendant must allege to establish his defence, set-off or counter-claim.

Materials from which issues may be framed.

147. The Court may frame the issues from all or any of the following materials, namely:—

(a) the allegations made on oath by the parties or by any persons present on their behalf, or made by the pleaders of such parties or persons;

(b) the allegations made in the plaint or in the written statements (if any) tendered in the suit, or in answer to interrogatories delivered in the suit; and

(c) the contents of the documents produced by either party.

Power to examine witnesses or documents before framing issues.

148. Where the Court is of opinion that the issues cannot be correctly framed without the examination of some person not before the Court, or without the inspection of some document not produced in the suit, it may adjourn the framing of the issues to a future day and hour, to be fixed by the Court, and may, subject to the law of evidence for the time being in force and to the provisions of sections 66 and 176 of this Code, by summons or other process, compel the attendance of any person or the production of any document by the person in whose possession it is.

Power to amend, add and strike out issues.

149. The Court may, after hearing the parties or their pleaders if they desire to be heard, at any time before passing a decree,—

(1) amend the issues or frame additional issues on such terms as it thinks fit, and all such amendments or additional issues as may be necessary for determining the matters in controversy between the parties shall be so made or framed, but not so as to convert a suit or defence of one character into a suit or defence of a different and inconsistent character, and

(2) strike out any issues which appear to it to have been wrongly framed or introduced.

Statement in form of issue of question of fact or law.

150. Where the parties to a suit are agreed as to the question of fact or of law to be decided between them, they may state the same in the form of an issue, and enter into an agreement in writing that, upon the finding of the Court in the affirmative or in the negative of such issue,—

(a) a sum of money specified in the agreement, or to be ascertained by the Court or in such manner as the Court may direct, shall be paid by one of the parties to the other, or one of the parties shall be declared entitled to some right or subject to some liability specified in the agreement; or

(b) some property specified in the agreement and in controversy in the suit shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other or as that other may direct; or

(c) one or more of the parties shall do or abstain from doing some particular act specified in the agreement and relating to the matter in controversy.

Delivery of judgment on agreement.

151. (1) Where the Court is satisfied, after making such inquiry as it thinks fit,—

(a) that an agreement entered into under section 150 was duly executed by the parties,

(b) that they have a substantial interest in the decision of such question as aforesaid, and

(c) that the same is fit to be tried and decided,

it may proceed to record and try the issue and state its finding or other decision thereon in the same manner as if the issue had been framed by the Court; and may, upon the finding or other decision on such issue, deliver judgment according to the terms of the agreement.

(2) Upon judgment so delivered, a decree shall follow and may be executed in the same way as if the judgment had been delivered in a contested suit.

CHAPTER XIII.

DISPOSAL OF THE SUIT AT THE FIRST HEARING

Where parties are not at issue.

152. Where at the first hearing of a suit it appears that the parties are not at issue on any question of fact or of law, the Court may at once deliver judgment.

Where one of several defendants is not at issue with plaintiff.

153. Where there are two or more defendants and any one of them is not at issue with the plaintiff on any question of fact or of law, the Court may at once deliver judgment for or against such defendant, and the suit shall proceed against the other defendants only.

Where parties are at issue.

154. (1) Where the parties are at issue on some question of fact or of law and issues have been framed by the Court as hereinbefore provided, if the Court is satisfied that no further argument or evidence than the parties can at once adduce is required upon such of the issues as may be sufficient for the decision of the suit, and that no injustice will result from proceeding with the suit forthwith, the Court may proceed to determine such issues, and, if the finding thereon is sufficient for the decision, may deliver judgment accordingly, whether the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only or for the final disposal of the suit:

Provided that, where the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only, the parties or their pleaders are present and none of them object.

(2) Where the finding is not sufficient for the decision, the Court shall postpone the further hearing of the suit, and shall fix a day and hour for the production of such further evidence, or for such further argument, as may be necessary.

Where either party fails to produce evidence.

155. Where the summons has been issued for the final disposal of the suit and either party fails, without sufficient cause, to produce the evidence on which he relies, the Court may proceed to try and decide the suit forthwith, or may, if it thinks fit, after framing and recording issues under section 146, adjourn the suit for the production of such evidence as may be necessary for its finding or other decision upon such issues.

CHAPTER XIV.

OF ADJOURNMENTS.

Adjournment of hearing and costs thereof.

156. (1) The Court may, if sufficient cause is shown, at any stage of the suit, allow time to the parties or to any of them, and may from time to time adjourn the hearing of the suit.

(2) In every such case, the Court shall fix a day and an hour for the further hearing of the suit, and may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the costs occasioned by the adjournment:

Provided that, when the hearing of evidence has once begun, the hearing of the suit shall be continued from day to day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded by or by direction of the Judge, finds the adjournment of the hearing beyond the following day to be necessary.

Procedure where parties fail to appear.

157. (1) Where, on the day and at or after the hour to which the hearing of the suit is adjourned, the parties or any of them fail to appear, or any costs ordered under section 156, sub-section (2), to be paid before the adjourned hearing have not been so paid when the case is called on for hearing, the Court may proceed to dispose of the suit in one of the modes directed in that behalf by Chapter VIII, or may make such other order as it thinks fit.

(2) Where the Court disposes of the suit in one of the modes directed in that behalf by Chapter VIII, the parties shall be entitled to all the remedies and shall be subject to all the consequences which would apply or follow if the order had been made under the terms of the said Chapter.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XIV.—Of Adjournments.—Section 158. Chapter XV.—Of the Summoning and Attendance of Witnesses.—Sections 159-162.)

158. Where any party to a suit to whom time has been allowed fails to produce his evidence, or to cause the attendance of his witnesses, or to perform any other act necessary for the further progress of the suit, for which time has been allowed, the Court may, notwithstanding such default, proceed to try and decide the suit forthwith.

Power to proceed notwithstanding default of either party.

CHAPTER XV.

OF THE SUMMONING AND ATTENDANCE OF WITNESSES.

159. The parties may,—

Summons to attend to give evidence or produce documents.

(a) where the summons is for the final disposal of the suit, when or at any time after the plaint is registered under section 64, and

(b) where the summons is for the settlement of issues only, when or at any time after the issues are framed under section 146, obtain, on application to the Court or to such officer as the Court may appoint in this behalf, summonses to persons whose attendance is required either to give evidence or to produce documents; and every such application shall give the name, description and place of residence of the witnesses, and, where a witness is summoned to produce any document, also a reasonably accurate description of the document:

Provided that the Court may, for reasons to be recorded, refuse to issue any summons where it considers that the application for such summons has been made for the purpose of vexation or delay or to defeat the ends of justice:

Provided also that wher*e a summons has been issued for the attendance of* any witness but such witness has failed to attend because the party summoning him has made default—

(i) in applying for the summons, or

(ii) in complying with any of the provisions of sections 160 and 162 on the subject of the payment of expenses, or

(iii) in furnishing any of the particulars required by this section to be specified in a summons, within a time affording a reasonable prospect of service before the hearing as provided in section 78A, the Court shall not adjourn the hearing for the attendance of such witness or issue a fresh summons for such attendance unless it is satisfied that such adjournment or fresh summons is necessary for the ends of justice.

160. (1) Every party applying for a summons shall, before the summons is granted and within a period to be fixed by the Court, pay into Court such a sum of money as appears to the Court to be sufficient to defray the travelling and other expenses of the person summoned in passing to and from the Court in which he is required to attend, and for one day's attendance.

Expenses of witnesses to be paid into Court beforehand.

(2) In determining the amount payable under sub-section (1), the Court may, in the case of any person summoned to give evidence as an expert, allow reasonable remuneration for the time occupied both in giving evidence and in performing any work of an expert character necessary for the case.

(3) Where the Court is subordinate to a High Court, it shall, in fixing the scale of such expenses, have regard to the rules (if any) laid down by competent authority.

161. Every sum paid into Court under section 160 shall be tendered to the person summoned at the time of service, where the summons can be served personally.

Tender of expenses to witness.

162. (1) Where it appears to the Court or to such officer as the Court may appoint in this behalf that the sum paid into Court under section 160 is not sufficient to cover the expenses or reasonable remuneration referred to therein, the Court may—

Procedure in case of insufficient payment or detention of witness.

(a) direct such further sum to be paid to the person summoned as appears to be necessary on that account, and, in case of default in payment, order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the moveable property of the party obtaining the summons; or

(b) discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence; or

(c) both order such levy and discharge such person as aforesaid.

(2) Where it is necessary to detain the person summoned for a longer period than one day, the Court may, from time to time,—

(a) order the party at whose instance he was summoned to pay into Court such sum as is sufficient to defray the expenses of his detention for such further period, and, in default of such deposit being made, order such sum to be levied by attachment and sale of the moveable property of such party; or

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XV.—Of the Summoning and Attendance of Witnesses—Sections 163-169.)

(b) discharge the person summoned without requiring him to give evidence; or

(c) both order such levy and discharge such person as aforesaid.

163. Every summons for the attendance of a person to give evidence or to produce a document shall specify the time and place at which he is required to attend, and also whether his attendance is required for the purpose of giving evidence or producing a document, or for both purposes; and any particular document which the person summoned is called on to produce shall be described in the summons with reasonable accuracy.

Time, place and purpose of attendance to be specified in summons.

164. Any person may be summoned to produce a document without being summoned to give evidence; and any person summoned merely to produce a document shall be deemed to have complied with the summons if he causes such document to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same.

Summons to produce document only.

[171.] 165. Any person present in Court may, subject to the law of evidence for the time being in force, be required by the Court to give evidence or to produce any document then and there in his actual possession or power.

Power to require person present in Court to give evidence or produce document.

165A. Subject to the provisions of this Code as to attendance and appearance and to the law of evidence for the time being in force, where the Court at any time thinks it necessary to examine any person other than a party to the suit and not called as a witness by a party to the suit, the Court may, of its own motion, cause such person to be summoned as a witness to give evidence, or to produce any document in his possession, and may examine him as a witness or require him to produce such document.

Power of Court to summon as witnesses strangers to suit.

166. Every summons to a person to give evidence or produce a document shall be served as nearly as may be in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for the service of summons on the defendant; and the provisions of Chapter VII as to proof of service shall apply in the case of every summons served under this section.

Service of summons.

[172.] 167A. Subject to the provisions of this Code as to appearance and attendance and to the law of evidence for the time being in force, whoever is summoned to appear and give evidence in a suit shall attend at the time and place named in the summons for that purpose, and whoever is summoned to produce a document shall either attend to produce it, or cause it to be produced, at such time and place.

Compliance with summons.

168. (1) Where a person to whom a summons has been issued either to attend to give evidence or to produce a document or to cause it to be produced, fails to attend or to produce the document or to cause it to be produced in compliance with such summons, the Court shall, if the certificate of the serving-officer has not been verified by affidavit, and may, if it has been so verified, examine the serving-officer on oath, or cause him to be so examined by another Court, touching the service or non-service of the summons.

Procedure where witness fails to comply with summons.

[Amended by VII of 1888, s. 16.]

(2) Where the Court sees reason to believe that such evidence or production is material, and that such person has, without lawful excuse, intentionally failed to attend or to produce the document or to cause it to be produced in compliance with such summons or has knowingly avoided service, it may issue a proclamation requiring him to attend to give evidence or produce the document or cause it to be produced at a time and place to be named therein; and a copy of such proclamation shall be affixed on the outer door or other conspicuous part of the house in which he ordinarily resides.

(3) In lieu of or at the time of issuing such proclamation, or at any time afterwards, the Court may, in its discretion, issue a warrant, either with or without bail, for the arrest of such person, and may make an order for the attachment of his property to such amount as it thinks fit, not exceeding the amount of the costs of attachment and of the fine which may be imposed under section 169, sub-section (2):

Provided that no Court of Small Causes shall make an order under this section for the attachment of immoveable property.

Explanation.*—For the purposes of this section, non-payment or non-tender of a sum sufficient to defray the expenses referred to in sections 160 and 162 shall, save in the case of a person summoned by the Court under section 165A, be deemed to be a lawful excuse.

[170.] (2) Where such person does not appear, or, appearing, does not satisfy the Court as aforesaid, the Court may impose upon him such fine, not exceeding five hundred rupees, as it thinks fit, having regard to his condition in life and all the circumstances of the case, and may order his property, or any part thereof, to be attached and sold, or, if already attached under section 168, to be sold, for the purpose of satisfying all costs incurred in consequence of such attachment, together with the amount of the said fine (if any):

Provided that, where such person pays into Court the costs and fine as aforesaid, the Court shall order the property to be released from attachment.

[New.] 170B. The provisions of sections 266 to 285 with regard to the attachment of property in the execution of a decree shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to any attachment under this Chapter as if the person whose property is so attached were a judgment-debtor.

CHAPTER XVI.

OF THE HEARING OF THE SUIT AND EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Right to begin.

178B. (1) The plaintiff shall have the right to begin, unless the defendant admits such of the facts alleged by the plaintiff as would, if unrebutted, entitle the plaintiff to a decree, *in respect of the matters in controversy between them, but contends that, either in point of law or on some additional facts alleged by the defendant, the plaintiff is not entitled to any part of the relief which he seeks, in respect of such matters, in which case the defendant shall have the right to begin.

(2) Where the defendant raises a preliminary issue of law involving, if decided in his favour, the dismissal of the suit or so much of it as is in controversy, and the Court directs such preliminary issue to be separately determined, the defendant shall have the right to begin, notwithstanding that he has not admitted the facts alleged by the plaintiff save for the sake of argument upon such preliminary issue.

Statement of case and production of evidence.

179. (1) On the day fixed for the hearing of the suit or on any subsequent day to which the hearing is adjourned, the party having the right to begin shall state his case and produce his evidence in support of the issues which he is bound to prove.

[180 as amended by VII of 1895, s. 2.]

(2) The other party shall then state his case and produce his evidence (if any) and may then address the Court generally on the whole case.

(3) The party beginning may then reply generally on the whole case.

(4) The party beginning may, where there are several issues the burden of proving some of which lies on the other party, at his option, either produce his evidence on those issues or reserve it by way of answer to the evidence produced by the other party; and, in the latter case, the party beginning may produce evidence on those issues after the other party has produced all his evidence, and the other party may then reply specially on the evidence so produced by the party beginning; but the party beginning shall then be entitled to reply generally on the whole case.

(5) The Court may, in its discretion, allow any party to produce his evidence without first stating his case as required by sub-section (1) or (2).

Witnesses to be examined in open Court.

181. The evidence of the witnesses in attendance shall be taken orally in open Court in the presence, and under the personal direction and superintendence, of the Judge.

Evidence to be interpreted in certain cases.

183. Where the evidence is taken down under section 182 in a language different from that in which it is given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, the evidence as taken down in writing shall be interpreted to him in the language in which it is given.

Memorandum when evidence not taken down by Judge.

184. (1) Where the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Judge, he shall be bound, as the examination of each witness proceeds, to make a memorandum of the substance of what each witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record of the suit.

(2) Where the Judge is unable to make such a memorandum, he shall cause the reason to be recorded and the memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court.

When evidence may be taken in English.

185. Where the evidence of a witness is given in English, the Judge may take it down in that language with his own hand, and, unless the parties appearing in person or the pleaders of the parties appearing by pleaders are familiar with English or the language of the Court is English, an authenticated translation of such evidence in the language of the Court shall, *if required

185A. (1) The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct, with respect to any Judge specified in the notification or falling under a description set forth therein, that evidence in cases in which an appeal is allowed may, instead of being taken down in the manner prescribed in the foregoing sections, be taken down by him with his own hand in the English language.

Power for Local Government to require evidence to be recorded in English.

(3) Evidence taken down under sub-section (1) shall be in the form mentioned in section 182, and shall be read over and signed, and, as occasion may require, interpreted and corrected, as if it were evidence taken down under that section.

186. The Judge may, of his own motion or on the application of any party or his pleader, take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question and answer, or any objection to any question, if there appears to be any special reason for so doing.

Taking down of particular question and answer.

Mode of taking down evidence in non-appealable and certain other cases.

(2) Where the Judge is unable to make such a memorandum, he shall cause the reason to be recorded and the memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court.

(b) to refuse either to allow any question or to record any evidence, where and in so far as such statement, address, reply, question or evidence is unreasonable, irrelevant, prolix, vexatious, frivolous, obstructive, scandalous or disrespectful.

191. (1) Where the Judge taking down any evidence, or causing any memorandum to be made, under this Chapter is prevented by death, transfer or other cause from concluding the trial of the suit, any successor to such Judge may deal with such evidence or memorandum as if he himself had taken it down or caused it to be made, and proceed with the suit from the stage at which his predecessor left it.

192. (1) Where a witness is about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or other sufficient cause is shown to the satisfaction of the Court why his evidence should be taken immediately, the Court may, on the application of any party or of the witness, at any time after the institution of the suit, take the evidence of such witness in manner provided by this Code.

Power to examine witness immediately.

(2) Where such evidence is not taken forthwith and in the presence of the parties, such notice of the day and hour fixed for the examination as the Court thinks sufficient shall be given to the parties.

(3) The evidence taken under this section shall be read over to the witness, and, if he admits it to be correct, shall be signed by him, and the Judge shall, if necessary, correct the same or cause it to to be corrected, and shall sign it, and it may then be read at any hearing of the suit.

Where a witness is required to give evidence in two or more connected or analogous suits in the same Court, the Court may, in its discretion, direct that he shall be examined once only and that one record of such examination shall be made in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter; and the evidence so recorded shall be evidence in each of the suits, and the record thereof shall be deemed to form part of the record of each :

Provided that the parties in each of the suits shall be entitled to exercise, so far as may be, all such rights as they might have exercised, under this Code or any other enactment or rule of law for the time being in force, if such witness had been separately examined in the said suit.

Provided that, where it appears to the Court that either party in good faith desires the production of a witness for cross-examination and that such witness can be produced, an order shall not be made authorizing the evidence of such witness to be given by affidavit.

Evidence by affidavit in applications.

195. (1) Upon any application evidence may be given by affidavit, but the Court may, at the instance of either party, order the attendance for cross-examination of the declarant.

Matters to which affidavits to be confined.

196. (1) Affidavits shall be confined to such facts as the declarant is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications, on which statements of his belief may be admitted, provided that reasonable grounds therefor are set forth.

(2) The costs of every affidavit which unnecessarily sets forth matters of hearsay, or argumentative matter, or copies of or extracts from documents, shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be paid by the party producing the same.

Explanation.*—A decree obtained against the assignor in a suit pending at the date of the assignment is within this sub-section, if the assignee had notice of such suit.

(3) This section shall not be deemed to apply unless —

(a) the decree-holder in one of the suits in which the decrees have been made is the judgment-debtor in the other and each party fills the same character in both suits ; and

(b) the sums due under the decrees are definite.

(4) The holder of a decree passed against several persons jointly and severally may treat it as a cross-decree in relation to a decree passed against him singly in favour of one or more of such persons.

Illustrations.

(a) A holds a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. B holds a decree against A for the payment of Rs. 1,000 in case A fails to deliver certain goods at a future day. B cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this section.

(b) A and B, co-plaintiffs, obtain a decree for Rs. 1,000 against C, and C obtains a decree for Rs. 1,000 against B. C cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this section.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XX.—Of the Execution of Decrees and Orders.—Sections 247, 230A, 248, 248A-248C..)

(c) A obtains a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. C, who is a trustee for B, obtains a decree on behalf of B against A for Rs. 1,000. B cannot treat C's decree as a cross-decree under this section.

(d) A, B, C, D and E are jointly and severally liable for Rs. 1,000 under a decree obtained by F. A obtains a decree for Rs. 100 against F singly and applies for execution to the Court in which the joint decree is being executed. F may treat his joint decree as a cross-decree under this section.

Execution in case of cross-claims under same decree.

247. Where application is made to a Court for the execution of a decree under which two parties are entitled to recover sums of money from each other, then,—

(a) if the two sums are equal, satisfaction for both shall be entered upon the decree ; and,

(b) if the two sums are unequal, execution may be taken out only by the party entitled to the larger sum and for so much only as remains after deducting the smaller sum, and satisfaction for the smaller sum shall be entered upon the decree.

[230 (2).]

Discretion of Court to refuse execution against person and property.

230A. The Court may, in its discretion, refuse execution at the same time against the person and against property of the judgment-debtor, and its order shall be final and conclusive.

Notice to show cause against execution in certain cases.

248. (1) Where—

(a) an application for execution is made more than one year after the date of the decree, or

(b) where such application is made against the legal representative of a party to the decree or against the person in possession of the estate or part of the estate of any such party after his decease, the Court executing the decree shall issue a notice to the person against whom execution is applied for requiring him to show cause, on a date to be fixed, why the decree should not be executed against him.

(2) Nothing in the foregoing sub-sections shall be deemed to preclude the Court from issuing any process in execution of a decree without issuing the notice thereby prescribed, if, for reasons to be recorded, it considers that the issue of such notice would cause unreasonable delay or would defeat the ends of justice.

(3) No suit or other proceeding shall lie, by reason merely of want of notice to any legal representative, against any person who, not being the decree-holder, has in good faith purchased property sold by order of a Court competent to execute the decree.

Duty of Court to proceed with execution if in position to proceed

248A. (1) Where and in so far as

(a) on the day and at or after the hour fixed by the Court—

(i) in the notice issued under section 248, or

(ii) of its own motion or on the application of the decree-holder without the issue of such notice, or

(b) on any subsequent day and at or after the hour to which the hearing has been adjourned, the Court is in a position to proceed with the execution when the application is called on for hearing, it shall, subject to the provisions of section 248B, proceed accordingly.

(2) Where and in so far as, on any day and at or after any hour referred to in sub-section (1), the Court, by reason of the decree-holder's default in doing any necessary act, is not in a position to proceed when the application is called on for hearing, it shall, subject as aforesaid, either –

(a) dismiss the application for execution, or

(b) require the decree-holder to put it in a position to proceed.

Procedure where judgment-debtor objects.

248B. Where, on any day and at or after any hour referred to in section 248A, sub-section (1), the judgment-debtor appears when the application is called on for hearing and objects to the execution, in whole or in part, of the decree, the Court shall –

(a) if the objection is one upon which it is bound to stay proceedings and refer the matter for disposal to the Court which passed the decree, stay proceedings and refer the matter accordingly, or

(b) if it is competent to dispose of the objection and allows it, dismiss the application for execution, in whole or in part, as the case may be.

Allowance of time, adjournments and notice.

248C. (1) The Court may allow time to the decree-holder to take steps in aid of execution or to do any act necessary to put the Court in a position to proceed with the execution of the decree.

(2) The Court may adjourn to a future day and hour, to be fixed by it, the hearing of any objection made by the judgment-debtor so as to enable the judgment-debtor or the decree-holder or both to adduce evidence or to do any other act in connection with the objection.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XX.—Of the Execution of Decrees and Orders.—Sections 248F, 248H, 248J, 248L, 250, 252.)

[New.] (3) Notice of the day and hour fixed under sub-section (2) shall be given to the decree-holder and judgment-debtor in all cases, but notice of any time allowed under sub-section (1) shall not be given to the judgment-debtor unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded, considers such notice to be necessary or proper.

Setting aside of order dismissing for default decree-holder's application.

248F. (1) Where an application for execution has been dismissed on any such day as is referred to in section 248A, sub-section (1), in consequence of the decree-holder's default in doing any act necessary to put the Court in a position to proceed with the execution, the decree-holder or, if he is dead, his legal representative may apply to the Court to set aside the order of dismissal, and the Court may, on sufficient cause being shown, set it aside.

(2) Unless such order of dismissal is set aside under sub-section (1), the decree-holder shall be precluded from obtaining

(a) delivery, attachment, sale, garnishment or charging of any property, debt or stock, or

(b) arrest or detention in prison of any person, or

(c) any other mode of execution, where and in so far as delivery, attachment, sale, garnishment or charging of such property, debt or stock or arrest or detention in prison of such person, or any other mode of execution was prayed for in the application and disallowed.

[New.]

Removal of application.

248H. (1) The decree-holder may apply to the Court, on the ground that it will be useless for him to proceed with the execution by reason of the poverty or absence of the judgment-debtor or for any other cause which the Court thinks sufficient, to remove the application from the list of pending cases; and the Court, on being satisfied that the application is reasonable, shall remove the application from the said list, and thereupon all processes issued upon such application in execution of the decree shall come to an end.

(2) An order removing an application from the list of pending cases under this section shall be no bar to a fresh application if at the date of such application the decree is otherwise capable of execution.

Setting aside of order made ex parte.

248J. (1) Where, after notice to a judgment-debtor, an order has been made ex parte against him, the judgment-debtor or, if he is dead, his legal representative, may apply to have it set aside, and, if the Court is satisfied that the judgment-debtor was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing and that his non-appearance has caused a failure of justice, the Court shall set aside the order and allow the applicant to make any objection to the execution of the decree. [New.]

(2) Unless such order is set aside, the judgment-debtor or, if he is dead, his legal representative shall be precluded from making any such objection, whether by appeal or otherwise.

Explanation.—For the purpose of determining the sufficiency of any cause assigned by the judgment-debtor for his non-appearance, the Court shall have regard to the stage of the proceedings in execution and to the notices and other processes which may, from time to time, have been issued.

Witnesses.

248L. The procedure laid down in Chapters XV and XVI as to the summoning and attendance of witnesses and the taking down of their evidence shall, so far as it is applicable, be followed in the execution of decrees. [New.]

Process for execution.

250. (1) When the preliminary measures (if any) required by the foregoing sections have been taken, the Court shall, unless it sees cause to the contrary, issue its process for the execution of the decree. [Amendment made by VI of 1888, s. 3, omitted as unnecessary.]

(2) Every such process shall bear date the day on which it is signed by the Judge or such officer as the Court may appoint in this behalf, and shall be sealed with the seal of the Court and delivered to the proper officer to be executed. [251, first part.]

(3) In every such process a day shall be specified on or before which it should be returned to the Court, and every such process shall remain in force until its actual return.

Mode of Execution.

Enforcement of decree against legal representative.

252. (1) Where a decree is passed against a party as the legal representative of a deceased person, and the decree is for the payment of money out of the property of the deceased, it may be executed by the attachment and sale of any such property.

(2) Where no such property remains in the possession of the judgment-debtor and he fails to satisfy the Court that he has duly applied such property of the deceased as is proved to have come into his possession, the decree may be executed against him to the extent of the property in respect of which he has failed so to satisfy the Court, in the same manner as if the decree had been passed against him personally.

(3) Where such decree is other than a decree for the payment of money, it may be executed against the legal representative to the extent to which a legal representative may be required to deliver property or to perform any other act in lieu of the deceased.

Enforcement of liability of surety.

253. Where any person has become liable as surety for the performance of any decree, or for the restitution of any property taken in execution of a decree, or for the payment of any money, or for the fulfilment of any condition imposed on any person under an order of the Court in any suit or in any proceeding consequent thereon, or of any part thereof, the decree or order may be executed against him, to the extent to which he has rendered himself liable, in the manner herein provided for the execution of decrees:

Provided that such notice in writing as the Court may in each case think sufficient has been given to the surety.

Decree for payment of money.

254. (1) Every decree or order directing a party to pay money as compensation or costs, or as the alternative to some other relief granted by the decree or order, or otherwise, may be enforced by the detention in the civil prison of the judgment-debtor or by the attachment and sale of his property in manner hereinafter provided, or by both.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the execution of a decree or order by the detention in prison of a judgment-debtor who has already been detained in prison for the purpose of executing the same decree or order, unless—

(a) the order of detention in prison has been set aside in appeal or revision, or,

(b) the judgment-debtor has been released on conditions with which he has failed to comply;

in either of which cases, the period during which he has been detained in prison shall be deducted from the period for which he may, under the provisions of section 342, be detained upon any subsequent application.

Decree for specific moveable property.

259. (1) Where a decree is for any specific moveable property or for any share in specific moveable property, it may be executed by the seizure, if practicable, of such moveable property or share, and by the delivery thereof to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as such party may appoint to receive delivery on his behalf, or, subject to the provisions of section 342, by the detention in the civil prison of the judgment-debtor, or by the attachment of his property, or by both detention and attachment, if necessary.

(2) Where any attachment under this section has remained in force for six months, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, such property, whether it is in the possession of the judgment-debtor or in that of any other person on his behalf, may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder, in cases where any amount has been fixed under section 208, such amount, and, in other cases, such compensation as it thinks fit, and shall pay the balance (if any) to the judgment-debtor on his application.

(3) Where the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree and paid all the costs of executing the same which he is bound to pay, or where, at the end of six months from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made, or if made, has been refused, the attachment shall cease.

Decree for specific performance or restitution of conjugal rights or recovery of wife.

260. (1) Where the party against whom a decree has been passed for the specific performance of a contract, or for the restitution of conjugal rights, or for the recovery of a wife, or for the performance of, or abstention from, any particular act, has had an opportunity of obeying the decree and has wilfully failed to obey it, the decree may, subject to the provisions of section 342, be enforced by his detention in the civil prison, or by the attachment of his property, or by both.

(2) Where any attachment under this section has remained in force for one year, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, the property may be sold; and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit, and may pay the balance (if any) to the judgment-debtor on his application.

(3) Where the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree and paid all the costs of executing the same which he is bound to pay, or where, at the end of one year from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made, or where such application has been made and refused, the attachment shall cease.

(4) Where the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the Court is of opinion that no adequate relief can be given to the decree-holder by all or any of the processes referred to in sub-sections (1) to (3), the Court may, either in lieu of or in addition to all or any of such processes and any other penalties or liabilities to which the judgment-debtor may be subject under any enactment or rule of law for the time being in force, do or cause to be done on the application of the decree-holder any act which, by its nature, can be done or caused to be done by the Court and the doing of which will afford the decree-holder such relief as aforesaid; and the cost (if any) of any such act may be recovered from the judgment-debtor as though it were included in, and formed part of, the decree.

Illustration.

A, a person of little substance, erects a building which renders uninhabitable a family mansion belonging to B. A. in spite of his detention in prison and the attachment of his property, declines to obey a decree obtained against him by B and directing him to remove the building. The Court is of opinion that no sum realizable by the sale of A's property would adequately compensate B for the depreciation in the value of his mansion. B may apply to the Court to remove the building and may recover the cost of such removal from A in the execution-proceedings.

[New. Cf. 47 & 48 Vict., c. 68, ss. 2, 3, & 4.] Discretion of Court in executing decrees for the restitution of conjugal rights.

260A. (1) Notwithstanding anything in section 260, the Court, either at the time of passing a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights or at any time afterwards, may direct that the decree shall not be executed by detention in prison, or by attachment of property, or by both.

(2) Where the Court has made an order under sub-section (1), it may,—

(a) if the decree-holder is the wife, direct that, in the event of the decree not being obeyed within such period as may be fixed in this behalf, the judgment-debtor shall make to the decree-holder such periodical payments as may be just, and, if it thinks fit, require that the judgment-debtor shall, to its satisfaction, secure to the decree-holder such periodical payments ;

(b) if the decree-holder is the husband and the judgment-debtor is entitled to any property, either in possession or reversion, or is in receipt of any profits or earnings, order a settlement to be made, to its satisfaction, of such property or any part thereof for the benefit of the children of the marriage or any of them, or order such part as it may think reasonable of such profits or earnings to be periodically paid by the judgment-debtor to the decree-holder or to any other person for the benefit of the children of the marriage, or any of them.

(3) The Court may from time to time vary or modify any order made under sub-section (2) for the periodical payment of money, either by altering the times of payment or by increasing or diminishing the amount, or may temporarily suspend the same as to the whole or any part of the money so ordered to be paid, and again revive the same, either wholly or in part, as it may think just.

(4) Any money ordered to be paid under this section may be recovered as though it were payable under a decree for the payment of money; and the provisions of section 261 shall be deemed to apply to any instrument which it may be necessary to execute for the purpose of securing any periodical payment or of making a settlement of any property ordered thereunder.

Decree for execution of instruments, or endorsement of negotiable instruments.

261. (1) Where a decree is for the execution of an instrument or for the endorsement of a negotiable instrument, and the judgment-debtor neglects or refuses to obey the decree, the decree-holder may prepare the draft of an instrument or endorsement in accordance with the terms of the decree and deliver the same to the Court.

(2) The Court shall thereupon cause the draft to be served on the judgment-debtor in the manner hereinbefore provided for the service of summons together with a notice in writing requiring his objections (if any) thereto to be made within such time as the Court fixes in this behalf.

(3) The decree-holder may also tender a copy of the draft to the Court for execution, upon the proper stamp-paper if a stamp is required by the law for the time being in force.

(4) On proof of such service, the Court, or such officer as it may appoint in this behalf, shall execute the copy so tendered, or may, if necessary, alter the same, so as to bring it into accordance with the terms of the decree and execute it as so altered :

Provided that, where any party objects to the draft so served as aforesaid, his objections shall, within the time so fixed, be stated in writing

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XX.—Of the Execution of Decrees and Orders.—Section 263.)

and argued before the Court, and the Court shall thereupon make such order as it thinks fit, and execute, or alter and execute, the copy in accordance therewith.

(5) The Court, or such officer as it may appoint in this behalf, shall cause to be registered any draft or copy, as the case may be, if its registration is required by the law for the time being in force or the decree-holder desires to have it registered, and may make such order as it thinks fit as to the payment of the expenses of the registration, and such order may be executed as if it were a decree.

1262.1 (6) The execution of an instrument or the endorsement of a negotiable instrument under this section may be in the following form, namely:—

"C. D., Judge of the Court of (or as the case may be), for A. B., in a suit by E. F. against A. B.", or in such other form as the High Court may prescribe, and shall have the same effect as the execution of the instrument or the endorsement of the negotiable instrument by the party ordered to execute or endorse the same.

Decree for immoveable property.

263. (1) Where a decree is for the delivery of any immoveable property, possession thereof shall be delivered to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as he may appoint to receive delivery on his behalf, and, if necessary, by removing any person bound by the decree who refuses to vacate the property.

(2) Possession of a joint and undivided share in immoveable property shall be delivered by affixing a copy of the warrant on some conspicuous place on the property and proclaiming, by beat of drum or other customary mode, the substance of the decree.

(3) Where possession of any building or enclosure is to be delivered and the person in possession, being bound by the decree, does not afford free access, the Court, through its officers, may, after giving reasonable warning and facility to any woman not appearing in public according to the customs of the country to withdraw, remove or open any lock or bolt or break open any door or do any other act necessary for putting the decree-holder in possession.

(4) Where there is on or in the immoveable property any moveable property (other than a growing crop belonging to the judgment-debtor) unaffected by the decree and the owner does not remove it after he has been warned and had every reasonable facility for removing it, the Court, through its officers, shall take possession thereof. Such moveable property shall be kept or, if of a perishable nature, sold by such officer as may be appointed by rules made by the High Court in this behalf, and it or its proceeds, as the case may be, shall, on payment or after deduction of the charges incurred in its removal, custody, management and sale, be delivered to such person as may apply to the Court within the period of thirty days from the date on which the Court takes possession and establish his claim thereto. If no claimant appears within thirty days, such moveable property or the proceeds thereof shall be treated in accordance with the law for the time being in force relating to the disposal of unclaimed property, and shall be made over to the person entitled to the same on his application and identification.

(5) Where there is upon the immoveable property a growing crop unaffected by the decree and belonging to the judgment-debtor, delivery of the whole or any part of the property may, on the application of the judgment-debtor, be postponed until such crop has matured and the judgment-debtor has had every reasonable facility for gathering and removing it. Where no provision is made in the decree under section 211 for the payment of rent or mesne profits until the delivery of possession, the Court executing the decree shall, by order, determine the amount of rent or mesne profits to which the decree-holder is entitled owing to postponement of delivery of possession and direct the payment of such rent or mesne profits to the decree-holder.

(6) On the application of the decree-holder, a notice may be issued to the judgment-debtor, requiring him to refrain from sowing the land and, within a time to be fixed by the notice, to remove any growing crop standing on it, or to show cause to the contrary. If the judgment-debtor fails to show cause to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree-holder shall be entitled to the possession of the land, with any growing crop thereon, but the judgment-debtor may be awarded such compensation for the crop as the Court executing the decree may determine. If the crop has been cut but has not been removed within the time fixed as aforesaid, the Court, through its officers, may cause it to be removed and, if the judgment-debtor refuses to take it, may sell it by auction and keep the sale-proceeds, after deduction of expenses, as money deposited by the judgment-debtor till it is claimed by and delivered to the person entitled to the same.

(7) Where the judgment-debtor, during the pendency of a suit or after the passing of a decree against him for the possession of immoveable property, makes erections thereon and does not remove them within a time to be fixed by the Court, the decree-holder shall be put in possession of the immoveable property with the erections made thereon, and the judgment-debtor shall be precluded from seeking compensation in respect of such erections.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XX.—Of the Execution of Decrees and Orders.—Sections 264, 265, 336.)

(8) Every order made under this section may be enforced by the Court executing the decree as if it were included in and formed part of the decree: and no suit shall lie for any relief which might have been granted by such Court under this section.

Decree for delivery of immoveable property when in occupancy of tenant.

264. Where a decree is for the delivery of any immoveable property in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same and not bound by the decree to relinquish such occupancy, the Court shall order delivery to be made by affixing a copy of the warrant on some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum or other customary mode, at some convenient place, the substance of the decree in regard to the property:

Provided that, if the occupant can be found, a notice in writing containing such substance shall be served upon him, and in such case no proclamation need be made.

Partition of estate or separation of share.

265. (1) Where a decree is for the partition of an undivided estate assessed as such to the payment of undivided revenue to the Government, or for the separate possession of a share in the whole of such an estate, the partition of the estate or the separation of the share shall, if it affects the joint responsibility for the payment of such revenue, be made by the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector *deputed by him in this behalf, in accordance with the rights ascertained under section 215B and with the law (if any) for the time being in force relating—

(a) to the partition, or the separate possession of shares, of such estates, and

(b) to appeals or revision in proceedings relating to such partition or separate possession.

(2) The provisions of section 320, sub-sections (2) to (6), shall be deemed to apply to decrees executed by the Collector or by any gazetted subordinate of the Collector under this section.

Explanation.*—For the purposes of this section, a raiyatwari-holding shall be deemed not to be an "estate".

Arrest and detention in the civil prison.

Arrest and detention of judgment-debtor.

336. (1) A judgment-debtor may be arrested in execution of a decree at any hour and on any day, and shall, as soon as practicable, be brought before the Court, and his detention may be in the civil* prison of the district in which the Court ordering the detention is situate, or, where such civil* prison does not afford suitable accommodation, in any other place which the Local Government may appoint for the detention of persons ordered by the Courts of such district to be detained under this Code:

Provided, first, that, for the purpose of making an arrest under this section, no dwelling-house shall be entered after sunset or before sunrise:

Provided, secondly, that if the judgment debtor, or any person in whose house the officer authorized to make the arrest has reason to believe the judgment-debtor is to be found, refuses access to his house, such officer may remove or open any lock or bolt and may break open the outer door of such house, and, when the officer authorized to make the arrest has duly gained access to any dwelling-house, he may break open the door of any room in which he has reason to believe the judgment-debtor is to be found:

Provided, thirdly, that, if the room is in the actual occupancy of a woman who is not the judgment-debtor and who according to the customs of the country does not appear in public, the officer authorized to make the arrest shall give notice to her that she is at liberty to withdraw, and, after allowing a reasonable time for her to withdraw and giving her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, may enter the room for the purpose of making the arrest:

Provided, fourthly, that, where the decree, in execution of which a judgment-debtor is arrested, is a decree for the payment of money and the judgment-debtor pays the amount of the decree and the costs of the arrest to the officer arresting him, such officer shall at once release him.

(2) The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare that any person or class of persons whose summary arrest might be attended with danger or inconvenience to the public shall not be liable to arrest in execution of a decree otherwise than in accordance with such procedure and after notice to such person as may be prescribed by rules made by the Local Government in this behalf.

(3) The Local Government may in like manner direct that, whenever a judgment-debtor is arrested in execution of a decree for (4) Where a notification under sub-section (3) is for the time being in force, if a judgment-debtor expresses his intention to apply under Chapter XXI to be declared an insolvent and furnishes security, to the satisfaction of the Court, that he will within one month so apply, and that he will appear, when called upon, in any proceeding upon the application or upon the decree in execution of which he was arrested, the Court shall release him from arrest, and, if he fails so to apply, the Court may either direct the security to be realized or commit him to the civil prison in execution of the decree.

[Added by VI of 1888 s. 2.]

(2) Where appearance is not made in obedience to a notice issued under sub-section (1), the Court shall, if the decree-holder so requires, issue a warrant for the arrest of the judgment-debtor.

Warrant for arrest to direct judgment-debtor to be brought up.

337. Every warrant for the arrest of a judgment-debtor shall direct the officer entrusted with its execution to bring the judgment-debtor before the Court with all convenient speed, unless the amount which he has been ordered to pay, together with the interest thereon and the costs (if any) to which he is liable, are sooner paid.

[Added by VI of 1888 s. 8.]

Cancellation of warrant or release of judgment-debtor from arrest on ground of illness.

653. (1) At any time after a warrant for the arrest of a judgment-debtor has been issued, the Court may cancel it on the ground of his serious illness.

Illustration.

A obtains a decree against B in a Provincial Court of Small Causes having jurisdiction over causes of a nature cognizable by such a Court, where the value does not exceed Rs. 500. In execution of this decree he obtains an order for the attachment of moveable property, part of which has already been attached in execution of another decree by order of a Munsif having jurisdiction in such and other causes, where the value does not exceed Rs. 1,000. During the pendency of the attachment made by the Court of Small Causes, the residue of the property is attached in execution of a third decree by the order of a Subordinate Judge having jurisdiction in all causes of a nature cognizable by a Munsif, irrespective of pecuniary value. Objections to the attachment will be determined by the Munsif and by the Subordinate Judge in respect of the property attached by each of them respectively, because, in view of the pecuniary and other limits imposed upon the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes, the Munsif and the Subordinate Judge are Courts of higher grade for the purposes of this section.

Garnishee Orders.

268AA. (1) Where an application is made for execution of a decree for the payment of money by the attachment by way of garnishment of any debt, the Court may, either before or after any oral examination of the judgment-debtor, and upon affidavit by the decree-holder or his authorized agent that any third person is indebted to such judgment-debtor, order that the debt owing or accruing from such third person (hereinafter called "the garnishee") to such judgment-debtor shall be liable to satisfy the decree; and by the same or any subsequent order it may issue a notice to the garnishee to show cause why he should not pay to the holder of such decree the debt due from him to such judgment-debtor, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree and the costs of execution.

Garnishee orders. [New. Cf. O. xiv, r.]

(2) Where an order under sub-section (1) is served upon the garnishee, or such other notice thereof as the [New. Cf. O. xiv, r. 2.]

Court may direct is given to him, the debt to which such order relates shall be deemed to be attached.

[New. Cf. O. xiv, r. 3.] (3) Where the garnishee does not forthwith pay into Court the amount due from him to the judgment-debtor, or an amount equal to the decree, and does not dispute the debt due or claimed to be due from him to such judgment-debtor, or where he does not show cause why he should not pay to the holder of the decree the debts due from him to the judgment-debtor or so much as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree, the Court may order execution to issue, and it may issue accordingly, without any further notice, to realize the amount due from such garnishee, or so such thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree and the costs of execution:

Provided, first, that the absence from British India of the garnishee at the time of the application for attachment shall not in itself render a debt not liable to attachment:

Provided, secondly, that, for the purposes of attachment, it shall not be necessary that the exact amount of the debt should be stated; but it shall be the duty of the Court, in all cases to satisfy itself that the debt is due:

Provided, thirdly, that nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude the judgment-debtor from instituting or prosecuting any suit, or from executing any decree, or from taking any other step necessary for the recovery of the debt; but he shall not receive payment unless the claim, in respect of which the debt is attached, is first satisfied.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, debt means a debt

(a) which is actually due from the garnishee to the judgment-debtor, whether such debt is presently payable or is payable in the future by reason of a present obligation, and

(b) payment of which could be effectually enforced by the judgment-debtor against the garnishee without violation of the rights of third persons; and it includes a debt secured by a mortgage where the mortgagee has a right to sue the mortgagor personally for the same; but nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Court to realize the amount due from the mortgagor-garnishee by the sale of the mortgaged property.

Illustrations.

(a) A has obtained a decree for the payment of Rs. 100 against B, who is employed by C, a private person, at a monthly salary of Rs. 50, payable on the first day of each succeeding month. On the 8th July A applies for a garnishee order to attach in the hands of C the sum of Rs. 50 payable by C, in respect of the month of July, to B on the 1st August. The Court cannot grant the garnishee order because, on the 8th July, there is no present obligation to pay the salary which may or may not be earned by B for July.

(b) A has obtained a decree for the payment of Rs. 100 against B, who holds, as against C, D and E, three mortgages of immoveable property, each executed in consideration of a loan of Rs. 100. Under the mortgage executed by C, B is entitled to reimburse himself only by usufructuary enjoyment of the mortgaged property for a term of years. D has, under his mortgage, bound himself personally to pay the principal with interest on a future date and has agreed that, in default of such payment, B may bring the mortgaged property to sale for the debt. E's mortgage is in the same terms as D's with the further condition that interest shall be payable quarterly, and that, in default of payment of any instalment, the principal and interest shall be realizable immediately by B. In respect of C's mortgage, A is not entitled to a garnishee order because no "debt" is due or accruing from C to B. A can obtain a garnishee order against D because a "debt" is accruing by virtue of a present obligation, but the Court cannot levy the amount before the future date on which it is payable. A can, for like reasons, obtain a garnishee order against E. If E makes default in the payment of interest, the Court may levy the amount of principal and interest due on the mortgage on the date on which, by reason of such default, the amount has become immediately realizable. If E makes no such default, the Court may levy the amount of principal and interest due on the mortgage on the future date on which the amount is declared, in the absence of such default, to be payable.

268C. (1) Where the garnishee disputes his liability, the Court, instead of ordering execution to issue, may order that any issue or question necessary for determining his liability be tried or determined in any manner in which any issue or question in any suit may be tried or determined, and the order made on any issue so tried or question so determined shall have the same force and shall be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise as if it were a decree.

Charging Orders.

Charging orders.

268E. (1) Where a judgment-debtor has any stock standing in his name in his own right or in the name of any person on his account or in trust for him, or has therein any vested interest, the Court may, on the application of any holder of a decree for the payment of money, order that such stock or interest, or such of them or such part thereof as it thinks fit, shall stand charged with the payment of the amount due under such decree; and the holder of the decree shall thereupon be entitled to all such remedies as he would have been entitled to if such charge had been made in his favour by the judgment-debtor:

Provided that no proceedings shall be taken to have the benefit of such charge until after the expiration of six months from the date of the order made under this section.

[Cf. 1 & 2 Vict., c. 110, s. 115.]

(2) Such order shall be made in the first instance ex parte and without notice to the judgment-debtor, and shall be an order to show cause only; and it shall restrain the Government or the corporation, company, partnership or firm concerned from permitting a transfer of such stock in the meantime and until it is made absolute or discharged; and if, after notice of the order to such public officer as the Government may appoint to receive notice on its behalf, or to the person or persons to be restrained by the order, or, in the case of a corporation, company, partnership or firm, to any authorized agent thereof, and before the order is made absolute or discharged, the Government, or such person or persons, or corporation, company, partnership or firm, permit any such transfer to be made, then the Government, or the person or persons, or corporation, company, partnership or firm shall be liable to the holder of the decree for the value or amount of the property so charged and so transferred, or such part thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree; and no disposition of the judgment-debtor in the meantime shall be valid or effectual as against the holder of the decree.

(3) Where the judgment-debtor does not within a time specified in such order show, to the satisfaction of the Court, cause to the contrary, the order shall, on proof of notice to the judgment-debtor or his authorized agent and any person in whose name the stock is standing, be made absolute:

Provided that the Court may, on the application of the judgment-debtor or of any person interested, discharge or vary such order and make such order as to costs as it thinks fit.

Special orders attaching rights to realize certain rents, profits or other debts.

268EE. (1) Where the property to be attached consists of rents of agricultural land, or profits payable in respect of such land, or of any other debts each of which cannot conveniently be garnished under section 268, the Court may, in its discretion and upon the application of the decree-holder, make a charging order declaring the right of the judgment-debtor to realize such rents, profits or debts to be attached for the satisfaction of the decree and, in such case, shall appoint a receiver for the realization of such rents, profits or debts in the manner prescribed in Chapter XXXVIII.

Restraint on Alienation.

Private alienation of property after attachment to be void.

276. Where an attachment has been made in manner aforesaid, any private transfer or charging of the property and any payment of the debt, interest or dividend, or a delivery of the share, to the judgment-debtor during the continuance of the attachment, shall, subject to the provisions of section 305, be void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, claims enforceable under an attachment include claims for the rateable distribution of assets under section 295, sub-section (4)

Investigation of claims and objections.

(a) any property is attached in execution of a decree or is declared by a decree to be liable to be sold in satisfaction thereof, and

(b) any claim is preferred to such property or any objection is made on the ground that such property or any part thereof is not liable to be so attached or sold, or that it is liable to be attached or sold subject to a mortgage or charge, the Court shall register the claim or objection as a suit between the decree-holder as plaintiff and the claimant or objector as defendant or between the claimant or objector as plaintiff and the decree-holder as defendant, as the Court may direct; and the Court shall proceed to try the claim or objection in the same manner and with the like power as if a suit for the property had been instituted by the decree-holder against the claimant or objector or by the claimant or objector against the decree-holder under the provisions of Chapter VI and shall make such order as justice and the circumstances of the case may require:

Provided that, where the Court finds that the property is liable to be attached or sold subject to a mortgage or charge or to a right of redemption, it shall not enquire into the amount due in respect of such mortgage or charge or the amount payable by the person claiming such right of redemption.

(3) Where the property to which any claim or objection under this section relates has been proclaimed or advertised for sale, the Court ordering the sale may postpone it pending the investigation of the claim or objection.

Sale.

SALE GENERALLY.

284. Any Court executing a decree may order that any property attached by it and liable to sale, or such portion thereof as may seem necessary to satisfy the decree, shall be sold, and that the proceeds of such sale, or a sufficient portion thereof, shall be paid to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same.

(2) Such proclamation shall be drawn up after such notice (if any) to the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor as the Court considers sufficient, and shall state the time and place of sale, and specify as fairly and accurately as possible—

(a) the property to be sold;

(b) the revenue assessed upon the estate or part of the estate, where the property to be sold is an interest in an estate or in part of an estate paying revenue to the Government;

(c) any incumbrance to which the property is liable;

(d) the amount for the recovery of which the sale is ordered; and

(e) every other thing which the Court considers material for a purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property.

(3) Every application for an order for sale under this section shall be accompanied by a statement signed and verified in the manner hereinfore prescribed for the signing and verification of plaints and containing, so far as they are known to or can be ascertained by the person making the verification, the matters required by sub-section (2) to be specified in the proclamation.

(4) For the purpose of ascertaining the matters required by sub-section (2) to be specified in the proclamation, the Court may summon any person whom it thinks necessary to summon, and may examine him in respect to any such matters and require him to produce any document in his possession or power relating thereto.

Indemnity for Judges and public officers.

288. No Judge or other public officer shall be answerable for any error, misstatement or omission in any proclamation made under section 287, unless the same has been committed or made dishonestly.

[Amended by VII of 1888, s. 29.]

Mode of making proclamation.

289. (1) Every proclamation under section 287 shall be made and published, as nearly as may be, in the manner prescribed by section 274, sub-section (2).

(2) Where the Court so directs, such proclamation shall also be published in the local official Gazette or in some local newspaper, or in both, and the costs of such publication shall be deemed to be costs of the sale.

(3) Where property is divided into lots for the purpose of being sold separately, it shall not be necessary to make a separate proclamation for each lot, unless proper notice of the sale cannot, in the opinion of the Court, otherwise be given.

Time of sale.

290. (1) Save in the case of property of the kind described in the first proviso to section 269, no sale under this Chapter shall, without the consent in writing of the judgment-debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days in the case of immoveable property, and of at least fifteen days in the case of moveable property, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been affixed in the court-house of the Judge ordering the sale.

Adjournment or stoppage of sale.

291. (1) The Court may, in its discretion, adjourn any sale under this Chapter, including a sale in execution of a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage or charge, to a specified day and hour, and the officer conducting any such sale may in his discretion adjourn the sale, recording his reasons for such adjournment:

Provided that, where the sale is made in, or within the precincts of, the court-house, no such adjournment shall be made without the leave of the Court:

Provided, also, that, where several properties have been placed in a list for the purpose of being sold, nothing in this section shall be deemed to require the officer conducting the sale to record his reasons for any adjournment rendered necessary merely because the sale of any particular property has not been reached.

(2) Where a sale is adjourned under sub-section (1) for a longer period than seven days, a fresh proclamation under section 289 shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor consents to waive it.

(3) Every sale shall be stopped if, before the lot is knocked down, the debt and costs (including the costs of the sale) are tendered to the officer conducting the sale, or proof is given to his satisfaction that the amount of such debt and costs has been paid into the Court which ordered the sale.

295B. (1) Where the property to be sold is agricultural produce, the sale shall be held,—

(3) Until the transfer of such negotiable instrument or stock, the Court may, by order, appoint some person to receive any interest or dividend due thereon and to sign a receipt for the same; and any receipt so signed shall be as valid and effectual for all purposes as if the same had been signed by the party himself.

(2) In such case the Court shall grant a certificate to the judgment-debtor authorizing him, within a period to be mentioned therein and notwithstanding anything contained in section 276, to make the proposed mortgage, lease or sale :

Provided that all moneys payable under such mortgage, lease or sale shall be paid, not to the judgment-debtor, but, save in so far as a decree-holder is entitled to set-off such money under the provisions of section 294, into Court:

[308.] (2) In default of payment within the period mentioned in sub-section (1), the deposit, after defraying the expenses of the sale, shall be forfeited to the Government, and the property shall be re-sold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property or to any part of the sum for which it may subsequently be sold.

[309.] (3) Every re-sale of immoveable property, in default of payment of the purchase-money within the period allowed for such payment by sub-section (1), shall be made after the issue of a fresh proclamation in the manner and for the period hereinbefore prescribed for the sale.

(b) where it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property which purported to be sold, and the purchaser for that reason is unable to obtain possession or is deprived of it.

(2) The finding referred to in sub-section (1), clause (b), shall be binding on the Court if arrived at in a separate suit or other proceeding in a competent Court—

Provided that, where a competent Court has found the judgment-debtor to have no saleable interest in the property and the purchaser for that reason is in fact unable to obtain possession or is deprived of it, the Court shall presume such finding to be correct even though the person from whom it is sought to recover the purchase-money was not a party to, or had no notice of, the suit or other proceeding in which such finding was given.

(4) The repayment of such purchase-money as aforesaid and of the interest (if any) allowed by the Court may be enforced in the manner hereinbefore provided for the execution of decrees for the payment of money.

316. (2) Every certificate granted under sub-section (1) shall bear date the day on which the sale became absolute under section 312, sub-section (1), and a copy thereof shall be sent by the Court, in accordance with the provisions of section 89 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, to the registering officer within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the whole or any part of the property specified in the certificate is situate; and, so far as regards the parties to the suit and persons claiming through or under them, the title to the property sold shall vest in the purchaser from the date of such certificate and not before.

Delivery of immoveable property in occupancy of judgment-debtor.

318. Where the immoveable property sold is in the occupancy of the judgment-debtor or of some person on his behalf or of some person claiming under a title created by the judgment-debtor subsequently to the attachment of such property, and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under section 316, the Court shall, on the application of the holder of the certificate made within three years from the date of the certificate, order delivery to be made by putting such holder or any person whom he may appoint to receive delivery on his behalf in possession of the property, and, if necessary, by removing any person who refuses to vacate the same.

319. Where the property sold is in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same, and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under section 316, the Court shall order delivery thereof to be made by affixing a copy of the certificate of sale in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum or other customary mode, at some convenient place, that the interest of the judgment-debtor has been transferred to the purchaser.

Where Court may authorize Collector to stay public sale of land.

326. (1) Where, in any local area in which no declaration under section 320 is for the time being in force, the property attached consists of land or of a share in land, and the Collector represents to the Court that the public sale of the land or share is objectionable and that satisfaction of the decree may be made within a reasonable period by a temporary alienation or management of the land or share, the Court may authorize the Collector to provide for such satisfaction in the manner recommended by him, instead of proceeding to a sale of the land or share.

(2) In every such case the provisions of section 320, sub-section (2), to section 325C shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply.

Power for Local Government to make rules as to sales of land in execution of decrees for payment of money.

327. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local official Gazette, make rules for any local area imposing conditions in respect of the sale of any class of interests in land in execution of decrees for the payment of money, where such interests are so uncertain or undetermined as, in the opinion of the Local Government, to make it impossible to fix their value.

Stay of sale of immoveable property.

327A. Where an order has been made for the sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree for the payment of money and an appeal is pending against such decree, the sale shall, on the application of the judgment-debtor to the Court which passed the decree, be stayed until the appeal is disposed of, on such conditions (if any) as to the deposit of the decretal amount or the giving of security as the Appellate Court might impose under section 545, sub-section (2).

Transfer to Collector of decrees for execution against immoveable property.

[Amended by VII of 1888, s. 30.]

Transfer of decrees to Collector for execution.

320. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare that in any local area the execution of decrees in cases in which a Court has ordered any immoveable property to be sold, or the execution of any particular kind of such decrees, or the execution of decrees ordering the sale of any particular kind of, or interest in, immoveable property, shall be transferred to the Collector.

(2) The Local Government may also, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, by a like notification make rules for the transmission of such decrees from the Court to the Collector, and for regulating the procedure of the Collector and his subordinates in executing the same and re-transmitting them to the Court.

(3) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) confer upon the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise in the execution of such decrees if their execution had not been transferred to the Collector, including the powers of the Court under sections 294 and 312; and

(b) provide for orders made by the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector, or orders made on appeal with respect to such orders, being subject to appeal to, and revision by, the superior revenue-authorities, as nearly as may be as the orders made by the Court, or orders made on appeal with respect to such orders, would be subject to appeal and revision under this Code or any other law for the time being in force, if such decrees had not been transferred to the Collector.

(4) A power conferred by such rules upon the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector, or upon any appellate or revisional authority, shall not be exerciseable by the Court or by any Court in exercise of any appellate or revisional jurisdiction which it has with respect to decrees or orders of the Court.

(5) The Court shall be precluded from exercising any jurisdiction with respect to any matter relating to the exercise, by the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector, of all or any of the powers vested in him in regard to any decree transferred under this section; but it shall not be precluded from exercising, in any other matter, all or any of the powers vested in it, notwithstanding that the decree has been so transferred; and a civil suit shall lie with respect to any act done or order made by the Collector or by any gazetted subordinate of the Collector with respect to which, if it had been done or made by the Court acting within its jurisdiction, a civil suit would have been maintainable.

(6) In executing a decree transferred to the Collector under this section the Collector and his subordinates shall be deemed to be acting judicially within the meaning of the Judicial Officers Protection Act, 1850.

XVIII of 1850.

321. (1) Where the execution of a decree has been transferred to the Collector under section 320, the Collector may—

Procedure on transfer of decree to Collector for execution.

(a) proceed as the Court would proceed under section 305; or

(b) raise the amount of the decree by letting in perpetuity, or for a term, on payment of a premium, or by mortgaging, the whole or any part of the property ordered to be sold; or

(c) sell the property ordered to be sold or so much thereof as may be necessary.

[322.]

(2) Where the execution of a decree, not being a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same, but being a decree for the payment of money in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered the sale of immoveable property, has been so transferred, the Collector, if, after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, he has reason to believe that all the liabilities of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of his available immoveable property, may proceed as hereinafter provided.

322A. (1) In any such case as is referred to in section 321, sub-section (2), the Collector shall publish a notice in the language of the istrict, allowing a period of sixty days from he date of its publication for compliance and calling upon—

Notice to be given to decree-holders and to persons having claims on property.

(a) every person holding a decree for the payment of money against the judgment-debtor which is capable of execution by the sale of his immoveable property and which such decree-holder desires to have so executed, and every holder of a decree for the payment of money in execution of which proceedings for the sale of such property are pending, to produce before the Collector a copy of the decree, and a certificate from the Court which passed or is executing the same, declaring the amount recoverable thereunder;

(b) every person having any claim on the said property to submit to the Collector a statement of such claim, and to produce the documents (if any) by which it is evidenced.

(2) Such notice shall be published by being affixed on a conspicuous part of the court-house of the Court which made the original order under section 304, and in such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit; and, where the address of any such decree-holder or claimant is known, a copy of the notice shall be sent to him by post or otherwise.

322B. (1) Upon the expiration of the period fixed by section 322A, sub-section (1), the Collector shall appoint a day for hearing any representations which the judgment-debtor and the decree-holders or claimants (if any) may desire to make, and for holding such inquiry as he may deem necessary for informing himself as to the nature and the extent of such decrees and claims and of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, and may, from time to time, adjourn such hearing and inquiry.

Amount of decrees for payment of money to be ascertained, and immoveable property available for their satisfaction.

(2) Where there is no dispute as to the fact or extent of the liability of the judgment-debtor to any of the decrees or claims of which the Collector is informed, or as to the relative priorities of such decrees or claims, or as to the liability of any such property for the satisfaction of such decrees or claims, the Collector shall draw up a statement, specifying the amount to be recovered for the discharge of such decrees, the order in which such decrees and claims are to be satisfied, and the immoveable property available for that purpose.

(3) Where any such dispute arises, the Collector shall refer the same, with a statement thereof and his own opinion thereon, to the Court which made the original order under section 304, and shall, pending the reference, stay proceedings relating to the subject thereof; and the Court shall dispose of the dispute if the matter thereof is within its jurisdiction, or transmit the case to a competent Court for disposal, and the final decision shall be communicated to the Collector, who shall then draw up a statement as provided by sub-section (2) in accordance with such decision.

322C. The Collector may, instead of himself issuing the notices and holding the inquiry required by sections 322A and 322B, draw up a statement specifying the circumstances of the judgment-debtor and of his immoveable property so far as they are known to the Collector or appear from the records of his office, and forward such statement to the District Court; and such Court shall thereupon issue the notices, hold the inquiry and draw up the statement required by sections 322A and 322B, and transmit such statement to the Collector.

Where District Court may issue notices and hold inquiry.

322D. The decision by the Court of any dispute arising under section 322B or section 322C shall, as between the parties thereto, have the same force and be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise as if it were a decree.

Effect of decision of Court as to dispute arising under section 322B or 322C.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XX.—Of the Execution of Decrees and Orders.—Sections 323, 324, 324A.)

323. (1) Where the amount to be recovered and the property available have been determined as provided by section 322B or section 322C, the Collector may,—

Scheme for liquidation of decrees for payment of money.

(a) if it appears that the amount cannot be recovered without the sale of the whole of the property available, proceed to sell such property;

(b) if it appears that the amount with interest (if any) in accordance with the decree, and, when not decreed, with interest (if any) at such rates as he thinks reasonable, may be recovered without such sale, raise such amount and interest (notwithstanding any order under section 304)—

(i) by letting in perpetuity or for a term, on payment of a premium, the whole or any part of the said property, or

(ii) by mortgaging the whole or any part of such property, or

(iii) by selling part of such property, or

(v) partly by one and partly by another or others of such modes;

(c) for the purpose of managing under this section the whole or any part of such property, exercise all the powers of its owner;

(d) for the purpose of improving the saleable value of the property available or any part thereof, or of rendering it more suitable for letting or managing, or of preserving the property from sale in satisfaction of an incumbrance, discharge the claim of any incumbrancer which has become payable, or compound the claim of any incumbrancer, whether it has become payable or not;

(e) for the purpose of providing funds to effect such discharge or composition, mortgage, let or sell any portion of the property which he deems sufficient; and,

(f) if any dispute arises as to the amount due on any incumbrance with which he proposes to deal under clause (d) or clause (e), institute a suit in the proper Court, either in his own name or the name of the judgment-debtor, to have an account taken, or agree to refer such dispute to the decision of two arbitrators, one to be chosen by each party, or of an umpire to be named by such arbitrators.

(2) In proceeding under sub-section (1), clause (b), clause (c) or clause (d), the Collector shall be subject to such rules, consistent with this Code, as may from time to time be made in this behalf by the Chief Controlling Revenue-authority.

324. Where, on the expiration of the letting or management under section 323, the amount to be recovered has not been realized, the Collector shall notify the fact in writing to the judgment-debtor or his representative in interest, stating at the same time that, if the balance necessary to make up the said amount is not paid to the Collector within six weeks from the date of such notice, he will proceed to sell the whole or a sufficient part of the said property; and, if on the expiration of the said six weeks the said balance is not so paid, the Collector shall sell such property or part accordingly.

Recovery of balance (if any) after letting or management.

324A. (1) The Collector shall, from time to time, render to the Court which made the original order under section 304 an account of all moneys which come to his hands and of all charges incurred by him in the exercise and performance of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on him under the provisions of this Chapter, and shall hold the balance at the disposal of the Court.

Collector to render accounts to Court.

(2) Such charges shall include all debts and liabilities from time to time due to the Government in respect of the property or any part thereof, the rent (if any) from time to time due to a superior holder in respect of such property or part, and, if the Collector so directs, the expenses of any witnesses summoned by him.

(3) Such balance shall be applied by the Court—

(a) in providing for the maintenance of such members of the judgment-debtor's family (if any) as are entitled to be maintained out of the income of the property, to such amount in the case of each member as the Court thinks fit; and,

(b) where the Collector, after making such provision, has proceeded under section 321, in satisfaction of the original decree in execution of which the Court ordered the sale of immoveable property, or otherwise as the Court may under section 295 direct; or

(c) where the Collector has proceeded under section 321,—

(i) in keeping down the interest on incumbrances on the property;

(ii) where the judgment-debtor has no other sufficient means of subsistence, in providing for his subsistence to such amount as the Court thinks fit; and

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XX.—Of the Execution of Decrees and Orders.—Sections 325-325C., 257, 295.)

(iii) in discharging rateably the claims of the original decree-holders and any other decree-holders who have complied with the said notice, and whose claims were included in the amount ordered to be recovered.

(4) No other holder of a decree for the payment of money shall be entitled to be paid out of such property or balance until the decree-holders who have obtained the order for sale under section 304 have been satisfied, and the residue (if any) shall be paid to the judgment-debtor or such other person as the Court directs.

Sales how to be conducted.

325. Where the Collector sells any property under this Chapter, he shall put it up to public auction, in one or more lots, as he thinks fit, and may—

(a) fix a reasonable reserved price for each lot;

(b) adjourn the sale for a reasonable time whenever, for reasons to be recorded, he deems the adjournment necessary for the purpose of obtaining a fair price for the property;

(c) buy in the property offered for sale, and re-sell the same by public auction or private contract, as he thinks fit.

Restrictions to alienation by judgment-debtor or his representative, and prosecution of remedies by decree-holders.

325A. (1) So long as the Collector can exercise or perform in respect of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, or any part thereof, any of the powers or duties conferred or imposed on him by sections 321 to 325, the judgment-debtor or his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate such property or part except with the written permission of the Collector, nor shall any Civil Court issue any process against such property or part in execution of a decree for the payment of money.

(2) During such period as aforesaid no Civil Court shall issue any process of execution either against the judgment-debtor or his property in respect of any decree for the satisfaction whereof provision has been made by the Collector under section 323.

(3) Such period as aforesaid shall be excluded in the calculation of the period of limitation applicable to the execution of any decree affected by the provisions of this section in respect of any remedy of which the decree-holder has been temporarily deprived.

Provision where property is in several districts.

325B. Where the property of which the sale has been ordered is situate in more districts than one, the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Collector by sections 321 to 325 shall be exercised and performed by such one of the Collectors of the said districts as the Local Government may by general rule or special order direct.

Powers of Collector to compel attendance and production.

325C. In exercising the powers conferred on him by sections 321 to 325, the Collector shall have the powers of a Civil Court to compel the attendance of parties and witnesses and the production of documents.

Payment and distribution of assets realised in execution.

Modes of paying money under decree

257. All money payable under a decree shall be paid—

(a) into the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree; or

(b) out of Court to the decree-holder; or

(c) otherwise as the Court which passed the decree directs.

Proceeds of execution-sale to be rateably distributed among decree-holders.

295. (1) Where assets are held by a Court available for distribution in execution of a decree, and more persons than one have, before such assets became so available, made application, in the form prescribed by section 235, to such Court for the execution of decrees for the payment of money passed against the same judgment-debtor or, if he is dead, against his legal representative, and have not obtained satisfaction thereof, the assets, after deducting the costs of the realization, shall be rateably distributed among all such persons, and each of such persons shall be bound immediately to deliver to the Court, for the purpose of such rateable distribution, any assets realized by him, subsequently to the making of his application for execution, otherwise than through the Court:

Provided first, that, where any property is sold subject to a mortgage or charge, the mortgagee or incumbrancer shall not, as such, be entitled to share in any surplus arising from such sale:

Provided, secondly, that where any property liable to be sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage or charge, the Court may, with the assent of the mortgagee or incumbrancer, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage or charge, giving to the mortgagee or incumbrancer the same right against the proceeds of the sale as he had against the property sold; and

Provided, thirdly, that where any immoveable property is sold in execution of a decree ordering its sale for the discharge of an incumbrance thereon, the proceeds of the sale shall be applied—first, in defraying the expenses of the sale;

secondly, in discharging the amount due on the decree;

thirdly, in discharging the interest and principal moneys due on subsequent incumbrances (if any); and,

fourthly, rateably among the holders of decrees for the payment of money against the judgment-debtor, who have, prior to the sale of the property, applied to the Court which passed the decree ordering such sale for execution of such decrees, and have not obtained satisfaction thereof.

(2) A decree-holder who has caused property to be attached before judgment, shall be entitled to share in a rateable distribution of the property subject to his attachment, notwithstanding that he has made no application for execution.

(3) The holder of a decree for the payment of money passed by a Court other than the Court holding assets available for distribution may apply to the Court holding such assets to share in the rateable distribution although no precept has been issued to such Court under section 223B: but he cannot share in the rateable distribution until such a precept has been received by such Court.

(4) Every application of the nature referred to in sub-section (1), of which the judgment-debtor has notice, shall, subject to any objection made by him thereto and the orders made on such objection by the Court executing the decree, operate as an attachment for such period as the Court may direct, notwithstanding that the original attachment may, for any reason, have ceased.

(5) Where all or any of the assets liable to be rateably distributed under this section are paid to a person not entitled to receive the same, any person so entitled may sue such person to compel him to refund the assets.

(6) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any right of the Government.

Explanation I.—For the purposes of this section, assets realized by the sale of any property in execution of a decree are not available for distribution until the entire amount due from the purchaser has been paid into Court and the sale has become absolute.

Explanation II.—For the purposes of this section,—

(a) every decree, other than a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage or charge, is, to the extent to which money is payable thereunder, a decree for the payment of money, notwithstanding that the amount of money so payable has not yet been ascertained or that relief of another kind has also been granted;

(b) a decree directing the realization of a money-claim from mortgaged or charged property and declaring the judgment-debtor to be personally liable for any deficiency, is a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage or charge, and not a decree for the payment of money;

(c) a decree directing the payment of the balance of a mortgage-debt remaining due after the payment to the mortgagee of the net proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged property is a decree for the payment of money and not a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage; and

(d) a decree directing the payment of money by any person does not cease to be a decree for the payment of money, in so far as that person is concerned, merely because it directs, as against another person, the realization of a money-claim from mortgaged or charged property.

Explanation III.—For the purposes of this section, where the holder of a decree against two or more persons applies for the rateable distribution of the assets realized from the property belonging to one of such persons, or where the holder of a decree against one person applies for a rateable distribution of the assets of that person realized from property belonging to that person and another, such applications are applications for the execution of decrees against the same judgment-debtor.

Explanation IV.—For the purposes of this section, where a sale has been set aside in accordance with the provisions of section 310A, sub-section (1), clause (b), the amount deposited for payment to the decree-holder is assets available for distribution.

Resistance to execution.

328. (1) Where, in the execution of a decree for the possession of property, the officer charged with the execution of the warrant is resisted or obstructed by any person, the decree-holder may complain to the Court at any time within one month from the time of such resistance or obstruction.

Resistance or obstruction to execution of decree.

(2) The Court shall fix a day and hour for investigating the complaint, and shall summon the person against whom the complaint is made to answer the same.

(3) Where the Court is satisfied that the obstruction or resistance was occasioned by the judgment-debtor or by some other person at the instigation of the judgment-debtor, the Court shall inquire into the matter of the complaint, and make such order for the delivery of the property or otherwise as it thinks fit. [329.]

352. (1) Where, after the examination of the debtor and such further inquiry (if any) as may be made under section 351, sub-section (2), or at any earlier stage of the case, the Court is satisfied that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding with the application, it shall dismiss the application and discharge the order made under section 348, sub-section (1).

(2) Where an application presented by a creditor is dismissed under sub-section (1) and the Court is satisfied that the application was frivolous or vexatious, the Court may, on the application of the debtor, award against such creditor such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the debtor for the expense or injury occasioned to him by the application and the proceedings thereon, and such amount may be realized as if it were imposed by the Court in exercise of any power conferred upon it by this Code:

(2) Save in so far as is otherwise provided by sub-section (3), the provisions of section 503, sub-sections (2) and (4), shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to receivers appointed under this section.

(3) Where the debtor is an agriculturist, the receiver shall be such officer as is prescribed by any rules which the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, make in this behalf, and shall, save as may be otherwise provided by such rules, be entitled to no fee, commission or other remuneration in respect of the administration of the estate.

(h) make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with respect to any claim arising out of or incidental to the property of the insolvent, made or capable of being made on the receiver by any person or by the receiver on any person;

(i) divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which, from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances, cannot be readily or advantageously sold.

(2) The leave given for the purposes of this section shall not be a general leave to do all or any of the above-mentioned things, but shall only be leave to do the particular thing or things for which leave is sought in the specified case or cases.

[New. Cf. 46 & 47 Vict., c. 52, s. 37.]

Debts provable in insolvency.

356. (1) Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise or breach of trust shall not be provable under this Chapter.

(2) A person having notice of any act of insolvency available against the debtor shall not prove under the order any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice.

(3) Save as otherwise provided by sub-sections (1) and (2), all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is declared to be an insolvent or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such declaration, shall be deemed to be debts provable in insolvency.

(4) An estimate shall be made by the Court or by the receiver of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid, which by reason of its being subject to any contingency, or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value.

(5) Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by a receiver under sub-section (4) may appeal to the Court.

(6) Where, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall, for the purposes of this Chapter, not be provable under this Chapter.

(7) Where, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated, the Court may direct the value to be assessed and may give all necessary directions for this purpose, and the amount of the value when assessed shall not be provable under this Chapter.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, liability includes any compensation for work done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement or undertaking, whether the breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring before the discharge of the debtor, and generally it includes any express or implied engagement, agreement or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of, money or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount, fixed or unliquidated, as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any contingency or contingencies, and, as to mode of valuation, capable of being ascertained by fixed rules or as matter of opinion.

Mode and costs of proof.

[New. Cf. ibid., sch. II, rr. 3 and 6.]

357. (1) A debt may be proved by delivering, or sending by post, to the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, to the receiver, an affidavit verifying the debt.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part II.—Of Suits in General.—Chapter XXI.—Of Insolvency.—Sections 358-359.)

(2) A creditor shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, bear the costs of proving his debt.

[New. Cf. ibid., r. 9 7.] Secured creditors. 358. (1) Where a secured creditor realizes his security, he may prove the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realized.

(2) Where a secured creditor surrenders his security to the Court or to the receiver for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove his whole debt.

(3) Where a secured creditor does not either realize or surrender his security, he shall, before being entitled to participate in a dividend in order of priority, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

(4) Where a security is so valued, the Court or the receiver may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value; and, where the Court or the receiver is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed, it or he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued shall be offered for sale at such times, and on such terms and conditions, as may be agreed upon between the creditor and the Court or the receiver, or as, in default of such agreement, the Court may direct; and, where the sale is by public auction, the creditor, or the Court or the receiver on behalf of the estate, may bid or purchase:

Provided that the creditor may at any time, by notice in writing, require the Court or the receiver to elect whether it or he will or will not exercise its or his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realized, and, where the Court or the receiver does not, within six months after receiving the notice, signify in writing to the creditor its or his election to exercise the power, it or he shall not be entitled to exercise it; and the equity of redemption, or any other interest in the property comprised in the security which is vested in the Court or the receiver, shall vest in the creditor, and the amount of his debt shall be educed by the amount at which the security has been valued.

(5) Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing, to the satisfaction of the Court or the receiver, that the valuation and proof were made in good faith on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but the costs of every such amendment shall be borne by the creditor and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the receiver allows the amendment without application to the Court.

(6) Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with sub-section (5), the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend received by him in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being available for dividend, any dividend or share of dividend which he may have failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.

(7) Where a creditor, after having valued his security, subsequently realizes it, or where it is realized under sub-section (4), the net amount realized shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor, and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

(8) Where a secured creditor does not comply with the provisions of this section, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

(9) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (4), a creditor shall in no case receive more than sixteen annas in the rupee, and interest as hereinafter provided by this Chapter.

(10) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to relieve a receiver of the necessity for obtaining the leave of the Court in accordance with the provisions of section 355.

Interest. 359. (1) On any debt or sum certain, whereon interest is not reserved or agreed upon, and which is overdue when the debtor is declared an insolvent, and which is provable under this Chapter, the creditor may prove interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, — [New. Cf. ibid., r. 20.]

(a) if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, from the time when such debt or sum was payable to the date of such declaration, or,

(b) if the debt or sum is payable otherwise, from the time when a demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment, to the date of such declaration.

(2) Where a debt has been proved under this Chapter, and such debt includes interest or any pecuniary consideration in lieu of interest, such interest or consideration shall, for the purposes of dividend, be calculated at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, without prejudice to the right of a creditor to receive out of the debtor's estate any higher [Ibid., r. 23.]

[New. Cf. ibid., r. 1.]

360. A creditor may prove a debt not payable when the debtor committed an act of insolvency as if it were payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting only therefrom a rebate of interest at the rate of six per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable, according to the terms on which it was contracted.

Debt payable at future time.

[New. Cf. ibid., rr. 23-25.]

360A. (1) Where the receiver thinks that a creditor has been improperly allowed to prove a debt not provable under this Chapter, the Court may, on the application of the receiver and after notice to the creditor, after such inquiry (if any) as the Court thinks necessary, disallow the creditor's claim to dividend or reduce its amount.

Disallowance and reduction of claim to dividend.

(2) The Court may also, after such inquiry as aforesaid, disallow or reduce the amount of any such claim upon the application of a creditor where no receiver has been appointed or where the receiver declines to interfere in the matter, or, in the case of a composition or scheme, upon the application of the debtor.

(c) all wages, not exceeding ten rupees whether payable for time or for piece-work, of any labourer or workman in respect of services rendered to the insolvent during two months before the date of the order aforesaid.

(2) The debts specified in sub-section (1) shall rank equally between themselves, and shall be paid in full, unless the property of the insolvent is insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportion between themselves.

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration or otherwise, the debts specified in sub-section (1) shall be discharged forthwith in so far as the property of the insolvent is sufficient to meet them.

(4) In the case of partners the partnership property shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of the partnership debts, and the separate property of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. Where there is a surplus of the separate property of the partners, it shall be dealt with as part of the partnership property; and, where there is a surplus of the partnership property, it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate property in proportion to the right and interest of each partner in the partnership property.

[Cf. 46 & 47 Vict., c. 52, s. 40.]

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter all debts proved under this Chapter shall be paid rateably according to the amounts of such debts respectively and without any preference.

(6) Where there is any surplus after payment of the debts specified in sub-section (1), it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date of the order made under section 348, sub-section (1), at the rate of six per centum per annum on all debts proved under this Chapter.

360C. In any local area in which a declaration has been made under section 320 and is in force, no sale of immoveable property paying revenue to the Government or held or let for agricultural purposes shall be made by the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, by the receiver; but, after realizing the other property of the insolvent, the Court shall ascertain—

Provided that no injustice or injury appears to be inflicted by such composition or arrangement on any of the parties concerned:

Provided, also, that there is no reasonable ground for suspecting the composition or agreement to be fraudulent or collusive.

(2) Where any creditor objects to any composition or arrangement to which effect is given or to be given under sub-section (1), the Court shall decide as to the reasonableness of the objection.

[New. Cf. ibid., s. 26.]

Annulment of fraudulent transfers.

360E. Where it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the debtor, after becoming unable to meet his liabilities or in expectation of becoming so, has transferred his property, or any part thereof, with a view to defrauding his creditors or to giving one or more creditors an undue preference over the others, the Court shall annul such transfer, and treat the property transferred as the other property of the debtor:-

360F. (1) In the calculation and distribution of dividends, the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, the receiver shall make provision for—

(a) debts provable under this Chapter and appearing, from the insolvent's statements or otherwise, to be due to persons resident in places so distant that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs, or to establish them if disputed;

(b) debts provable under this Chapter, the subject of claims not yet determined;

(c) disputed proofs or claims; and (d) the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or otherwise.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), all money in hand shall be distributed as dividends.

(3) Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends, shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being in the hands of the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, of the receiver, any dividend or dividends which he may have failed to receive before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends; but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

(4) No action for a dividend shall lie against the receiver, but, where the receiver refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

[New. Cf. ibid., s. 64.]

Management by and allowance to insolvent.

360G. (1) The Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may appoint the insolvent himself to superintend the management of the property of the insolvent or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade (if any) of the insolvent for the benefit of the creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may direct.

(2) The Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may, from time to time, make such allowance as it or he may think just to the insolvent out of his property for the support of himself and his family, or in consideration of his services if he is engaged in winding up his estate; but any such allowance may, at any time, be reduced by the Court.

[New. Cf. 46 & 47 Vict., c. 52, s. 65.]

Right of insolvent to surplus.

360GG. The insolvent shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest as provided by this Chapter, and of the costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings taken thereunder.

[New. Cf. 53 & 54 Vict., c. 71, s. 8.]

Discharge.

360H. (1) A debtor may at any time after having been declared an insolvent, apply to the Court for an order of discharge; and the Court shall fix a day and hour, notice whereof shall be given in the manner provided by section 348, sub-section (3), for hearing such application, and any objections which may be made thereto.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section, the Court may, after hearing the objections of any creditor or, where a receiver has been appointed, of the receiver,—

(a) grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge; or

(b) suspend the operation of the order for a specified time; or

(c) grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the insolvent or with respect to his after-acquired property.

(3) The Court shall refuse an order of discharge where the insolvent has committed an offence in relation to his insolvency, unless, for reasons to be recorded, it is satisfied that such refusal is not required in the interests of justice.

(4) On proof of any of the facts mentioned in sub-section (5), the Court shall—

(a) refuse the discharge; or

(b) suspend the discharge for a period of not less than two years; or

(c) suspend the discharge, until a dividend of not less than eight annas in the rupee has been paid to the creditors; or,

(d) where a receiver has been appointed, require the insolvent as a condition of his discharge to consent to an order for payment to such receiver for any balance or part of any balance of debts provable under this Chapter but not satisfied at the date of discharge, such balance or part of any balance to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the insolvent in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court may direct, and any such order shall be capable of execution as if it were a decree:

Provided that, if at any time after the expiration of two years from the date of an order made under this section, the insolvent satisfies the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of the order, the Court may modify the terms of the order or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it thinks fit.

Provided, also, that application for execution of an order made in favour of a receiver under clause (d) shall not be made except by leave of the Court, which shall not be given unless on proof that the insolvent has, since his discharge, acquired property or income available towards the payment of his debts.

(5) The facts referred to in sub-section (4) are—

(a) that the insolvent's assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible;

(b) that the insolvent has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his insolvency;

(c) that the insolvent has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent;

(d) that the insolvent has contracted any debt provable under this Chapter without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (the burden of proving which shall lie on him) that he would be able to pay it;

(e) that the insolvent has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities;

(f) that the insolvent has brought on, or contributed to, his insolvency by rash and hazardous speculations, or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs;

(g) that the insolvent has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any suit or other proceeding properly instituted against him;

(h) that the insolvent has within three months preceding the date of the order under section 348, sub-section (1), incurred unjustifiable expense by instituting a frivolous or vexatious suit or other proceeding;

(i) that the insolvent has within the period referred to in clause (h), when unable to pay his debts as they become due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors;

(j) that the insolvent has within the period referred to in clause (h) incurred liabilities with a view of making his assets equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities;

(k) that the insolvent has on any previous occasion been declared an insolvent, or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors;

(l) that the insolvent has concealed or removed his property or any part thereof or has been guilty of any other fraud or fraudulent breach of trust.

(6) For the purposes of this section, the report of an official receiver shall be deemed to be evidence; and the Court may presume the correctness of any statement contained therein.

(7) The powers of suspending, and of attaching conditions to, an insolvent's discharge may be exercised concurrently.

(8) A discharged insolvent shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, the receiver may require in the realization and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the Court or the receiver; and, if he fails to give such assistance, the Court may, in addition to any punishment to which he may be liable, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made or anything duly done after the discharge but before the revocation.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, an insolvent's assets shall be deemed to be of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities when the Court is satisfied that his property has realized, or is likely to realize, or with due care in realization might have realized, an amount equal to eight annas in the rupee on his unsecured liabilities.

[New. Cf. 46 & 47 Vict., c. 52, s. 30.]

Effect of order of discharge.

360I. (1) An order of discharge shall not release the insolvent from—

(a) any debt due to His Majesty; or

(b) any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party;

(c) any debt or liability in respect of which he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was a party.

(2) Save as otherwise provided by sub-section (1), an order of discharge shall release the insolvent from all debts provable under this Chapter.

(3) An order of discharge shall be conclusive evidence of the insolvency and of the validity of the proceedings therein, and, in any suit or other proceeding instituted against an insolvent who has obtained an order of discharge in respect of any debt from which he is released by the order, the insolvent may plead that the cause of action occurred before his discharge.

(4) An order of discharge shall not release any person who at the date of the receiving order was a partner or co-trustee with the insolvent or was jointly bound or had made any joint contract with him, or any person who was surety for him.

[New. Cf. ibid., s. 35.]

Power to annul declaration of insolvency.

360J. (1) Where, in the opinion of the Court, a debtor ought not to have been declared an insolvent, or where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the debts of the insolvent have been paid in full, the Court may, on the application of the debtor or of any other person interested, by order in writing, annul the declaration.

(2) Where a declaration is annulled under sub-section (1), all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done, by the Court, officer of the Court or receiver shall be valid; but, subject as aforesaid, the property of the debtor who was declared an insolvent shall vest in such person as the Court may appoint or, in default of any such appointment, shall vest in the debtor to the extent of his right or interest therein on such conditions (if any) as the Court may, by order in writing, declare.

[359.]

Imprisonment of dishonest debtor.

360K. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a debtor who has made an application under section 346 or against whom such an application has been made,—

(a) has been guilty of any concealment or wilful mis-statement in regard either to pecuniary claims against him or to property belonging to him, whether in possession or in expectancy, or held for him in trust, or

(b) has fraudulently concealed, transferred or removed any property, or

(c) has committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application, the Court may, at the instance of any of his creditors, direct him to be detained in the civil prison for a term which may extend to one year, or may, if it thinks fit, send him to a Magistrate to be dealt with according to law.

[New. Cf. 46 & 47 Vict., c. 52, s. 41.]

Undischarged insolvent obtaining credit.

360L. An undischarged insolvent obtaining credit to the extent of fifty rupees or upwards from any person without informing such person that he is an undischarged insolvent shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months.

[New.]

Subordination of Courts and appeals.

360M. (1) For the purposes of this Chapter, all Courts other than a High Court or a District Court shall, when exercising insolvency jurisdiction under this Chapter, be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court.

(2) Save as otherwise provided by sub-section (4), any person aggrieved by an order made in the exercise of insolvency jurisdiction by the Court subordinate to a District Court may appeal to the District Court, whose order upon such appeal shall be final and conclusive.

(3) Any person aggrieved by an order made under section 352, 353, 360E, 360F, sub-section (4), 360H, 360J or 360K, by the District Court otherwise than in appeal from an order made by a subordinate Court, may appeal to the High Court.

(4) Where an appeal to the District Court has been transferred for disposal to a subordinate Court, such subordinate Court shall, for the purposes of sub-sections (2) and (3), be deemed to be the District Court.

PART III.

OF INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXII.

OF THE DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

No abatement by party's death, if right to sue survives.

361. The death of a plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate if the right to sue survives.

Illustrations.

(a) A sues B for libel. A dies. The right to sue does not survive, and the suit abates.

(b) A, a member of a Hindu joint family under the Dayabhaga law, institutes a suit for partition of the family property. A dies, leaving B, a son, his heir. The right to sue survives to B, and the suit does not abate.

Procedure where one of several plaintiffs or defendants dies and right to sue survives.

362. Where there are two or more plaintiffs or defendants and any of them dies, and where the right to sue survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone or against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, the Court shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or against the surviving defendant or defendants.

[Substituted by VII of 1888, s. 32 (1).]

Procedure where one of several plaintiffs dies and right to sue does not survive to surviving plaintiffs alone or where sole, or sole surviving, plaintiff dies.

363. (1) Where there are two or more plaintiffs and any of them dies, and where the right to sue does not survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone but survives to him or them and the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff jointly, the Court may cause the legal representative (if any) of the deceased plaintiff to be made a party, and shall thereupon cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record and proceed with the suit.

(2) Where a sole plaintiff or sole surviving plaintiff dies and the right to sue survives, the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff may apply to the Court to have his name entered on the record in place of the deceased plaintiff, and the Court shall thereupon cause his name to be so entered and proceed with the suit.

(3) Where there are two or more legal representatives of the deceased plaintiff, both or all such legal representatives shall be made parties under sub-section (1), or the names of both or all of them shall be entered under sub-section (2), whether as plaintiffs or defendants.

Abatement where no application by representative of deceased plaintiff.

366. Where within the time fixed by the law of limitation for the time being in force no application under section 363, sub-section (2), is made to the Court by any person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff,—

(a) the Court may by order declare that the suit has abated, and shall, on the application of the defendant, award to the defendant the costs which he may have incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the estate of the deceased plaintiff; or

(b) the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the defendant and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, make such other order as it thinks fit for bringing in the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, or for proceeding with the suit in order to a final determination of the matter in dispute, or for both those purposes.

Explanation.—Save in so far as is otherwise provided by the Succession Certificate Act, 1889, or by any other law for the time being in force, a certificate of heirship, or a certificate to collect debts, does not of itself constitute the person holding it the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff; but, where the person holding any such certificate obtains thereby property belonging to the deceased plaintiff, he may be treated as a legal representative liable in respect of such property.

VII of 1889.

Procedure where dispute as to representative of deceased plaintiff.

367. Where any dispute arises as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit, or decide at or before the hearing of the suit who shall be admitted to be such legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit.

[Amended by VII of 1888, s. 82 (3).]

Procedure where defendant dies before decree.

368. (1) Where at any time before the decree in a suit is passed—

(a) one of two or more defendants dies and the right to sue does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, or the plaintiff may make an application to the Court, specifying the name, description and place of residence of any person whom he alleges to be the legal representative of the deceased defendant, and whom he desires to be made the defendant in his stead.

(b) a sole defendant or sole surviving defendant dies and the right to sue survives,

(2) The Court shall thereupon enter the name of such representative on the record in the place of such defendant, and shall issue a summons to such representative to appear on a day to be therein mentioned to defend the suit; and the case shall thereupon proceed in the same manner as if such representative had originally been made a defendant and had been a party to the former proceedings in the suit:

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part III.—Of Incidental Proceedings.—Chapter XXII.—Of the Death, Marriage and Insolvency of Parties.—Sections 368A, 368B, 368C-372.)

Provided that the person so made a defendant may object that he is not the legal representative of the deceased defendant, or may make any defence appropriate to his character as such representative.

(3) Where within the time fixed by the law of limitation for the time being in force no application under sub-section (1) is made, the Court shall by order declare that the suit has abate*d*, unless the plaintiff satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making the application within such time.

(4) The legal representative of a deceased defendant may apply to have himself made a defendant in place of the deceased defendant, and the provisions of this section shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to the application and to the proceedings and consequences ensuing thereon.

[New.]

368A. For the purposes of sections 363 to 368, the term "legal representative" shall be deemed to include the Crown where and in so far as the Crown is entitled to the property of a deceased plaintiff or defendant.

Legal representative in case of escheat.

368B. Where—

Application of sections 363 to 368 to suits by or against person in representative capacity or as holder of office.

(a) a plaintiff or defendant, suing or being sued in a representative capacity or as the holder of an office, dies or is otherwise divested of his representative capacity or office during the suit, and

(b) another person fills, or in good faith claims to fill, such representative capacity or office, the provisions of sections 363 to 368 shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply as if such other person were the legal representative of the plaintiff or defendant.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, a Hindu or Muhammadan female, suing or being sued in respect of a claim upon which the adjudication will, under the provisions of section 13, condition II, clause (b), sub-head (i), operate as res judicata in favour of or against the reversioner of the last male holder entitled to succeed to property on the death or remarriage of such female, shall be deemed, within the meaning of clause (a), to sue or be sued in a representative capacity, and the reversioner shall be deemed, within the meaning of clause (b), to fill the representative capacity of such female.

368C. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, no judgment, decree or proceeding subsequent to judgment or decree shall be invalid merely because such judgment was delivered, or such decree was passed, or such proceeding was taken, by the Court in ignorance of the death of any party.

Saving of proceedings taken in ignorance of death of party.

369. (1) The marriage of a female plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate, but the suit may notwithstanding be proceeded with to judgment, and, where the decree is against a female defendant, it may thereupon be executed against her alone.

Suit not abated by marriage of female party.

(2) Where the husband is by law liable for the debts of his wife, the decree may, by leave of the Court, be executed against the husband also; and, in the case of judgment for the wife, execution of the decree may, by such leave, be issued upon the application of the husband, where the husband is by law entitled to the subject-matter of the decree.

370. The insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which his assignee or the receiver appointed under section 354 might maintain for the benefit of his creditors, shall not cause the suit to abate:

Where plaintiff's insolvency causes abatement of the suit.

Provided that, where the assignee or receiver neglects or refuses to continue the suit and to give such security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may order, the defendant may apply for the dismissal of the suit on the ground of the plaintiff's insolvency, and the Court may dismiss the suit and award to the defendant the costs which he has incurred in defending the same, to be proved as a debt against the plaintiff's estate.

371. Where a suit abates or is dismissed under this Chapter, no fresh suit shall be brought on the same cause of action:

Effect of abatement or dismissal.

Provided that the person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased or insolvent plaintiff may apply for an order to set aside the abatement or dismissal; and, if it is proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from continuing the suit, the Court shall set aside the abatement or dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

372. (1) In other cases of the assignment, creation or devolution of any interest before a final decree or order has been passed or made in a suit, whether in first instance or in appeal, the suit may, by leave of the Court given either with the consent of all parties or after service of notice in writing upon them and hearing their objections (if any), be continued by or against the person to whom such interest has come, either in addition to or in substitution for the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require.

Procedure in case of assignment before final order in suit.

(2) Where leave to continue a suit has been given under sub-section (1), such suit shall be deemed to have been instituted by or against the person to whom the interest has come, on the day on which it was instituted by or against the person from whom such interest has passed.

Application of Chapter to proceedings.

372B. (1) Nothing in sections 366, 368, sub-section (3), and 371 shall apply to proceedings in execution of decrees.

(2) Save as otherwise provided by sub-section (1), the provisions of this Chapter relating to suits shall be deemed to apply also to proceedings other than suits.

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF THE WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

Withdrawal of suit or abandonment of part of claim.

373. (1) At any time after the institution of a suit, the plaintiff may, subject to such order as the Court may make in regard to costs, withdraw his suit or abandon part of his claim.

(2) Where the Court is satisfied—

(a) that a suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, or

(b) that there are other sufficient grounds for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the subject-matter of a suit or part of a claim, it may, on such terms as it thinks fit, grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from such suit or abandon such part of a claim with liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the subject-matter of such suit or such part of a claim.

(3) Where the plaintiff withdraws from a suit, or abandons a part of a claim, without the permission referred to in sub-section (2), he shall be precluded from bringing any fresh suit as aforesaid.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit any co-plaintiff or co-plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

(5) The powers conferred by this section may be exercised by the Court at any stage of the suit, whether in first instance or in appeal, before a final order is made.

Limitation not affected by first suit.

374. In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted under section 373, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation for the time being in force in the same manner as if the first suit had not been brought, and nothing in section 43 shall be deemed to preclude him from seeking in the fresh suit any relief omitted from the first.

Compromise of suit.

375. Where any party to a suit reports to the Court that such suit has been adjusted wholly or in part by a lawful agreement or compromise, or that the plaintiff has received satisfaction in respect of the whole or any part of the subject-matter of the suit, the Court shall,

(a) if the parties are agreed as to such agreement, compromise or satisfaction, record the same and pass a decree in accordance therewith so far as it relates to the suit, and such decree shall be final and conclusive so far as it relates to so much of the subject-matter of the suit as is dealt with by the agreement, compromise or satisfaction; but,

(b) if the parties are not so agreed, proceed with the trial of the suit.

Application subsequent to decree not affected.

375A. Nothing in this Chapter shall be deemed to apply to any application or other proceeding in any suit subsequent to the final decree other than an application to an Appellate Court pending an appeal from such decree. [Added by Act VI of 1892, s. 2.]

Application of Chapter to set-off and counter-claims.

375B. The provisions of this Chapter relating to a plaintiff shall, so far as they are* applicable, be deemed to apply to a defendant who has pleaded a set-off or counter-claim.

CHAPTER XXIV.

OF PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Deposit by defendant in satisfaction of claim.

376. (1) The defendant in a suit to recover a debt or damages may, at any stage of the suit, deposit in Court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the claim.

(2) Notice in writing of such deposit shall be given through the Court by the defendant to the plaintiff, and the sum deposited shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be paid to the plaintiff on his application. [377.]

(3) From the date of the receipt by the plaintiff of such notice, no interest shall be allowed to the plaintiff on the sum deposited by the defendant, whether it is in full satisfaction of the claim or falls short thereof. [378.]

Procedure where plaintiff accepts deposit as satisfaction in part or in full.

379. (1) Where the plaintiff accepts the sum deposited under section 376 as satisfaction in part only of his claim, he may prosecute his suit for the balance; and, if the Court decides that the sum so deposited was a full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff shall bear the costs of the suit incurred after the deposit, and the costs incurred previously thereto so far as they were caused by excess in the plaintiff's claim.

(2) Where the plaintiff accepts the sum deposited under section 376 as satisfaction in full of his claim, he shall present to the Court a statement to that effect, and such statement shall be filed and the Court shall pass a decree accordingly; and, in directing by whom the costs of each party are to be borne, the Court shall consider which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation.

Illustrations.

(a) A owes B Rs. 100. B sues A for the amount, having made no demand for payment and having no reason to believe that the delay caused by making a demand would place him at a disadvantage. On the plaint being filed, A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should not allow him any costs, the litigation being presumably groundless on his part.

(b) B sues A under the circumstances mentioned in illustration (a). On the plaint being filed, A disputes the claim. Afterwards A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should also give B his costs of suit, A's conduct having shown that the litigation was necessary.

(c) A owes B Rs. 100 and is willing to pay him that sum without suit. B claims Rs. 150 and sues A for that amount. On the plaint being filed, A pays Rs. 100 into Court and disputes only his liability to pay the remaining Rs. 50. B accepts the Rs. 100 in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should order him to pay A's costs.

Chapter to apply to payments under section 257.

379A. The provisions of this Chapter shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to payments made under section 257.

CHAPTER XXV.

OF REQUIRING SECURITY FOR COSTS.

[Amended by VI of 1888, s. 5.]

Security for costs when demandable from plaintiff.

380. (1) Where, at the institution or at any subsequent stage of a suit, it appears to the Court that a sole plaintiff is, or that, where there are two or more plaintiffs, all the plaintiffs are, residing out of British India, and that such plaintiff does not, or that no one of such plaintiffs does, possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India other than the property in suit, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any defendant, order the plaintiff or plaintiffs, within a time to be fixed by the order, to furnish security for the payment of all costs incurred and likely to be incurred by any defendant.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this sub-section, a person leaving British India in such circumstances as to afford reasonable probability that he will not be forthcoming whenever he may be called upon to pay costs, shall be deemed to be residing out of British India.

(2) Where and in so far as a suit, in which the plaintiff is a woman, is a suit for the payment of money or to recover possession of specified moveable property or, in the alternative, the value of such property in money, the Court may at any stage of the suit, on the application of any defendant, make a like order if it is satisfied that the plaintiff does not possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India, other than the property in suit.

[Amended by VII of 1888 s. 33.]

Effect of failure to furnish security.

381. (1) Where security required under section 380 is not furnished within the time fixed thereunder, the Court shall dismiss the suit in so far as it relates to any defendant and any co-defendant associated with him by reason of having been sued for a joint and indivisible relief for whose costs security has not been furnished, unless sufficient cause why such time should be extended is shown to the satisfaction of the Court, in which case the Court may extend it.

(2) Where a suit is dismissed under this section, the plaintiff may apply for an order to set the dismissal aside, and, if it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the plaintiff was prevented by any sufficient cause from furnishing the security within the time fixed, the Court shall set aside the dismissal upon such terms as to security, costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit:

Provided that the dismissal shall not be set aside unless the plaintiff has served the defendant with notice in writing of his application.

XV of 1877.

(3) The provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, with respect to an application under section 103, and of this Code with respect to an appeal from an order rejecting such an application, shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to an application under this section for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit and to an appeal from an order rejecting such an application, respectively.

(4) Nothing in section 13 shall be deemed to preclude a plaintiff whose suit has been dismissed under this section for failure to furnish security, from pleading the subject-matter of such suit in answer or by way of set-off or counter-claim to any suit instituted against him, or from instituting, within the time allowed by the law of limitation for the time being in force, a fresh suit upon the same cause of action:

Provided that such set-off, counter-claim or fresh suit shall be dismissed unless, at or before the time of presenting the plaint or within such further period as the Court may fix, the plaintiff pays all the costs (if any) which he was in the previous suit ordered to bear and gives such security (if any) as the Court may require for the costs incurred or likely to be incurred by the opposite party in respect of such set-off, counter-claim or fresh suit.

CHAPTER XXVI.

OF COMMISSIONS and Local Investigations.

Commissions for the examination of witnesses.

Commission for examination of person within jurisdiction.

383. (1) Any Court may in any suit or other proceeding issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person resident within the local limits of its jurisdiction, who is exempted under this Code from attending the Court, or who is from sickness or infirmity unable to attend it.

[384.]

(2) Such order may be made by the Court either of its own motion or on the application, supported by affidavit or otherwise, of any party or of the witness to be examined.

[385.]

(3) Such commission may be issued to any person whom the Court thinks fit to execute it.

(b) any person who is about to leave such limits before the date on which he is required to be examined in Court; and

(c) any civil or military officer of the Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Judge, attend the Court without detriment to the public service.

(2) Such commission may be issued to any Court, not being a High Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person resides, or to any pleader or other person whom the Court issuing the commission may, subject to any rules made by the High Court in this behalf, think fit to appoint.

(3) The Court on issuing such a commission shall direct whether the commission is to be returned to itself or to any subordinate Court.

Commission for examination of person outside British India.

387. Where the Court to which application is made for the issue of a commission for the examination of a person residing at any place not within British India, is satisfied that the evidence of such person is necessary, the Court may, subject to the provisions, where applicable, of the Evidence by Commission Acts, 1859 and 1885, issue such commission.

Duty and powers of Court receiving commission for examination of person.

388. (1) Every Court receiving a commission for the examination of a person shall either—

(a) examine such person in pursuance of the commission, or

(b) make over such examination to any subordinate Court or to any pleader or other person whom it may, subject to any rules made by the High Court in this behalf, think fit to appoint.

(2) Where the Court makes over the examination to a pleader or other person under clause (b) of sub-section (1) and a sum sufficient for the reasonable expenses of such execution of the commission has not been transmitted by the Court issuing the commission, it shall report to the Court issuing the commission the amount of the sum required.

(3) Every Court which receives a commission for the examination of any person, and every person to whom such examination is made over under clause (b) of sub-section (1), shall give notice of the day and hour fixed for its or his proceedings to the parties, other than a defendant against whom the suit or other proceeding is being heard ex parte, either directly or through the Court which issued or received the commission, as the nature of the case may require.

[389.]

(4) After the commission has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the evidence taken under it, to the Court from which it was issued, unless the order for issuing the commission has otherwise directed, in which case the commission shall be returned in accordance with the terms of such order; and the commission and the return thereto, and the evidence taken under it, shall, subject to the provisions of section 390, form part of the record of the suit or other proceeding.

When depositions may be read in evidence.

390. Evidence taken under a commission shall not be read as evidence in the suit or other proceeding without the consent of the party against whom the same is offered, unless—

(b) the Court in its discretion dispenses with the proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in clause (a), and authorizes the evidence of any person being read as evidence in the suit or other proceeding, notwithstanding proof that the cause for taking such evidence by commission has ceased at the time of reading the same.

Provisions as to execution and return of commissions to apply to commissions issued by foreign Courts.

(b) Courts situate in the United Kingdom or in any British possession, or (c) the Courts of any foreign country for the time being in alliance with His Majesty.

[New.]

Power to hold trial on spot.

391A. Any Court may, if it thinks fit, after notice to the parties, hold the trial of a suit or other proceeding or any part of a suit or other proceeding at any place connected with the subject-matter of such suit or proceeding.

Local inspection.

391AA. (1) Any Judge may, after notice given to the parties, inspect any place connected with a trial before him and may make a memorandum of any facts observed.

(2) A memorandum made by the Judge of any facts observed at an inspection under sub-section (1) may, if the Judge so directs, be placed upon, and shall then form part of, the record:

Provided that the Judge shall first hear and determine any objection which any party may make to the memorandum, and shall, if necessary, correct it accordingly.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the power of a Judge to inspect any place, without notice, with a view merely to more readily appreciating any evidence tendered, or to be tendered, in relation to it.

(4) The fact of an inspection having been made, or of memorandum having been placed on the record, under this section shall not entitle any person to call the Judge as a witness or to examine him upon the facts observed.

Commission for local investigation.

392. (1) In any suit or other proceeding in which the Court deems a local investigation to be requisite or proper for the purpose of elucidating any matter in controversy or of ascertaining the market-value of any property, or the amount of any mesne profits, damages or annual net profits, and such local investigation cannot conveniently be conducted by the Judge himself, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit, directing him to make such local investigation and to report thereon to the Court:

Provided that, where the Local Government has made rules as to the persons to whom such commissions shall be issued, the Court shall be bound by such rules.

(2) The Commissioner, after such local inspection as he deems necessary, and after reducing to writing the evidence taken by him, shall return such evidence, together with his report in writing, signed by him, to the Court.

(3) The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be evidence in the suit or other proceeding and shall form part of the record; but the Court, or, by leave of the Court, any of the parties to the suit, may examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation.

(4) The Court, if for any reason it is dissatisfied with the proceedings of the Commissioner, may direct that such further enquiry be made as it may deem necessary.

Commissions for the examination or adjustment of accounts.

Commission to examine or adjust accounts.

394. (1) In any suit or other proceeding in which an examination or adjustment of accounts is necessary, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such examination or adjustment.

(2) The Court shall furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such detailed instructions as appear necessary, and the instructions shall distinctly specify whether the Commissioner is merely to transmit the proceedings which he may hold on the inquiry, or also to report his own opinion on the point referred for his examination.

(3) The proceedings of the Commissioner shall be received in evidence in the suit or other proceeding, unless the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, in which case the Court shall direct such further inquiry as is requisite.

Commissions for the making of partitions.

Commission to make partition of non-revenue-paying immoveable property.

396. (1) Where a preliminary decree for partition has been passed under section 215B, the Court may, in any case not provided for by the provisions of section 265, issue a commission to such person or persons as it thinks fit to make the partition or separation according to the rights as declared in such decree.

(2) The Commissioner or Commissioners shall ascertain and inspect the property, and shall divide the same into as many shares as may be directed by the order under which the commission was issued, and shall allot such shares to the parties, and may, if authorized thereto by the said order, award sums to be paid for the purpose of equalizing the value of the shares.

(3) The Commissioner or Commissioners shall then prepare and sign a report, or, where the commission was issued to more than one person and they cannot agree, separate reports appointing the share of each party, and, if so directed by the said order, distinguishing each share by metes and bounds.

(4) The report or reports referred to in sub-section (3) shall be annexed to the commission and transmitted to the Court; and the Court, after hearing any objections which the parties may make to the report or reports, shall either quash the same and issue a new commission, or pass a final decree in accordance therewith or with so much of the report or reports as the Court finds to be correct.

General provisions as to commissions.

Notice.

387A. A Court shall not issue a commission either of its own motion or on the application of a party or witness, without giving notice to any party affected thereby, other than a party against whom the suit is being heard ex parte, unless such party affected is present when the commission is issued.

Expenses of commission to be paid into Court.

397. (1) Before issuing a commission under this Chapter, the Court may and, upon receiving a report of the nature referred to in section 388, sub-section (2), it shall order such sum (if any) as it thinks reasonable for the expenses of the commission to be, within a time to be fixed by the Court, paid into Court by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit the commission is issued.

(2) Where the sum required to be paid into Court for the expenses of a commission is capable only of being estimated by the period likely to be occupied in executing such commission and a Commissioner appointed under this Chapter finds that he will be unable to execute such commission within such period, he shall submit a report to the Court within a reasonable time before the date by which the commission is returnable.

(3) Upon receiving a report of the nature referred to in sub-section (2), the Court may make an order enlarging the date for the return of the commission or, if the date has already elapsed, fixing a fresh date for such return and requiring such further sum (if any) as it thinks reasonable to be, within a time to be fixed by the Court, paid into Court as expenses.

(4) Any person omitting to pay into Court any sum required to be paid under this section shall be deemed, within the meaning of section 158, to have failed to perform an act necessary to the further progress of the suit for which time has been allowed.

Powers of Commissioners.

398. Any Commissioner appointed under this Chapter may, unless otherwise directed by the order of appointment,—

(a) examine the parties themselves and any witness whom they or any of them may produce, and any other person whom the Commissioner thinks proper to call upon to give evidence in the matter referred to him;

(b) call for and examine documents and other things relevant to the subject of inquiry;

(c) at any reasonable time enter upon or into any land or building mentioned in the order.

Attendance, examination and punishment of witnesses before Commissioners.

399. (1) The provisions of this Code relating to the summoning, attendance and examination of witnesses, and to the remuneration of, and penalties to be imposed upon, witnesses, shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to persons required to give evidence or to produce documents under this Chapter, whether the commission in execution of which they are so required has been issued by a Court situate within, or by a Court situate beyond, the limits of British India; and, for the purposes of this sub-section, every Commissioner shall be deemed to be a Court.

(2) Save where a commission is issued, or the examination of any person has been made over, to a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction a witness resides, the Commissioner shall apply to such Court for the issue of any process which he may find it necessary to issue to or against such witness, and such Court may, in its discretion, issue such process as it considers reasonable and proper.

400. (1) Where a commission is issued under this Chapter, the Court shall direct that the parties to the suit or other proceeding shall appear before the Commissioner in person or by their agents or pleaders.

(2) Where all or any of the parties, after due notice of the time and place fixed for proceeding, do not so appear, the Commissioner may proceed in their absence.

PART IV.

OF SUITS IN PARTICULAR CASES.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SUITS BY PAUPERS.

Institution or continuation of suit by a person as a pauper.

401. Any suit, other than a suit to recover compensation for loss of caste, libel, slander, abusive language or assault, may, subject to the provisions of this Chapter, be instituted or, if instituted in the ordinary manner, continued by a person as a pauper. [401 and 402.]

Who may apply to institute or continue suit as pauper.

402. Any person may apply for permission to institute or continue a suit as a pauper, if,— [401, expl.]

(a) where the application is to institute a suit and a court-fee is prescribed for the plaint by the law for the time being in force relating to court-fees, he is not possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay such court-fee, or,

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190 .

(Part IV.—Of Suits in Particular Cases.—Chapter XXVII.—Suits by Paupers.- Sections 403, 406—409.)

(b) where the application is—

(i) to institute a suit in which no court-fee is so prescribed for the plaint, or

(ii) to continue a suit,

he is not entitled to property worth one hundred rupees other than his necessary wearing-apparel and the subject-matter of the suit.

403. (1) Every application for permission to institute or continue a suit as a pauper shall be in writing; a schedule of any moveable or immoveable property belonging to the applicant, with the estimated value thereof, shall be annexed thereto; and it shall be signed and verified in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for the signing and verification of plaints.

Contents, signature, verification and presentation of application.

[404.] (2) Every such application, if it is for permission to institute a suit as a pauper, shall also contain the particulars required by section 50, and shall be subject to the same conditions as to amendment or rejection as if it were a plaint.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 36, every such application shall be presented to the Court by the applicant in person, unless he is exempted from appearing in Court under section 640 or section 641, in which case the application may be presented by a duly authorized agent who can answer all material questions relating to the application, and who may be examined in the same manner as the party represented by him might have been examined had such party attended in person.

406. (1) If an application for permission to institute or continue a suit as a pauper is in proper form and duly presented, the Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant or, where he is allowed to appear by agent, his agent, regarding the merits of the claim and the property of the applicant.

Examination of applicant.

(2) Where such application is presented by an agent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, issue a commission for the examination of the applicant in the manner in which the examination of an absent witness may be taken under the provisions of this Code.

407. The Court shall reject an application for permission to institute or continue a suit as a pauper,—

Rejection of application.

[405.] (a) if it is not presented in the manner prescribed by section 403; or

(b) if, after perusal of the application and such examination (if any) as may be made under section 406, it appears to the Court—

(i) that the applicant is not entitled to apply under section 402, or

(iii) that his allegations, if unrebutted, would not be sufficient to establish a right to institute or continue a suit in such Court or that his claim is obviously frivolous or vexatious; or

(iv) that he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the suit under which any other person has obtained a vested or contingent interest in such subject-matter.

408. Where the Court sees no reason to reject an application for permission to institute or continue a suit as a pauper, it shall fix a day and hour, of which at least one month's previous notice shall be given to the opposite party and the Government pleader, for receiving and hearing such evidence as may be adduced in support of or in opposition to the application.

Notice of day for receiving and hearing evidence for and against application.

409. (1) On the day and at or after the hour fixed under section 408, the Court shall examine the witnesses (if any) produced by either party, and may also examine the applicant or his agent.

Procedure at hearing.

(2) Where the Court examines any witness produced by either party, or the applicant or his agent, under the provisions of sub-section (1), the opposite party or his pleader and the Government pleader, if he appears, shall be entitled to cross-examine such witness, applicant or agent; and the Court shall make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence given.

(3) The Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the application and of the evidence (if any) taken by the Court as herein provided, the applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in section 407.

(4) The Court shall then either permit or refuse to permit the applicant to institute or continue the suit as a pauper.

The Code of Civil Procedure, 190

(Part IV.—Of Suits in Particular Cases.—Chapter XXVII.—Suits by Paupers.— Sections 410, 411, 414, 412, 412A., 413.)

(3) Where an application has been made for permission to institute a suit as a pauper, the applicant may, at any time before an order is made under this section, convert his application into a plaint, by paying into Court the necessary court-fees, and, unless the Court, for reasons to be recorded, considers the application to have been made in bad faith, such plaint shall for the purposes of the law of limitation for the time being in force, be deemed to have been presented on the day on which the application was made and not on the day on which the court-fees were paid.

Procedure where application granted.

410. (1) Where an application for permission to institute or continue a suit as a pauper has been granted under section 409, the applicant shall not be liable to any court-fees (other than fees payable for service of process) in respect of any petition, appointment of a pleader or other proceeding connected with the suit.

(2) Where the application is for permission to institute a suit as a pauper, it shall be numbered and registered, and shall be deemed to be the plaint in the suit, and, save as otherwise provided in sub-section (1), the suit shall proceed as a suit instituted under Chapter VI.

Procedure where pauper plaintiff succeeds.

411. Where a party suing as a pauper succeeds wholly or partially in establishing his claim, the Court shall calculate the amount of court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to institute or continue the suit as a pauper; and such amount shall be a first charge on the subject-matter of the suit, and shall also be recoverable by the Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same, in the same manner as the costs of a suit are recoverable under this Code.

Dispaupering.

414. Where an application of any person, for permission to institute or continue a suit as a pauper has been granted under section 409, the Court may, on the application of any party to the suit or of the Government pleader, of which one week's notice has been given to such person, order such person to be dispaupered,—

(a) if he is guilty of vexatious or improper conduct in the course of the suit;

(b) if it appears that his means are such that he ought not to be permitted to continue the suit as a pauper; or

(c) if he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the suit, under which any other person has obtained a vested or contingent interest in such subject-matter.

Procedure where pauper fails or compromises.

412. (1) Where a person instituting or continuing a suit as a pauper fails in his suit or where he is dispaupered, or where his suit is dismissed under section 97 or section 98 or is withdrawn or dismissed in consequence of any agreement, the Court shall order him, or any person made, under section 32, co-plaintiff with him, to pay the court-fees which would have been paid by him if he had not been permitted to institute or continue the suit as a pauper.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the power conferred upon the Court by section 220 to give and apportion costs.

(3) For the purpose of rectifying any error in an order made under this section or the omission to make such an order, the Government, even though it is not a party to the suit, shall have all the rights and remedies which would be open to a party bound by the decree.

Realization of court-fees and other moneys ordered to be paid to the Government.

412A (1) The Government shall be deemed to have a lien upon the decree for the amount of any court-fees ordered to be paid under section 411 or 412, and, where the Court is satisfied that the decree-holder is unable or unwilling to realize his claim either in whole or in part, the Court may, on such terms as it thinks reasonable, permit the Government to execute the decree for the purpose of recovering any such amount. [411 (2).]

(2) Where a decree orders any money to be paid to the Government under section 411 or 412, the Court shall immediately cause a copy of the decree to be furnished to the Collector; and all matters arising between the Government and the party ordered by the decree to pay any such money or his representative shall be deemed to be questions arising between the parties within the meaning of section 244, sub-section (1), clause (b), although the Government may not have been a party to the suit. (4) No subsequent application under sub-section (1) shall be granted, nor shall the applicant be permitted under sub-section (3) to institute or continue the suit, unless, within the period (if any) allowed by the law for the time being in force relating to limitation in respect of the institution or continuance of the suit, he first pays the costs (if any) incurred by the Government in opposing his application.

(5) Where the suit, in respect of which an application under this Chapter is made, is instituted, the costs of such application and of the enquiry thereon shall be deemed to be costs in such suit; but, where such suit is not instituted, any order of the Court awarding costs to the Government or to any party may be executed as if it were a decree for the payment of money.

Application of Chapter to set-off and counter-claims.

413A. The provisions of this Chapter relating to applications for permission to institute a suit as a pauper shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to applications for permission to plead a set-off or counter-claim as a pauper; and section 403, sub-section (2), shall be read as though for the figures "50" the words and figures "section 110 or section 111," as the case may be, were substituted.

Guardian for the suit to be appointed by Court for minor defendant.

[456.] (2) An order for the appointment of a guardian for the suit may be obtained upon application in the name and on behalf of the minor or by the plaintiff.

(3) Every application under this section shall be supported by an affidavit verifying the fact that the proposed guardian has no interest in the matters in question in the suit adverse to that of the minor, and that he is fit to be so appointed.

[443.] (4) Before appointing any person to be a guardian for the suit under this section, the Court shall cause a notice to be served upon him and upon the minor defendant and upon the guardian (if any) appointed or declared by competent authority for the person or property or both of the minor defendant or, where no such guardian has been appointed or declared, upon the father or other natural guardian of the minor defendant or, where there is no father or other natural guardian of the minor defendant, upon the person in whose care he is, in the manner prescribed by this Code for the service of a summons, and shall hear any objections which may be urged on behalf of any person served with notice under this sub-section.

(5) Service of such notice on the father or guardian of the minor defendant, or, where there is no such father or guardian, then upon the person in whose care he is, shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be deemed to be good service on the minor defendant:

Provided that the Court may order that service made or to be made on the minor defendant himself shall be deemed good service.

(6) No decree or order shall be set aside for failure to comply with the provisions of this section, unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that, by reason of such failure, the minor defendant has suffered substantial injury.

445. (1) Any person who is of sound mind and has attained majority may act as next friend of a minor or as his guardian for the suit:

Who may act as next friend or be appointed guardian for the suit.

(2) Where a minor has guardians or a guardian appointed or declared by competent authority,—

(a) no person, other than such a guardian, shall act as the next friend of such minor or be appointed to be his guardian for the suit, and [440 and (2).] [(2) 443]

(b) a guardian of his property shall act as next friend or be appointed to be guardian for the suit in preference to a guardian of his person, unless the Court, after giving notice to the guardians or guardian or to the guardian of the property, considers, for reasons to be recorded, that it is for the minor's welfare that another person or the guardian of the person be permitted to act or be appointed, as the case may be.

(3) No person shall without his consent be made to act as next friend of a minor nor, save in the case of a guardian of the classes referred to in sub-section (2) and in sub-section (4), be appointed a guardian for the suit. [cf. 32 (2).]

(4) Where there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit, the Court may appoint any of its officers to be such guardian:

Provided that such officer has no interest adverse to that of the minor. [456 (3).]

441. (1) Every application to the Court on behalf of a minor, other than an application under sub-section (6) of section 446, shall be made by his next friend or his guardian for the suit who, subject to the provisions of sections 461 and 462, shall be entitled and bound to act generally on the minor's behalf in the conduct of the case. [cf. 443 (1).]

Provided that, where the Court appoints any of its officers under section 445, sub-section (4), to be guardian for the suit, it may direct that the costs incurred or to be incurred by such officer in the performance of his duties as such guardian shall be borne [cf. XLV, 13.] [O. r.]

either by the parties, or by any one or more of the parties, to the suit, or out of any fund in Court in which the minor is interested, and may give directions for the repayment or allowance of such costs as justice and the circumstances of the case may require.

[444.] (3) Every order made in a suit or on any application before the Court, in or by which a minor is in any way concerned or affected, without such minor being represented by a next friend or guardian for the suit, as the case may be, may be discharged, and, where the pleader of the party at whose instance such order was obtained knew, or might reasonably have known, the fact of such minority, with costs to be paid by such pleader.

[Amended by VIII of 1890, s. 53D.]

Receipt by next friend or guardian for the suit of property under decree for minor.

461. (1) A next friend or guardian for the suit shall not, except by leave of the Court, receive any money or other moveable property on behalf of a minor either—

(a) by way of compromise before decree or order, or

(b) under a decree or order in favour of the minor.

(2) Where the next friend or guardian for the suit—

(a) has not been appointed or declared by competent authority to be guardian of the property of the minor, or,

(b) having been so appointed or declared, is under any disability known to the Court to receive the money or other moveable property, the Court shall, if it grants him leave to receive the property, require such security and give such directions as will, in its opinion, sufficiently protect the property from waste and ensure its proper application.

Agreement or compromise by next friend or guardian for the suit.

462. (1) No next friend or guardian for the suit shall, except by leave of the Court expressly recorded on his application, enter into any agreement or compromise on behalf of a minor, with reference to the suit in which he acts as next friend or guardian.

(2) Any such agreement or compromise entered into without such leave so recorded shall be voidable against all parties other than the minor.

(3) Where the Court sees reason to grant leave to a next friend or guardian for the suit to enter into any agreement or compromise on behalf of a minor, it shall record a proceeding or order showing that an application has been made to it, that the terms of the proposed agreement or compromise have been considered by it, and that, having regard to the interests of the minor, it has granted leave to make the agreement or compromise.

(4) A subsisting decree purporting to have been passed in pursuance of an agreement or compromise shall not be called in question, on the ground that the requirements of this section have not been complied with, by way of objection to any proceeding taken in execution of it; nor shall it be set aside or varied either in appeal or in a regular suit instituted, or upon an application for review made, by the minor through his next friend or by the minor himself on attaining his majority merely because no such proceeding or order as is referred to in sub-section (3) was recorded or made or because the leave of the Court was not expressly but impliedly granted, if in fact it appears that the next friend or guardian for the suit assented on behalf of the minor, and that the agreement or compromise was accepted by the Court and resulted in a decree not prejudicial to the interests of the minor.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, an agreement with reference to the suit shall be deemed to include an agreement to be bound by an oath of the nature referred to in section 9 of the Indian Oaths Act, 1873, or to refer any matter in controversy in such suit to arbitration. X of 1873.

Retirement, removal or death of next friend.

[447.] 446. (1) Unless the Court otherwise directs, a next friend shall not retire without first procuring a fit person to be put in his place and giving security for the costs already incurred.

(2) The application for the appointment of a new next friend shall be supported by affidavit showing the fitness of the person proposed, and also that he has no interest adverse to that of the minor.

(3) Where—

(a) the interest of the next friend of a minor is adverse to that of such minor, or

[Amended by VIII, 1890, s. 53(C).]

(b) where he is so connected with a defendant whose interest is adverse to that of the minor as to make it unlikely that the minor's interests will be properly protected by him, or

(c) where he does not do his duty, or ceases during the pendency of the suit to reside within British India, or

(d) for any other sufficient cause, application may be made on behalf of the minor or by a defendant for his removal; and the Court, if satisfied of the sufficiency of the cause assigned, may order the next friend to be removed accordingly.

(4) Where the next friend is not a guardian appointed or declared by an authority competent in this behalf, and an application is made by a guardian so appointed or declared, who desires to be himself appointed in the place of the next friend, the Court shall remove the next friend, unless it considers, for reasons to be recorded, that the guardian ought not to be appointed the next friend of the minor.

(5) On the retirement, removal or death of the next friend of a minor, further proceedings shall be stayed until the appointment of a next friend in his place.

[449.] (6) Where the pleader of such minor omits, within a reasonable time, to take steps to get a new next friend appointed, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in the minor or in the matter in controversy or on its own motion, appoint such person as it thinks fit to be the next friend of the minor.

458. (1) Where the guardian for the suit of a minor defendant desires to retire or does not do his duty, or where other sufficient ground is made to appear, the Court may permit such guardian to retire or may remove him, and may order him to pay such costs as may have been occasioned to any party by his breach of duty.

Retirement, removal or death of guardian for the suit.

the Court may, on the application of the defendant, award against the plaintiff in its decree such sum, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the defendant for the expense or injury caused to him by the issue of the injunction:

(c) where the award contains a clerical mistake or an error arising from an accidental slip or omission:

(a) that the arbitration or the award has been improperly procured;

(b) that an arbitrator or the umpire has been guilty of corruption or misconduct;

(3) On such application being made, the Court shall, unless it sees reason to dismiss the application without notice, direct notice thereof to be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the applicants, requiring such parties to show cause, within the time specified in the notice, why the agreement should not be filed.

Stay of proceedings where there is an agreement to refer to arbitration.

523A. Where any party to an agreement to refer to arbitration, or any person claiming under him, commences any suit or other proceeding against any other party to the agreement, or any person claiming under him, in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, any party to such suit or proceeding may, at or before the first hearing or, where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, apply to the Court to stay the suit or proceeding; and the Court, if satisfied that there is no sufficient reason why the matter should not be referred in accordance with the agreement to refer to arbitration, and that the applicant was, at the time when the suit or proceeding was commenced, and still remains, ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration, may make an order staying the suit or proceeding. CHAPTER XL.

OF PROCEEDINGS ON AGREEMENT OF PARTIES.

Power to state case for opinion of Court.

527. (1) Parties claiming to be interested in the decision of any question of fact or of law may enter into an agreement in writing stating such question in the form of a case for the opinion of the Court, and providing that, upon the finding of the Court with respect to such question,—

(a) a sum of money fixed by the parties or to be determined by the Court shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(b) some property, moveable or immoveable, specified in the agreement shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(c) one or more of the parties shall do, or refrain from doing, some other particular act specified in the agreement.

(2) Every case stated under this section shall be divided into consecutively numbered paragraphs, and shall concisely state such facts and specify such documents as may be necessary to enable the Court to decide the question raised thereby.

Where value of subject-matter to be stated.

528. Where the agreement is for the delivery of any property, or for the doing, or the refraining from doing, any particular act, the estimated value of the property to be delivered, or of the property (if any) to which the act specified has reference, shall be stated in the agreement.

Agreement to be filed and numbered as suit.

529. (1) The agreement, if framed in accordance with the foregoing provisions, may be filed in the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit, the amount or value of the subject-matter of which is the same as the amount or value of the subject-matter of the agreement.

(2) Every agreement, when so filed, shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties claiming to be interested, as plaintiff or plaintiffs, and the other or others of them as defendant or defendants; and notice shall be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the party or parties by whom it was presented.

[530.] (3) Where an agreement has been so filed, the parties to it shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the Court and shall be bound by the statements contained in the agreement.

[531.] (4) The case shall be set down for hearing as a suit instituted under Chapter VI, the provisions of which shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply.

(5) Where the Court is satisfied, after an examination of the parties or after taking such evidence as it thinks fit,—

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by them, and

(b) that they have a bonâ fide interest in the question stated therein, and

(c) that the same is fit to be decided, it shall proceed to deliver judgment thereon, in the same way as in an ordinary suit, and upon the judgment so delivered a decree shall follow and shall be executed in the manner provided by this Code for the execution of decrees.

CHAPTER XLI.

OF SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

532. (1) In any Court to which this Chapter applies, all suits upon bills of exchange, hundis or promissory notes may, in case the plaintiff desires to proceed under this Chapter, be instituted by presenting a plaint in the form prescribed by this Code; but the summons shall be in the form No. 172 contained in the third schedule, or in such other form as the High Court may from time to time prescribe.

Institution of summary suits upon bills of exchange, etc.

(2) In any case in which the plaint and summons are in such forms respectively, the defendant shall not appear or defend the suit unless he obtains leave from a Judge as hereinafter provided so to appear and defend.

(3) In default of the defendant obtaining such leave or of his appearance and defence in pursuance thereof, the plaintiff shall be entitled to a decree for any sum not exceeding the sum mentioned in the summons, together with interest at the rate specified or, where no rate is specified, at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, to the date of the decree, and a sum for costs to be fixed by a rule of the High Court, unless the plaintiff claims more than such fixed sum, in which case the costs shall be ascertained in the ordinary way, and such decree may be executed forthwith.

(4) The defendant shall not be required to pay into Court the sum mentioned in the summons or to give security therefor, unless the Court thinks his defence not to be primâ facie sustainable, or feels reasonable doubt as to its good faith.

(5) The provisions of this section shall not be deemed to be inapplicable to a suit merely because the cause of action includes facts which, if not admitted by the defendant, would have to be proved by the plaintiff.

Illustrations.

(a) A sues B upon a promissory note bearing an endorsement of payment which has been cancelled. This section is not inapplicable merely because A must prove that the note was endorsed by inadvertence, but that payment was not made and the endorsement cancelled in consequence.

(b) A executes, in favour of B, a promissory note for Rs. 1,000, payable in two equal instalments on the 1st July and 1st September, respectively, with a stipulation that, in default of payment of the first instalment, the whole amount shall become immediately payable. On the 13th July, B sues A for the whole amount. This section is not inapplicable merely because B must allege and prove that the first instalment was not paid on the 1st July.

533. (1) The Court shall, on the application of the defendant, grant him leave to appear and to defend the suit, upon his paying into Court the sum mentioned in the summons, or upon affidavits showing, to the satisfaction of the Court, a defence or such facts as would make it incumbent on the holder to prove consideration, or other facts sufficient to support the application, and on such terms as to security, framing and recording issues, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit.

Defendant showing defence on merits to have leave to appear.

(2) The leave referred to in sub-section (1) may be given upon an ex parte application:

Provided that, in any such case, the plaintiff shall be entitled to show, by affidavit or otherwise, that leave should not have been granted or should have been granted on more stringent terms.

534. After decree the Court may, under special circumstances, set aside the decree and, if necessary, stay or set aside execution, and may grant leave to the defendant to appear and defend the suit, if it seems reasonable to the Court so to do, and on such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Power to set aside decree.

535. In any proceeding under this Chapter the Court may order the bill, hundi or promissory note on which the suit is founded, to be forthwith deposited with an officer of the Court, and may further order that all proceedings be stayed until the plaintiff gives security for the costs thereof.

Power to order bill, etc., to be deposited with officer of Court.

Recovery of cost of noting non-acceptance of dishonoured bill or note.

536. The holder of every dishonoured bill of exchange or promissory note shall have the same remedies for the recovery of the expenses incurred in noting the same for non-acceptance or non-payment, or otherwise, by reason of such dishonour, as he has under this Chapter for the recovery of the amount of such bill or note.

Procedure in suits under this Chapter.

537. Save as otherwise provided by this Chapter, the procedure in suits under this Chapter shall be the same as the procedure in suits instituted under Chapter VI.

[Amended by VI of 1900.]

(c) the Presidency Courts of Small Causes in Calcutta, Madras and Bombay;

(d) the Court of the Judge of Karáchi; and (e) any other Court having ordinary original civil jurisdiction to which the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, apply them.

(2) The Local Government may in like manner direct by whom any of the powers and duties incident to the provisions so applied shall be exercised and performed, and make any rules which it thinks fit for carrying the same into operation.

(3) After the expiration of one month from the publication of a notification under sub-section (1), clause (e), the said provisions shall apply accordingly, and the rules so made shall have effect as if enacted in this Code.

(2) An appeal may lie under this section from an original decree passed ex parte.

(3) Where an appeal lies under this section from a decree which by this Code is preliminary to a final decree, any party to the suit adversely affected by such preliminary decree may, at his option, either prefer a separate appeal from it, or after the passing of the final decree prefer a single appeal from both the decrees together.

(4) Where the pecuniary value of an appeal determines the Court authorized to hear it within the meaning of this section, the test of jurisdiction shall be deemed to be the valuation of the original suit and not the

[New.] 540A. (1) An appeal under section 540 may be preferred by any party to the suit or other proceeding adversely affected by the decree or, if such party is dead, by his legal representative, or by any transferee of his interest who, in so far as such interest is concerned, is bound by the decree.

Who may appeal.

(2) Where there are two or more legal representatives of a deceased party and they do not all join in preferring the appeal, those who do not join shall be made respondents.

(3) Where an appeal is preferred by or on behalf of any person claiming to be the transferee of the interest of any party, such person shall set forth his title in the memorandum of appeal or by separate application, and such appeal shall be rejected unless, at the time of the presentation of the memorandum or application or within such further period as may be allowed in this behalf, the title of such transferee is proved to the satisfaction of the Court.

541. (1) Every appeal shall be preferred in the form of a memorandum signed by the appellant or his pleader (if any) and presented to the Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf; and the person presenting the memorandum shall, at or before the time of presentation, endorse or cause to be endorsed thereon his name, description and place of residence.

(f) a prayer for the relief which the appellant claims ; and

(g) a statement of the value of the subject-matter of the suit for the purposes of jurisdiction and of the appeal for the purposes of court-fees.

542. The appellant shall not, except by leave of the Court, urge or be heard in support of any ground of objection not set forth in the memorandum of appeal as provided by section 541A, or any ground of objection on any matter of fact not taken or taken and waived in the Court which passed the decree appealed from :

ticulars hereinbefore required or contains particulars other than those so required:

Provided that a memorandum of appeal shall not be amended either by the Court or by the party to whom it is returned for amendment so as to convert an appeal of one character into an appeal of a different and inconsistent character.

(2) Where a memorandum of appeal is amended under this section, the amendment shall be signed or initialled by the Judge or by such officer as he may appoint in this behalf.

(3) Where the memorandum of appeal has been returned for amendment and duly amended, the appeal shall be deemed to have been preferred on the date when the memorandum was first presented.

(c) it is not accompanied by the copies required by section 541.

(2) The memorandum of appeal shall at any stage of the trial be rejected, if—

543B. Nothing in sections 543 and 543A shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the inherent power of the Court at any time to stay or dismiss any suit or other proceeding or to strike out any passage in any written statement, memorandum of appeal or application, which is shown to the satisfaction of the Court to be frivolous or vexatious, scandalous and impertinent, or in any way an abuse of its procedure.

Validation of certain memoranda of appeal.

543BB. (1) Where a memorandum of appeal has been presented within the time allowed by the law of limitation for the time being in force, but is written upon paper insufficiently stamped, and the insufficiency of the stamp was caused by a mistake on the part of the appellant as to the amount of the requisite stamp, the Court shall, on his application, fix a period within which he shall supply such requisite stamp. [Cf. 582A.]

(2) Where the appellant supplies the requisite stamp within the period fixed under sub-section (1), or within such further period as may from time to time be allowed by the Court, the memorandum of appeal shall have the same effect and be as valid as if it had been properly stamped.

(3) Where the appellant fails to supply the requisite stamp as required by sub-section (2), the memorandum shall be rejected.

Extension of time granted under section 543 or section 543A.

(3) Where the proper fee has been levied on a memorandum of appeal returned under sub-section (1) and the appellant re-institutes the appeal by presenting such memorandum in another Court, it shall not be chargeable with any further court-fee.

544. Where there are two or more plaintiffs or defendants in a suit, and the decree appealed from proceeds on any ground common to all the plaintiffs or to all the defendants, any one of the plaintiffs or of the defendants may appeal from the whole decree, and thereupon the Appellate Court may reverse or modify the decree in favour of all the plaintiffs or defendants, as the case may be

(2) After hearing such parties as may desire to be heard and receiving such evidence, by affidavit or otherwise, as they may adduce, the Court may order execution of the decree to be stayed until the appeal is disposed of, upon the condition that the applicant -

(a) deposits the decretal amount in Court, or

(b) gives such security as the Court may think reasonable for the due performance of such decree or order as may ultimately be binding upon him, unless the Court, in its discretion, thinks fit to dispense with such condition.

(3) Where the Court receiving an application of the nature referred to in sub-section (1) is satisfied that immediate stay of execution is necessary, it may make an ex parte order of the nature referred to in sub-section (2); but, in such case, the Court shall, in the notice to be given under sub-section (1), notify also the fact of the ex parte order and, after the hearing prescribed in sub-section (2), may either discharge the order or make it absolute.

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal lies under this Code, but from which no appeal has been preferred,

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal lies under this Code, or

(c) by a judgment on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who,—

(i) from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree or order was passed or made, or

(ii) on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or

(iii) for any other sufficient reason,

(2) A party who is not appealing from a decree or order may apply for a review notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party, except where the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant, or where, being a respondent, he is entitled to present to the Appellate Court the case on which he applies for the review.

(3) A party, who has applied for a review of a judgment, decree or order shall not be precluded thereby from presenting an appeal from such decree or from the decree or order founded upon such judgment.

(4) Where an application has been made for a review of a judgment, decree or order and an appeal from such decree or order or from the decree or order founded upon such judgment is pending, the Appellate Court shall, on the application of any party

(ii) of some clerical or arithmetical error apparent on the face of the decree, may be made to the Court which delivered the judgment, passed the decree or made the order, or to the Court (if any) to which that class of business to which the judgment, decree or order belongs, has been transferred, but it need not be made to the Judge who delivered the judgment or made the order sought to be reviewed.

[Cf. 582A.]

Validation of certain applications for review.

(2) Where the applicant supplies the requisite stamp within the period fixed under sub-section (1) or within such further period as may from time to time be allowed by the Court, the application for review shall have the same effect and be as valid as if it had been properly stamped.

(3) Where the applicant fails to supply the requisite stamp as required by sub-section (2), the application for review shall be rejected.

(2) Where the Court is of opinion that an application for review should be granted, it shall grant the same, and the Judge shall record or cause to be recorded his reasons for such opinion:

Provided, first, that no such application shall be granted without previous notice to the opposite party, to enable him to appear and be heard in support of the judgment, decree or order a review of which is applied for;

Provided, secondly, that no such application shall be granted on the ground of discovery of new matter or evidence with respect to which the applicant alleges that it was not within his knowledge, or could not be adduced by him, when the judgment, decree or order was delivered, passed or made, without strict proof of such allegation; and Provided, thirdly, that an application of the nature referred to in section 624, sub-section (2), to the Judge who delivered the judgment, passed the decree or made the order, may, if that Judge has ordered notice to issue under the first proviso to this sub-section, be disposed of by his successor.

629. (1) An order of the Court rejecting an application for review shall be final and conclusive; but, where such an application is admitted, the admission may be objected to on the ground that it was—

(3) Where an application for review has been rejected in consequence of the failure of the applicant to appear, he may apply for an order to have the application restored to the list of pending cases, and, where it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when such application was called on for hearing, the Court may order it to be so restored upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for hearing the same.

(4) No order shall be made under this section unless the applicant has served the opposite party with notice in writing of the latter application.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

UNDER the present law, the limit below which incomes are not liable to income-tax is fixed at Rs. 500 per annum. It has been decided to raise this limit to Rs. 1,000 per annum; and the object of the present Bill is to give effect to that decision. No other change of any kind is proposed to be made.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1903-1904.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD LAW introduced and explained the Financial Statement for 1903-1904. He said:—

"1. With Your Excellency's permission I will now lay before the Legislative Council the actual financial results of the year 1901-1902; our Revised Estimate for 1902-1903; and our Budget Estimates for the coming financial year 1903-1904.

"2. In their briefest form, and leaving out Capital, Debt and Remittance transactions, the figures are as follows:—

	1901-1902 (Accounts).
Revenue	76,344,525
Expenditure (charged against Revenue)	71,394,282
Surplus	4,950,243

	1902-1903 (Revised Estimate).
Revenue	76,892,500
Expenditure (charged against Revenue)	74,154,000
Surplus	2,738,500

	1903-1904 (Budget Estimate).
Revenue	76,355,400
Expenditure (charged against Revenue)	75,406,700
Surplus	948,700

"Accounts, 1901-1902.

"3. The final accounts of the financial year 1901-1902 show a surplus of £4,950,243, being an increase of £4,259,343 over the original Estimate which showed a surplus of £690,900.

"4. On the Expenditure side the accounts show a decrease of £106,718 as compared with the original Estimate, and of £479,518 as compared with our Revised Estimate.

"5. The more important figures contributing to this latter result are an increase of £134,225 under Other Public Works, and decreases of £365,369 under Army Services, of £43,088 under Famine Relief and Insurance, and of £35,318 under Miscellaneous Civil Charges, and of £144,690 under Provincial Surplus added to the Provincial balances and charged as expenditure. These items account for the greater portion of the total difference noted, although there are many minor differences under various heads which on balance more or less compensate one another. The increased expenditure under Other Public Works is due to unexpectedly heavy expenditure in the last two months of the financial year. The decrease under Army Services of £365,369 is mainly due to smaller payment of capitation rates to War Office, owing to absence of troops in South Africa, and refunds from the War Office on account of over-payments in previous years, and the decrease under Famine Relief of £43,088 to an under-estimate of the interest charge for the Bengal-Nagpore Railway, which is met from the "Famine Insurance Grant," whilst the saving in "Miscellaneous Civil Charges" is owing mainly to an over-estimate in England, more especially under the head of Superannuation Allowances and Pensions.

"6. On the Revenue side the heads under which the chief differences are observable between Accounts and the Revised Estimate are Land Revenue, a decrease of £181,882; Salt, a decrease of £57,390; Stamps, a decrease of £48,294; and Other Heads, a decrease of £54,991. Against these rather considerable decreases we have important increases under Receipts by Military Department, £72,389, and under Railways, £47,868. The result of these and other minor changes is an actual decrease of £202,175 of revenue as compared with the Revised Estimate of the year, and allowing for a decrease in expenditure of £479,518, the final result is an increase to the surplus of £277,343.

"7. The important decrease of £181,882 under Land Revenue is accounted for by suspensions and smaller recoveries of arrears in the Punjab, where the winter rains failed to some extent; also to the season having proved more unfavourable than was anticipated, in North Arcot, and in parts of the Ceded Districts in Madras; and to over-estimates of collections in Sind, and to a relatively small extent in the United Provinces.

"8. The decrease of £57,390 from Salt is mainly due to a decline in the trade at Sambhar at the end of the year, which is attributed to the spread of rumours of a possible reduction of duty.

"9. The falling-off of £48,294 in Stamps Revenue was mainly in the United Provinces and in Bengal. In the former plague appeared in March, and the passing of the Tenancy Bill in January appears to have diminished litigation. There were minor deficiencies in the Punjab, in Bombay, and in Madras, and it is possible that these may to some extent be attributed to the fact that the Easter holidays fell at the end of March.

"10. The decrease of £54,991 noted under Other Heads was chiefly in the Forest revenue, which fell short by £34,545. There was an extraordinary decline last year in the returns from Burma Forests; the floating season was bad, and there was a fall in the price of teak.

"11. The increase of £72,389 under "Army Receipts" was in great part due to larger credits for Europe stores despatched to South Africa and China, and to greater sales of malt liquor than anticipated.

"12. The increase in Railway revenues, amounting to £47,868 nett, was earned chiefly by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway by the carriage of favourable crops of cotton and oil-seeds.

"Revised Estimate, 1902-1903.

"13. The Revised Estimate shows an anticipated increase over the Original Estimate of £2,522,100 under Revenue, and allowing for an increase (including Provincial surpluses and deficits) of £621,300 in expenditure, results in a total anticipated surplus of £2,738,500 as compared with the Budget Estimate which showed a surplus of £837,700.

"14. This very large surplus is due to an increase of revenue in greater or less proportion under every principal head except Stamps, which shows a slight decrease of £6,200. The following are the principal differences between the Revised and Budget Estimates, giving, after allowing for some minor items, the total increase of revenue of £2,522,100:—

Land Revenue	698,400
Opium	274,300
Salt	66,700
Excise	257,300
Customs	286,700
Assessed Taxes	47,000
Interest	108,000
Post Office	57,900
Telegraph	51,500
Mint	351,900
Receipts, Civil Departments	49,400
Miscellaneous	42,400
Railways	77,000
Irrigation	138,300
Receipts, Military Department	31,400
TOTAL	2,538,200

"15. The increase under Land Revenue which accounts for more than one-fourth of the total, is due to a favourable monsoon season and to the inclusion for the first time of the Berar revenues amounting to £480,000. The other principal increases making up the large total were—

Burma	46,100
Madras	73,800
Bombay	141,400

The total amount anticipated to be realised during the closing financial year, excluding Berar, is higher than the average of the past six preceding years by a sum of more than three-fifths of a million sterling, and this notwithstanding remissions in districts specially affected by the recent famine amounting to the important sum of £504,300. This very satisfactory increase is indicative of general progress, and of the great strides towards recovery made by the impoverished peasantry of recently afflicted areas. It may be noted that the proportion of Land Revenue from irrigated lands, or due to irrigation, is estimated at £821,900, the increase over the figure of the preceding year being £8,503. Increases under this head are specially satisfactory as showing the value of our irrigation system. But, as I have before now pointed out, such increases are not directly indicative of the condition of the people, since, apart from increased returns from newly irrigated tracts, the greater the defect of rainfall, the greater the revenue from irrigation in those districts whose topographical situation has enabled us to provide them with water.

"16. The important increase under Opium is due to the obtaining of a higher price than estimated from sales, and to larger exports of Malwa Opium. In view of the rapidly falling market prices during the latter half of the last financial year, we assumed in our calculations for this year's sales a price of R1,150 per chest for Bengal Opium. In the early part of the year a continued decline in the market justified our anticipations, but in the later months there has been a fortunate recovery leading to the result now stated. The following figures illustrate the course of the market throughout the year:—

Average sale-price of Opium per chest during the financial year 1902-1903.

	R	a.	p.		R	a.	p.
April	1,178	2	10	October	1,135	13	1
May	1,074	13	7	November	1,169	5	7
June	1,108	2	1	December	1,128	9	1
July	1,100	11	6	January	1,149	12	2
August	1,140	4	1	February	1,154	11	7
September	1,132	1	0	March	1,262	5	1

"17. Beyond certain improved facilities of distribution favouring consumption, the increased returns from Salt can only be attributed to an improvement in the material condition of consumers. The increase of £100,690, over the actuals of 1901-1902, is decidedly satisfactory, and it would have been larger but that we consider it necessary to allow for a loss of about £40,000 during the closing weeks of the year on account of the reduction in duty which comes into force immediately.

"18. Excise, which has been yielding a slow but steady increase of revenue during the past few years, has suddenly taken a great leap forward, the revenue for the closing year being estimated at more than £300,000 in excess of that for 1901-1902. This remarkable increase of over 7 per cent in a single year is undoubtedly due in part to better administration and more efficient preventive measures, but it is also due, and to a probably greater extent, to the improved condition of the people.

"19. Our Customs Revenue shows an increase under most of the important heads, the only serious exceptions being sugar and cotton goods. There has been some check in the importations of foreign petroleum, but there is no great cause for dissatisfaction at this, since such check is compensated by increased production of oil in Burma and Assam. The importation into Calcutta of petroleum from Burma increased by approximately 3¼ million gallons, or by some 25 per cent, during the eleven months terminating on March 1, 1903, as compared with the importation during the corresponding period in the previous year.

"20. The general importation of sugar shows a very considerable decline, but I much doubt whether this decline has been accompanied by any similar decline in consumption. The sugar market has been greatly perturbed by anticipations regarding the result of the Brussels Conference, and prices have varied considerably since last year. The prices quoted for refined beet sugar, last month, per cwt. in Bombay, were R10-13 as compared with R9-5 in March 1902, and the fluctuations in the interval have been considerable. Such uncertainties and fluctuations in prices must necessarily have affected the operations of importers, and although I am without precise information on the subject, I feel pretty sure that stocks of sugar in India must now be much lower than they were twelve months ago.

"Our returns from the countervailing duties on sugar have not only been received on a less volume of importations, but have also been affected by the changes introduced in our system of levying that duty under the Act passed in June 1902. The total received under countervailing duties for the first eleven months of the current financial year has amounted to only R17,05,000 as compared with R33,83,000 in the preceding year. In this connection I may recall that in the discussion on the Budget last March, one of the Hon'ble Members of this Council questioned the advisability of our taking so low a figure as 24 lakhs for returns from countervailing duties. The prudence of that estimate has, however, been more than justified by the event.

"21. The duties on cotton manufactures, including all kinds, have also shown a falling-off, the receipts during the first eleven months of the current year amounting to R85,00,223 as compared with R96,65,320 in the immediately preceding corresponding period. It is only in the secondary category of white piece goods that a serious decline of importations has occurred, and in the much more important class of grey goods there has been an actual increase from R46,66,879 to R47,36,512. As regards the question of purchasing power for a staple article of consumption among the people, the relative falling-off in importations is compensated by an important increase in the output of local manufactures, as evidenced by the following figures showing the returns of excise dues levied in British India:—

Net total receipts of cotton excise dues.

	R
1897-98	11,38,950
1898-99	13,53,120
1899-1900	13,09,514
1900-1901	11,62,947
1901-1902	17,16,836
1902-1903	17,42,000 (estimate for last two months)

"Various important articles of importation have shown satisfactory increases. Liquors give an increase of R4,54,382, copper of R3,03,623, and hardware and cutlery, of R1,04,341.

"22. Deducting silver, the increased importation of which has been due to special circumstances to which I shall again allude, and sugar, the importation of which has, as I have shown, been influenced by exceptional circumstances, it will be found that there is scarcely any difference between the total revenues which we estimate will be derived from Customs importations in the current year and in the year 1901-1902. In this connection I may observe that, whilst I hope that increasing general prosperity may continue to swell our Customs returns from certain articles which we shall necessarily continue to import from abroad, I am inclined to anticipate that the development of Indian resources and industries, particularly as regards supplying such important articles of common consumption as cotton goods, petroleum and sugar, will tend to check the recent somewhat rapid growth of Customs Revenue from imports.

"23. Under "Interest" the increase in receipts occurs mostly in England, and is due to the temporary investment of larger sums and to higher rates being obtained for them than was anticipated last March.

"24. In Assessed Taxes, consisting almost entirely of income-tax, the important increase of £47,000 must be considered satisfactory. It is, I fear, only by their contributions as income-tax that a considerable section of the wealthier classes of the community make any adequate contribution towards the expenses of the administration of the State. It may be hoped that, with improved collection and control, income-tax will become a fair and important head of revenue.

"25. Both letter postage and money order receipts increased beyond the Budget Estimate, and together they contributed £47,300 out of the total increase of £57,900 under "Post Office," and this notwithstanding a loss of approximately £11,400 entailed by the reduction of the commission on money orders for sums not exceeding five rupees.

"26. The increase of £51,500 in Telegraph receipts is mainly due to the Budget Estimate providing for too large a reduction under foreign message revenue in view of the reduction of the tariff, whilst the cessation of hostilities in China has caused a smaller falling-off in receipts than was anticipated. "Receipts, Civil Departments" were swollen by the inclusion of Berar accounts from October 1st to the extent of £8,500, and by £26,100 from the employment of Royal Indian Marine vessels on Imperial service. Of the increase of £42,400 under "Miscellaneous," £6,100 is due to increase of receipts in England, and £10,900 to the inclusion of Berar revenues from October 1st. There is also an improvement of £36,900 in Exchange transactions with Guaranteed Railways. With regard to Railways, I explained in my last Financial Statement that we could not count for the continuance in the current year of the abnormal receipts of 1901-1902, and I regret to say that my anticipations have been realised, as our Revised Estimate is £199,568 below the actuals of 1901-1902. The net increase of the Revised over the Budget Estimate, viz., £77,000, is relatively a small difference, considering the magnitude of the transactions involved, amounting to only ·4 per cent. The increase of £138,300 under "Irrigation" occurred chiefly in the Punjab, United Provinces and Bengal, and is due to the irrigation of a larger area than was anticipated. The increase of £31,400 under Army Receipts is chiefly due to credits for the supply of stores to troops serving abroad.

"27. On the whole, we have every reason to congratulate ourselves on the important increase of revenue noted, and which is, in the main, due to a favourable agricultural season and to the steady recuperation of those provinces which have been so severely tried in the last few years.

"28. I now pass to the Expenditure side of the account, and it is satisfactory to be able to state that the total expenditure according to our Revised Estimate will be £802,900 less than the Original Estimate.

"29. In Army Services there has been a decrease of £509,200, but out of this large sum we must attribute some £479,500 to prolongation of the absence of troops in South Africa and China, and there were lapses of certain sanctioned grants which it was not found possible economically to employ in full, before the close of the financial year.

"30. The other heads under which important economies have been effected are Direct Demands on the Revenue £259,100, Interest £75,600, and Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments £488,900. "Direct Demands on the Revenue" were reduced by £129,200 owing to the opium crop proving to be below the estimate which allowed for a full crop, and there was also a considerable decrease in charges connected with Land Revenue. Under "Interest" there was a large saving owing chiefly to a reduction in the sum estimated for discount and interest on the loan of 150 lakhs raised in India last summer. The decrease under "Salaries and Expenses of Civil Establishments" was largely due to the impossibility to profitably utilize during the financial year the special grants made for "Education," "Medical," "Police," and "Justice."

"31. On the other hand, we have a large apparent increase of expenditure under Mint, amounting to £299,600, due chiefly to a payment of £263,400 to the Gold Reserve Fund (being net profits on coinage) and to the recoinage of withdrawn rupees, and also to the coinage of dollars on private account, though on the latter we secure a small profit. Under "Miscellaneous Civil Charges" there is an increase of £258,500, of which £126,500 is due to the inclusion of Berar transactions from October 1st, whilst £66,300 is due to the remission of takavi advances in the Bombay Presidency, and £4,100 is for interest charges on guaranteed loans raised by Native States. The increase of £211,300 under "Railway Revenue Account" is due partly to the expense of increased traffic, but more largely to special expenditure on maintenance and renewals of permanent-way and bridges and on rolling-stock.

"32. Before considering the Estimates for the coming year, I think that I should say something with regard to the large surpluses over and above our Estimates during the last few years. It may be thought that our Estimates should have approximated more closely to results than has been the case, but as regards our Revised Estimate for the past year, it must be remembered that it includes the Berar accounts which were not included in our Original Estimate. I myself think that we should try to arrive at closer figures, and a serious endeavour has been made in this direction in the preparation of the Estimates for 1903-1904. I must, however, point out that an Indian Budget presents very special difficulties as regards accurate estimation. These difficulties arise from the dependence of our revenue on the good or bad fortune of the agricultural industry; this good or bad fortune is entirely dependent on the seasonableness and amount of rain during the year, and there is no possibility of foretelling how the elements may favour us. Land Revenue, which constitutes nearly one-fourth of our total resources, is naturally directly dependent upon the course of the season, and indirectly the same factor affects returns from Salt, Excise, and Customs. That Excise returns are directly influenced by the fortunes of the agriculturist, may be clearly seen by noting the following figures showing the variations of Excise revenue in the Bombay Presidency during the last few years, and the manner in which the returns correspond with the better or worse fortune of the people, and were affected by the great recovery in 1901-1902:—

762,684	709,365	675,566	702,496	715,000
Percentage of increase over preceding year.
4·5	—7·0	—4·8	4·0	1·8

Customs revenues too, depending so largely on the importation of cotton goods imported chiefly for the use of the peasantry, are affected by the conditions which make or mar their prosperity.

"33. Further, apart from climatic influences, the Customs returns have, for some years past, been affected by the variations in the countervailing duties on sugar, which there was no possibility of estimating beforehand. In addition to fluctuations under the above-mentioned important heads, our Opium revenue is, as is well known, a very uncertain factor in our revenue, and, further, during the last three years we have had unexpected windfalls through the movements of troops on the Indian Establishment, for foreign service, and through payments by the British War Office for stores and material supplied with those troops.

"34. I trust that the figures which I am now about to present will approximate more closely to results than has been the case with those of the year now drawing to an end, although, as I have shown, our Indian conditions do not admit of a really close estimation. We are bound to be prudent in our forecasts. If the elements are favourable, a greater or less expansion of revenue exceeding those prudent forecasts will certainly result, whilst, should the season unfortunately prove seriously unfavourable, a shrinkage will result which would completely change the situation, if the estimates were less cautiously framed.

"Remission of Taxation.

"35. The results of the last four financial years have shown the following surpluses estimated and realised :—

1899-1900 (Accounts)	2,774,623
1900-01 Do.	1,670,204
1901-02 Do.	4,950,243
1902-03 (Revised Estimate)	2,738,500

And these surpluses have been obtained notwithstanding the fact that the period under review commenced with a terrible famine, which unfortunately followed previous, though less severe catastrophes of the same nature. They afford the strongest evidence of the recuperative power of the country, and of the efficiency of the measures which have been taken by the Government in years past for its development.

"36. Last year at this season, when dealing with this question of surpluses, I stated that although confident of the future, we considered it prudent to see the results of yet another twelve months, before deciding as to the advisability and prudence of the remission of taxation on a large scale. The results of the closing financial year have been such as to confirm our confidence in the future, and it is now our special good fortune to be able to announce that after mature consideration, we feel ourselves justified for the first time since 1882 in deciding on important measures in the direction of remission of taxation.

"It is most gratifying to be able to make this announcement, both from the point of view of relief to the tax-payer, and from that of the accumulated evidence of the material welfare of the mass of the people.

"In view of the present satisfactory situation, it is the opinion of the Government of India that it is neither desirable, nor good financial policy to continue levying taxation at present rates, yielding such large recurring surpluses as have been realised during the last four years. It is true that our expenditure is necessarily increasing with the increasing development of the country, and some of our present sources of revenue do not show much sign of elasticity, but, for the present, our receipts are in excess of our needs, and even should it be necessary some years hence to seek the means of increasing revenue, we hold that we are not justified in continuing taxation at its present level during an interval which we trust may be prolonged.

"37. The question of the direction in which remissions of taxation might be made so as to afford the most direct relief in the most suitable manner, to the population at large, has occupied our most anxious attention, and we have finally decided to reduce the Salt Tax in India, exclusive of Burma, from R2-8 per maund to R2, and to exempt from Income Tax all incomes below one thousand rupees per annum.

"38. As regards the Salt Tax, in our opinion based on the most exhaustive inquiries, it does not, at its present rate, press hardly on the mass of the people, the actual impost per head being trifling. It is, however, paid in the main by those who can least afford to contribute anything, and we hope that the remission of even a trifling burden may prove a boon to the poorest class of tax-payers. Further, we hope that a reduction in the salt duty combined with the progressive cheapening of the carriage of salt, by the development of communications, will lead to such greater consumption as will not only benefit the health of the people, but will also permit of the greater use of salt with profitable results, for cattle and in various processes of manufacture.

"Finally, from the financial point of view, a reduction of the Salt Tax has a very special recommendation, in that it will provide a reserve which can be immediately and rapidly made use of by once more increasing the rate, should such exceptional misfortunes as war or disastrous famine suddenly create an abnormal strain on our resources. At present we have no such reserve as is provided by the conditions of the Income Tax in England, and from the financial point of view, it is of the highest importance that in such exceptional circumstances as I have indicated, and as might possibly arise, we should be in a position, without delay or complications, to add, say, at least one million sterling to our annual revenue.

"39. As regards the raising of the limit of exemption from Income Tax, we believe that the tax on incomes under a thousand rupees, is in the main paid by petty traders, by clerks in Commercial and Government offices, and by pensioners, who, small as is the present impost, feel it to be a severe burden. We are very glad to relieve a generally highly deserving class of the community of this burden, which weighs particularly heavily on widows and orphans in receipt of small pensions barely sufficing for the necessaries of life. Moreover, we have reason to fear that it is in the lower categories of incomes that hardship is perhaps felt in the matter of inquisitorial proceedings on the part of assessors, who, possibly, sometimes fix assessments at unjustifiably high rates, and we hope by raising the limit of taxation to greatly reduce and simplify the work of assessment. I may add that a specially gratifying feature of the situation is, that although we feel ourselves justified in reducing our revenue returns by a sum approximating £1,393,000, as a result of the remissions of taxation on which we have decided, we are nevertheless able to estimate for receipts from revenue in the coming year, falling short by only £537,100 of the returns, according to our Revised Estimate, for the closing year.

"Budget Estimates, 1903-1904.

"40. Our estimates of Receipts and Expenditure for the forthcoming financial year result in an anticipated surplus amounting to £948,700, as regards total Imperial revenue and expenditure; but, it will be observed that to meet Provincial expenditure, Provincial balances will be drawn on to the extent of £1,383,500. I should mention, however, that provision has been made in the Budget for reconstituting such Provincial balances as will require assistance, so that the full minimum may be in hand at the close of the coming financial year. Such assistance will be given to the Central Provinces, Punjab, and Bombay. The remaining Provinces will hold balances showing an aggregate excess over minimum fixtures, amounting to £438,600.

"REVENUE.

"41. The principal items of estimated increase in revenue as compared with the Revised Estimate of 1902-1903 are as follows:—

Land Revenue	621,200
Stamps	75,000
Excise	127,500
Railways	306,900
Receipts, Military Department	119,000

"42. The above with minor increases result in a total anticipated increase of revenue amounting to £1,291,700.

"43. The increase in Land Revenue is principally in Bombay, where £378,200 is due to a return to more normal conditions, whilst it is estimated that an enhancement of £100,400 will occur in Burma, owing mainly to the revision of settlements in Upper Burma. £61,000 is the increase due to Berar.

44. £28,000 of the increase in Stamps is due to the inclusion of Berar accounts and it is estimated that the returns in Madras will exceed by £ 18,700 those in the current year.

"45. We estimate that a further improvement over the high Excise returns realised in the current year will yield an additional £46,700 in Bengal and the United Provinces and £33,300 in Burma, whilst £43,300 of the total anticipated increase is due to the inclusion of Berar accounts.

"46. The increase of £305,900 in Railway Revenue is mainly attributable to anticipated considerable improvement in coal traffic on the Bengal-Nagpore Railway, and moderate increases are allowed for on the East Indian, the Rajputana-Malwa, and the Burma Railways.

"47. The net increase of £119,000 in Army Receipts is the difference between an enhancement of £184,600 expected in the Home estimates, and a reduction of £65,600 in receipts in India.

"48. On the other hand, we anticipate the following important decreases :—

Opium	121,500
Salt	1,086,700
Customs	273,400
Other heads (including Assessed Taxes)	113,300
Interest	141,600
Mint	51,400
Irrigation	39,700

"The above differences, together with the decrease of £1,200 under "Other Public Works," amount to a total decrease of £1,828,800.

"49. The net decrease resulting from increases under some heads and decreases under others, as above noted, is estimated at £537,100.

"50. As regards Opium, we have not felt justified in assuming that the relatively high prices obtained during the latter months of the closing financial year will be maintained, and we have for the purpose of our present estimate assumed an average price for the coming year of R1,100 per chest.

"51. As regards the heavy falling-off in the anticipated receipts from Salt, we have taken £1,113,300 as the diminution to be anticipated from the remission of duty, and we have added £26,600 which, we hope, may be realised by increased consumption, in part as a result of the lower duty.

"52. In our Customs Revenue we allow for a considerable falling-off, a large proportion of which, about £90,000, is due to the anticipation of very small receipts from countervailing duties on sugar. We estimate for a decrease of £50,000 in the duty on silver, as the imports in the current year appear to have been abnormal, and we also anticipate a reduction of about £163,300 in the export duty on rice, as the Burma trade in the current year has been unprecedentedly large.

"53. The principal reduction under "Other Heads" is in Income Tax receipts. The raising of the taxable limit will, it is estimated, result in a loss of £240,000, while it is expected that there will be an increase of £15,300 owing to the normal growth of the Revenue, thus reducing the net deficiency to £224,700. This decrease is, however, to a considerable extent compensated by increases in other minor categories of receipts falling under this general head.

"54. The decrease under "Interest" receipts is chiefly due to an estimated reduction of £120,700 in the amount to be received in England. The sums available for investment by the Secretary of State will be somewhat smaller than during the closing year, and the rates of interest obtainable are likely to be lower.

"55. Under "Mint" receipts we anticipate a decrease in dollar coinage and copper coinage, and consequently in the receipts therefrom.

"56. The decrease in Irrigation occurs in the United Provinces and the Punjab, where it is anticipated that collections to be made in the coming kharif season, on account of irrigation, will be smaller than in previous seasons.

"EXPENDITURE.

"57. Under Expenditure, for the forthcoming year, we anticipate, as compared with the Revised Estimate for 1902-1903, increases of importance under the following heads:—

Direct Demands on the Revenue	647,700
Post Office	90,800
Telegraph	94,400
Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments	607,000
Railway Revenue Account	426,600
Irrigation	149,400
Other Public Works	394,200
Army Services	536,400
Special Defences, 1902	120,000

These increases bring up the total increase of Expenditure to £3,066,500.

"58. The heavy increase under Direct Demands on the Revenue is in great part due to the inclusion of Berar expenditure, to the amount of £261,600, and £94,700 is due to increase of Opium expenditure, on the assumption of an average instead of the short crop of last season. The balance is chiefly under Land Revenue, Excise, and Forests. A larger programme for Survey and Settlement is included in Land Revenue expenditure.

"59. The increase in Post Office expenditure is in part due to a payment of £20,000 under a new contract for a fast Mail Service in the Persian Gulf, and a sum of £19,300 has been provided for the improvement of the pay of Postmasters.

"60. Under the Telegraph Department there is an addition to expenditure on account of a sum estimated at £38,000 for the guarantee payable by Government under the agreement for the reduction of charges on foreign messages. The remainder of the increase is mainly due to increased provision for stores and new telegraph lines.

"61. Under 'Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments,' an increase of £78,500 is due to the inclusion of Berar accounts. Other increases are chiefly under Courts, Police, Education and Medical, and whilst, in the closing year, there were considerable lapses under these heads, the present Budget makes full provision for all anticipated expenditure.

"62. The heavy addition of £426,600 under the Railway Revenue Account is due to increased interest charges on additional capital and to larger working traffic charges on increased mileage. But it must be remembered that there is considerable compensation for this increased expenditure in increased general traffic.

"63. The increase of £149,400 under "Irrigation" is accounted for by interest charges, £27,000, on additional capital expenditure, and to new Minor Works, for which £129,500 has been estimated. Further, of the special grant of 25 lakhs made in 1902-1903, £60,000 remained unexpended at the end of the year, whilst an allotment for the full sum has been repeated for the coming year.

"64. Of the £394,200 noted as increase under Other Public Works, £266,600 are due to the special grants now being made to Local Governments, and £34,800 are estimated for expenditure under Berar accounts.

"65. Army Services expenditure shows an increase of £536,400, of which £123,700 is due to the transfer of the Hyderabad Contingent expenses to this account. The balance is chiefly due to the non-repetition of savings secured during the closing year on account of the employment of troops on Imperial services.

"66. As a set-off against the above increases of expenditure, we estimate for decreased payments under the head of "Interest" of £132,900, and £246,400 under Miscellaneous Civil Charges; these, together with an estimated decrease of £6,700 under Mint, give a total decrease of £386,000.

"67. The net result as regards expenditure is an estimated total increase of £2,692,300.

Summary of Budget Results.

"68. We may now consider the results of the Budget I have presented, as regards capital accounts, and requirements during the coming year.

"69. Our estimate of Revenue, and Expenditure chargeable against revenue, closes with a surplus of £948,700. This surplus we carry forward to the second part of our statement dealing with Capital and Debt transactions, and including Deposits, Remittances and Advances. Our total estimate for Capital expenditure (not chargeable to revenue) on Railways and Irrigation amounts to £8,101,900, of which sum, £5,334,700 is for State Railways, £2,100,500 for the account of Railway Companies, and £666,700 for Irrigation Major Works. In addition to the above, we have to find £690,000 for discharging Permanent Debt, and £1,500,000 for discharging Temporary Debt. Thus the gross total of our Capital requirements amounts to £10,291,900.

"70. To meet these requirements we have in addition to the surplus of £948,700, and the net receipt of £192,600 under Deposits, Advances, and Remittances, a sum of £3,133,000 to be raised by Railway Companies. We further propose to increase our Permanent Debt by £3,333,300 including a loan of 2 crores to be raised in India, and we shall also procure £595,400 by addition to the Unfunded Debt.

"These sums amount in the aggregate to £8,203,000 and the balance required to meet the total Capital Expenditure of £10,291,900 will be found by a reduction of our closing balances in India and in England by £2,088,900.

"The final result will be a closing balance on March 31st, 1904, in India, of £11,496,301, and in England £3,934,637.

"71. As regards the proposed rupee loan, I should say that it is possible that we may not require to raise the full amount noted, but the estimates of receipts have been calculated rather more liberally than has latterly been usual, and, in making an announcement, we consider that it is well to be on the safe side.

"72. The present intention of the Secretary of State is to draw bills amounting to £17,000,000. This figure is omitted from both sides of the account above summarised.

"General Financial Position on the basis of commercial value of Assets and Liabilities.

"73. The credit of a country largely depends on the outstanding amount of its public debt. The public debt of India on March 31, 1902, including temporary and unfunded debt, liabilities on account of Post Office Savings Banks, Provident Funds and minor items, was £222,474,000.

"74. This is relatively a small sum, being only the equivalent of about three years' revenues, but the figure in itself may seem somewhat large to those who have not realised the great value of the assets held, against this debt, by the Government of India. It seems to me that it would be well to explain the nature and value of these assets, and to submit a statement of our financial position from the purely commercial point of view.

"75. From the purely accounts point of view, a statement of our position is annually included in the accounts published by the Secretary of State, and this statement whilst showing correctly, as regards book-accounting, the total amount expended on productive public works, such as railways and canals, does not allow credit for their actual market-value. As a purely commercial calculation, I have arbitrarily, but I think fairly, capitalised the value of State railways and canals at 25 years' purchase of net annual average revenue, for the three years ending March 31, 1902, and such capitalised value amounts to £264,065,000. In addition to this asset, we held, at that date, cash balances in England and India, and balances in mints, small coin depôts, etc., amounting to £20,723,000, as also £3,454,000 in the Gold Reserve Fund, whilst a sum of £12,754,000 was due to Government on account of advances to Native States, Corporations, and other public bodies, including £2,266,000 due by cultivators for takavi loans. These sums brought up the total commercial value of our assets on March 31, 1902, to £300,996,000.

"76. Against these commercial assets we must set off the amount of the Public Debt, already noted as £222,474,000, and the capitalised amount of our liabilities on account of the railways, and some minor obligations. The former, including the capital value of terminable annuities created for the purchase of the four old Guaranteed Companies, the capital raised through Companies working purchased railways, and the capitalised amount at 25 years' purchase of guaranteed interest payable to the new Guaranteed Companies, amounted to £94,787,000, whilst minor obligations amounted to £5,547,000, thus bringing up our total commercial indebtedness to £322,808,000.

"77. According to this calculation the balance of our commercial indebtedness on March 31, 1902, amounted to £21,812,000.

"78. We should, I think, however, take into account our assets and liabilities in connection with the two remaining old Guaranteed Companies' railways, the Bombay-Baroda, and the Madras. The capital value of these assets at 25 years' purchase of net annual average share of revenue payable to Government for the three years ending March 31, 1902, was £20,842,000. The liability in connection with the same cannot be stated definitely, since it will, in the end, depend on the price at which the railways may eventually be purchased by Government; for the purpose of my commercial calculation, I have, however, assumed the liability as equivalent to 25 years' purchase of the average annual payments of interest during the three years ending March 31, 1902, and this amounts to £24,824,000.

"79. Taking, then, the two remaining old Guaranteed Companies' railways into account, on the basis I have assumed, I must add £3,982,000 to our liabilities, and admitting this calculation, we still only show a total liability, for excess of commercial liabilities over assets, of £25,794,000.

"80. I think it may be fairly held that the position is even better than I have shown by the calculation of commercial values, on an arbitrary basis, and it must be remembered that in our railways and canals we have a steadily improving property.

"81. There are few States in Europe, or elsewhere, which can boast of such a thoroughly sound financial position.

Coinage, Currency and Exchange.

"82. During the past year our coinage operations, as regards rupees, have been limited to recoining rupees of the 1840 issue, and coining on account of Native States. The amount thus coined on Government account up to the end of February was R7,09,44,122, and for Native States R2,98,86,000. It must be remembered that the coinage undertaken on Government account added nothing to our circulating currency.

"83. Since the beginning of the current calendar year there have been very heavy demands for money, in great part in connection with the disposal of the bumper rice crop in Burma and the large cotton crop in Bombay and Central India. These demands have been largely met by the increased sale of Council Drafts, which will reach, according to our Revised Estimate, the total of £18,261,000, comparing as follows with those of preceding years:—

YEAR.	AMOUNT.
1901-1902	18,539,071
1900-1901	13,300,277
1899-1900	19,067,022
1898-99	18,692,377
1897-98	9,506,077

But this large sale of Council Bills has by no means sufficed to meet the demand on foreign account for rupees in India, and very considerable sums in gold, amounting to approximately 4½ millions sterling, have been shipped to India, chiefly from Australia, up to the end of February, besides a total nett importation of silver bullion, up to the same date, approximating 4 millions sterling. Of the silver importation, however, a large amount was for dollar coinage and for consumption in the country, but a certain proportion was apparently imported by speculators for a rise in silver, as a profitable method of remittance.

"84. Our currency balances have naturally been strongly affected by the bullion importations and demands for rupees, and our reserve of silver coin fell from R15,55,66,000 on November 30 to R9,01,73,000 on February 22, whilst the amount of gold held increased during the same period from £5,801,389 to £8,464,599. The stocks of both silver and gold have, however, since increased, the former to R9,90,90,000 and the latter to £9,073,853 on 7th March. In view of the large importations of gold bullion and the decreasing stock of silver coin, we decided at the end of February to purchase £300,000 of silver in London, so as to be fully prepared for the coinage of rupees should circumstances require it and our then existing stock of silver prove insufficient. At the time that we made the purchase, besides our stock of rupees in the Currency Reserve, we held in the two mints approximately R1,15,00,000 in withdrawn 1840 rupees, and silver bullion and bars obtained from the melting of such withdrawals. Our purchase was, therefore, simply a precautionary measure, and I allude to the fact to show that we are not unmindful of our responsibilities in the matter of providing currency.

"85. During the year, our Gold Reserve Fund has increased from £3,454,246 to £3,810,730, and substantially the whole of the latter amount is now invested in Consols. The Fund is increasing slowly but satisfactorily.

"86. Our exchange operations, as indicated by the rates obtained for Council Drafts, have been very favourable during the closing year. The average rate, to date, for the rupee, has been 16·002*d*. as compared with the rates noted below, for the four preceding years:—

1898-1899.	1899-1900.	1900-1901.	1901-1902.

"87. I may point out that our position, as regards currency and exchange, is now somewhat as follows:

"We have virtually relegated our rupee currency to the position of a token currency, and we are now practically in the position of bankers who have issued a certain amount of fiduciary currency (whether paper or metal is immaterial), and to maintain the value of this fiduciary currency, we are bound to be in a position to exchange it for gold when presented for conversion to meet legitimate trade requirements. As I have already mentioned, we hold in the Gold Reserve Fund a sum of £3,810,730, and in the Currency Reserve we have about £9,073,853 also in gold. The gold in the Currency Reserve flows freely in and out according to circumstances and monetary conditions, but the demand for the metal is generally small. Gold coins, though demanded by bankers, seemingly chiefly for remittance purposes, are apparently but rarely used in local circulation, and private demands for export are limited by the action of Government in curtailing the sale of Council Bills whenever exchange approaches export point gold being remitted, when necessary, to the Secretary of State in substitution for sales of Council Bills. The position of gold in the Indian Currency Reserve may, I think, be compared with that of gold in the Bank of England, which is held at the free disposition of the public, the difference being that the demands in India are comparatively small for the reasons I have given. The gold in the Gold Reserve Fund is held under conditions more nearly resembling those under which gold is held by the Bank of France. It will only be when the temporary curtailment of Council Bills is found insufficient to check a fall in exchange, and when the gold in the Currency Reserve is exhausted, i e., when the balance of indebtedness is seriously adverse to India to an extent, that we need hardly anticipate, that any serious demand can arise on the Gold Reserve Fund.

"There are both advantages and disadvantages in having a silver instead of a paper fiduciary currency. The silver always has an intrinsic value of high proportion to the nominal value of the circulating medium, but that value is fluctuating and has an unfortunate present tendency to depreciate. A note has no intrinsic value, and there can therefore be no question of fluctuation in its value.

Circulation of Currency Notes.

"88. During the past year the circulation of currency notes has considerably increased. I submit the two following statements, (1) showing the gross circulation of paper currency notes in recent years, and (2) the circulation excluding the amounts held at the Government Reserve Treasuries and by the Presidency Banks at their Head Offices:—

(In lakhs of rupees)

	1899-1900.	1900 1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903 (11 months only).
STATEMENT I.
Average	27,96	28,88	30,03	33,56
Maximum	29,27	30,78	31,86	35,58
Minimum	26,20	27,90	27,68	31,25
STATEMENT II.
Average	23,09	23,86	23,16	25,62
Maximum	24,41	25,02	24,40	27,35
Minimum	21,94	22,85	22,39	23,93

"It will be observed that the average circulation in statement (2) is considerably above that of the preceding year.

89. Last year I mentioned that we had under consideration the finding of means to popularise the circulation of notes. After a very careful consideration of the question, and consultation with some of the best authorities in India, we decided to make an experiment in the direction of creating a universal five-rupee note, payable at all Treasuries throughout India except Burma. The measures in connection with this decision have been legalised by an Act passed on March 13th of this year, but it will be some time before notes are issued to the public, as we are still engaged in considering the best form of note as regards the class of paper to be used to secure durability. We shall take special measures with the object of securing that these universal five-rupee notes be cashed without difficulty at all local Treasuries, and we hope in course of time to render them as popular throughout India as the present five-rupee notes already are in the Bombay Presidency. Should our experiment in the matter of a universal five-rupee note succeed, we shall in due time consider the advisability of issuing also a universal ten-rupee note. I must point out that the great difficulty in connection with the creation of such universally payable notes lies in the danger that they may be used for remittance purposes, but against this we shall take certain precautions.

Presidency Banks.

"90. At the beginning of the winter season we held an informal conference which was attended by the Managers of the three Presidency Banks and some of our best official experts, and as a result of the discussions we are now about to make proposals to the Secretary of State for some important modifications in existing arrangements with the Presidency Banks. I regret being unable to announce the decisions to-day, but I feel confident that they will be such as will meet with general approval, and I trust that in the end they will prove advantageous to the Presidency Banks, although on some points we have appealed to their well-known public spirit to make some possibly temporary sacrifices in the interests of the general commercial community.

"91. I submit the following statement of Government balances held by the Presidency Banks :—

Government Balances with the Presidency Banks.

(In thousands of rupees.)

MONTH.	1898.	1899.	1900.	1901.	1902.	1903.
January . . .	2,78,41	2,73,84	2,48,75	2,64,54	2,85,89	3,07,63
February . . .	2,74,04	2,72,31	2,56,23	2,86,73	2,97,16	3,32,02
March	3,19,63	3,38,07	2,79,18	3,15,79	3,11,24	...
December . . .	2,68,65	2,38,75	2,48,90	2,82,02	3,05,84	...

"I would ask those who may be inclined to consider that the Banks might receive further assistance from Government in this direction, to remember that according to our arrangements with the Banks the amounts which Government are under obligation to hold on deposit with them are, respectively—

	Lakhs.
Calcutta	35
Bombay	20
Madras	18
TOTAL	73

"It will be observed that these obligatory sums have been very largely exceeded. Further, we have continued to show our readiness to assist the Banks in meeting demands for money in the busy season, and we are glad to note that, notwithstanding the recent great demand for money, the Presidency Banks' rate has not exceeded 8 per cent.

Foreign Tariffs.

"92. Although our own Customs tariff is, with the exception of the countervailing sugar duties, on a simple basis, we do not escape a good deal of trouble and much correspondence in connection with changes in the tariffs of foreign countries likely to affect Indian trade. It is self-evident that, our own tariff being very low, we can have little to offer to any foreign State to induce them to treat us with special favour in the matter of tariffs, and this position will continue unless we should be forced to accept a serious change of policy and to adopt an undesirably complicated tariff, raising and varying our duty rates to meet the kaleidoscopic changes in the tariffs of others.

"93. Our chief troubles during the past year have been due to changes in the French and Persian tariffs, and to changes in the system of bounties in beet sugar-producing countries, whilst now we are inquiring about the reported change in the Japanese tariff, affecting indigo, and into the possible effect on our trade of the new arrangements in China.

"94. As regards the French tariff, after prolonged negotiations in Europe an arrangement has been made, under which India still continues to enjoy the minimum tariff, to the great advantage of our coffee planters. With Persia we unfortunately had no proper commercial treaty, and we were consequently in a difficult position to negotiate. The tariff recently introduced is still very high as regards our interests, but both the Government of India and the British Foreign Office have been giving unceasing attention to the question. Some important modifications on the original proposals were secured, and further steps are being taken for the protection of our trade interests.

Countervailing Duties on Sugar.

"95. It was agreed at the Brussels Conference to restrict by international agreement the protective duties that may be imposed in the sugar-producing countries, and to abolish all kinds of bounties on the production or export of sugar. A convention was drawn up giving effect to this decision, and requiring the contracting Powers either to impose countervailing duties on the sugar imported from countries which continue to grant bounties, directly or indirectly, or to prohibit altogether the importation of sugar from such countries.

"96. The Government of India were represented at the Conference, but did not become a party to the Convention, preferring to retain for the present complete liberty of action.

"97. At the Conference it was decided that the bounty system should be allowed to continue unchecked until the 1st of September 1903, and this decision made it necessary for us to devise intermediate measures to protect the Indian producer from the competition of bounty-fed cheap beet sugar, the price of which has been artificially lowered by the continental trade combinations. An Act was accordingly passed on the 6th of June 1902 empowering the Governor General in Council to impose a special duty on the sugar imported from any country in which the rate of taxation on foreign sugar exceeds the Excise-duty on home-grown sugar by more than a fixed maximum of 6 francs per 100 kilos of refined sugar, and 5½ francs per 100 kilos of raw sugar. The parties to the Brussels Conference considered that a protective duty of this amount would not allow a sufficient margin for the operations of cartels or combinations of sugar refiners, and they held that, when the protective duty exceeded the above rates, a special duty of half such excess would be sufficient to neutralise the depression in prices that might be created by the cartels. This formula appeared to be suitable to the conditions prevailing in Germany and Austria-Hungary, where the cartel system has been elaborated, and the rate of duty, worked out on the above principle, corresponded roughly with the difference, as calculated by experts, between the export price of sugar and the average cost of production in those countries. The Government of India therefore adopted this formula as a provisional measure, and on the 6th of June 1902, special duties were imposed under the new Act, on sugar imported from Germany and Austria-Hungary. The provisions of the Act were subsequently extended to sugar imported from France, Denmark, Russia, and the Argentine Republic. Measures have also been taken to ascertain the countries of origin of all sugar imported into India, in order to prevent the evasion of the countervailing duties by importation by indirect routes.

"98. The practical effect of the new duties has been to close, temporarily, the Indian market to the direct importation of German and Austro-Hungarian sugar, and to encourage imports from such beet-growing countries as Holland and Belgium, which do not maintain high protective duties. The imports of cane sugar from Hongkong, Java, and the Straits Settlements have also been largely increased.

"99. It has been announced in the public telegrams that all the Powers who joined the Brussels Convention have now formally ratified their acceptances, and it may be presumed that the provisions of the Convention will be put into force on the 1st of September 1903. On that date, the parties to the Convention are bound to abolish all sugar bounties, and, should they be completely abolished, the position might become such as to justify the abolition of all countervailing duties in India. On the same date, the Act passed in June last will, unless specially extended, cease to be in force. It appears, however, probable that in September next large stocks of bounty-fed sugar will be in hand in the beet-growing countries, and it may possibly prove necessary to consider the necessity of further temporary special measures, until these stocks have been exhausted and normal conditions restored.

"100. No decision has yet been arrived at with regard to the adherence of India to the Brussels Convention, but we are at liberty under the terms of the Agreement to accept it, should it hereafter appear desirable.

"101. I append a statement of the imports of sea-borne sugar, and also of the sums realised from the countervailing duties.

Customs Administration.

"102. The Government of India have received representations from commercial bodies on the questions of the desirability of the care of commercial interests being made a particular function of some Government Department, and also on that of reform in our Customs administration, particularly with regard to the simplification of procedure and continuity of service in the Customs Department. These are questions on which, in principle, we fully sympathise with the ideas of the commercial community, and that such is the case is evidenced by the fact that Government had already moved in both matters before there was any special indication of public interest therein. It is some two years since the question was mooted of the desirability of having a section specially charged with the consideration of commercial interests in the Finance and Commerce Department. During that period, opinions on the question have been received and various suggestions considered; finally, a definite scheme has been formulated which is now under the consideration of the Secretary of State. Until we learn what the decision may be, it would not be proper for me to enter into the details of our proposals, but I may say that there is not the least fear of the proposed commercial section becoming a bureau of dry statistical information with the addition of lists of the addresses of traders. Our idea is to create an active living institution in which all questions relating to trade and industry will be considered and primarily dealt with, whilst information will be collected which we trust will prove equally useful to Government and to business men. Our present Statistical Department will be included in the new section, with a distinct head, subordinate to the Director General of the section, which will include two distinct divisions, Commercial and Statistical.

" 103. With regard to Customs administration, I may say that this matter has occupied my attention for a long time, and it is more than a year since Government referred to a departmental committee certain questions connected with our Custom House system, and we subsequently requested another committee, on which we had the valuable assistance of commercial representatives, to formulate proposals for the improvement and simplification of Customs procedure. Something has already been done in this direction, and I believe that the commercial community are fully sensible of the beneficial results. The larger reforms which have been suggested will also receive the most careful consideration, but it must be remembered that the Customs administration being under the Local Governments we cannot move as quickly as might possibly otherwise be expected.

Army Services.

" 104. We are still continuing the work of providing for increased efficiency of the army, and more particularly by expenditure in the various Departments connected with Supply, Transport, Armament and Mobilisation. The following figures show the net Military expenditure during the last five years :—

1899-1900	14,165,743
1900-1901	14,265,525
1901-1902	14,786,312
1902-1903 (Revised Estimate)	16,234,900
1903-1904 (Budget Estimate)	16,652,300

" Included in the sums placed at the disposal of the Military Department are large amounts for Ordnance Factories. We have so far sanctioned the following amounts on this account and the subjoined statement shows the sums allotted and spent, to date, on different establishments :—

Statement showing the probable expenditure to end of 1902-1903 on the various Government manufacturing establishments, and the grants allotted for 1903-1904.

Name of Factory.	Total amount of estimate (Military and Military Works).	Total probable expenditure to 31st March 1903 (Military and Military Works).	Total grants allotted for 1903-1904 (Military and Military Works).
Cordite Factory, Wellington . . .	196,298	180,694	10,000
Rifle Factory, Ishapore	250,333	60,977	142,000
Gun Carriage Factory, Jubbulpore . . .	177,938	74,619	54,250
Ishapur Rolling Mills	167,829	2,000	84,035
Gun Factory, Cossipore	10,680	Nil.	7,000
TOTAL .	803,078	318,290	297,285

"These are large grants, but I would again emphasise the fact that not only will the expenditure have valuable results from a military point of view, but it will prove of direct benefit to the people of India by lessening the cost of war material; providing well-paid employment for labourers and artisans; assisting the education of the people in mechanical trades; and reducing the drain on our resources for payment abroad.

"105. We anticipate that manufacturing will commence in the Cordite Factory about the end of 1903; in the Ishapur Rifle Factory about the end of 1904, and in the Gun Carriage Factory, Jubbulpore, the Rolling Mills, Ishapur, and the Gun Factory at Cossipore in the spring of 1905.

Public Works.

"106. The following figures show the comparative Capital expenditure on Railways for five years:—

1899-1900		5,978,520
1900-1901		5,317,768
1901-1902		5,915,199
1902-1903 (Revised)		6,897,200
1903-1904 (Estimate)—
	Capital expenditure on open lines	3,350,700
	Capital expenditure on lines under construction	2,271,600
	Capital expenditure on new lines recently commenced	1,183,800
	Capital expenditure on new lines to be commenced next cold weather	527,200
	TOTAL FOR 1903-1904	7,333,300

"107. On April 1st, 1902, the total length of railways was 25,378 miles, classified as follows:—

5' 6" gauge	14,057
Metre gauge	10,553
Special 2' 6" and 2' 0" gauges	768
TOTAL	25,378

'To this mileage has been added during the current year—

	Miles.
5' 6" gauge	272
Metre gauge	697
Special narrow gauges	127

bringing up the total addition to open lines to 1,096 miles, and we anticipate adding approximately another 654 miles during the coming financial year.

"These are important additions to our railway communications, and experience has shown their great value in mitigating the effects of famine, and in opening up new districts, and providing profitable markets for the agricultural population.

Provincial Settlements.

"108. As regards the new settlements with Provincial Governments, I had expected to be able to make some definite announcement at this season, but the matter is one of such great importance and the questions involved are so complicated that it was only in the late autumn that we were prepared to formulate definite proposals to the Secretary of State, and these are still under his consideration.

Mutual Credit and Agricultural Banks.

"109. Again, I must express my regret at being unable to announce any definite decision. The question is clearly one of the highest importance, and, anxious as we are to proceed, every care must be taken to avoid, as far as possible, mistakes at the outset. The opinions of Local Governments and authorities to whom the report of the Conference on this question was referred have been received, but they have not been sufficiently long before us to enable us to formulate our definite proposals to the Secretary of State.

Remission of Land Revenue and Special Grants-in-Aid.

"110. I mentioned in my Statement last year that we had decided to remit £1,321,500 of arrears of land assessment in distressed districts. This has been done, and we continue the same policy of assistance to any sections of the agricultural population, which, as the result of famine, may be in need thereof, and we have again sanctioned a special grant of 25 lakhs for minor irrigation works. I may mention that during the closing financial year it was only found possible to profitably spend 16 lakhs out of the 25 lakhs sanctioned. I may here remind those who advise us to 'irrigate India' as a panacea for all troubles from drought and famine, that even in India water will not flow up hill, and that irrigation schemes require much time for careful preparation, and more time and the greatest care for profitable execution.

"111. The special grants-in-aid made last year to Provincial Governments for expenditure on Education, Public Works, Medical requirements and provincial administrative purposes, were not fully expended. From one point of view it is a matter of regret that it was not found possible to expend the whole sum which was placed at the disposal of the Provinces, but, on the other hand, the fact that the money was not all spent is a satisfactory proof of the care exercised in its expenditure. This year we have decided to distribute among the various Provinces, excluding Burma, a special grant of 40 lakhs, to be devoted to Public Works, such as Jails, Police Quarters, Court Houses, Provincial Roads, etc., and we believe that the money can be spent with real advantage. We have not made any special grant to Burma on this head, as the Government of that Province has a very large balance, accumulated during the period of the last settlement, and which is still at its disposal for Public Works.

Famine.

"112. We may congratulate ourselves upon the favourable results of last year's monsoon; a prolonged break in which at one time threatened disaster. But the rainfall was resumed in time, and the result was to add to the happiness and prosperity of the people, and was immediately reflected in our revenue collections.

"The rice crop in the Central Provinces constituted an unfortunate exception. It very generally failed; and the failure, coming as it did upon the top of successive years of trial, has caused considerable distress. The distress is, fortunately, not very widespread; but already some 36,000 persons are in receipt of relief. In some districts of Upper Burma also, insufficient rainfall has resulted in a short yield of rice.

"The winter rains in the north-western portion of India have again been scanty, and the spring crops in unirrigated areas, especially in the Punjab, have suffered in consequence. But it is not anticipated that anything in the shape of serious distress will result. With these exceptions, the agricultural character of the past year may be described as generally favourable.

"113. Our direct famine expenditure during the closing financial year is estimated at £313,500. In connection with famine questions I may mention that the total outstanding for loans granted to Native States, chiefly for famine purposes, is now about 211 lakhs; in addition to this sum, loans have been raised by Native States in Bombay, in the open market, under Government guarantee, to the amount of about 33 lakhs.

"As announced at the Durbar at Delhi, we have remitted three years' interest on the loans granted or guaranteed by Government, and we have since decided that to assist very small States who had raised petty loans in the open market, the outstanding balance of principal up to R2,000 shall be paid off by Government during the current year, and be replaced by Government loans at 4 per cent. Our estimate of the amount thus to be paid is R1,14,000. I trust that this latter arrangement will prove a substantial assistance to the very small States, by whom the burden of interest and repayment of principal on even the most petty loans, must be severely felt.

Economic Progress.

"114. I think it may be well that I should endeavour once more briefly to review the economic situation, and to deduce, from the consideration of the question, such conclusions as may be possible, regarding the prosperity of the people taken as a whole. I say advisedly 'taken as a whole,' because those who have been inclined to criticise previous statements of opinion on this subject have founded their arguments as to the alleged impoverishment of the people, on facts and circumstances connected solely with that relatively small part of the total population which has been so severely tried by famine and plague in recent years.

"115. As a general indication of increasing wealth of the tax-payers, I think that a very fairly correct estimate of the position is to be obtained by noting the increase in revenue returns under heads the returns from which are manifestly dependent on their spending power. Such heads are Salt, Excise, Customs, Post Office, and in a lesser degree Stamps, and I give the following figures showing progress in revenue under those heads during the last three years :—

	Accounts, 1899-1900.	Accounts, 1900-1901.	Accounts, 1901-1902.	Revised Estimate, 1902-1903.
	£	£	£	£
Salt	5,850,463	5,967,034	5,939,310	6,040,000
Stamps	3,265,476	3,342,948	3,446,406	3,471,900
Excise	3,859,942	3,937,202	4,076,681	4,377,600
Customs (excluding countervailing duties and silver)	2,914,857	3,131,223	3,358,870	3,509,700
Post Office	1,308,315	1,357,156	1,383,709	1,435,000
TOTAL	17,199,053	17,735,563	18,204,976	18 834,200

"116. I have purposely omitted Land Revenue from this table, since returns from this source are influenced in the direction of increase by revisions of settlement, and by the bringing under settlement of newly irrigated and cultivated lands, and in the direction of decrease by the large remissions which have been made to facilitate recuperation in specially afflicted areas. The returns from the Post Office have, it is true, been influenced by certain changes in rates charged, but as these have all been in the nature of concessions and reductions, we can as regards the question under consideration accept the results with confidence.

"117. The inevitable deduction from the figures tabulated must be that the material prosperity of the people as a whole is making good progress.

"118. In further confirmation of this I may cite the figures showing the growth of deposits in the Post Office Savings Banks—

	Accounts, 1899-1900.	Accounts, 1900-1901.	Accounts, 1901-1902.	Revised Estimate, 1902-1903.
Post Office Savings Banks (net receipts)	145,628	264,540	425,911	430,400

"119. As I have previously stated, the prosperity of the agricultural population must from the financial as well as from other points of view, be the deepest concern of the Government of India, and there is no hesitation in providing funds for agricultural purposes wherever we see the likelihood of profitable employment. Matters of detail connected with this question are within the province of my Honourable Colleague in charge of the Revenue and Agricultural Department, but I think I may be allowed to mention that the activity and labours of the competent gentleman who was named Inspector General of Agriculture, encourage great hopes of progress, and that in some parts of the country a very satisfactory beginning has been made towards instructing the raiyats in such questions as introduction of crops grown in one district to another in which they seem likely to succeed; improved methods of cultivation; advantage of chopping up fodder crops; ensilage; value of propagation of good qualities of seed; value of certain easily procured manures; use of implements of the simplest kinds; and the treatment of crop diseases.

"In the Central Provinces, under the sympathetic supervision of the Commissioner of Settlements, special progress has been made, and 14 demonstration farms working on the lines indicated, of from 25 to 100 acres each, were taken up last year. Further, in these Provinces the publication of a monthly magazine has been undertaken, written in simple language, in the local vernacular, and dealing with local agricultural questions. There are already over a thousand subscribers to this magazine and free distribution is made to officials. The success which has attended this good beginning augurs favourably for the future.

"120. I am glad to say that there has been some recovery during the past year from the recent severe depression in the tea industry. Prices have improved somewhat, that for fair Souchong having risen from 4 annas 3 pies per lb at the end of February 1902 to 4 annas 9 pies per lb at the close of the calendar year, and from 4 annas for common Pekoe to 4 annas and 9 pies per lb. Progress has been made in pushing sales in Persia and Russia, and a new departure has taken place during the past year in the manufacture of green tea in India. The exports from Calcutta between April 1st and January 31st have increased from lb 163,339,300 in 1901-1902 to lb 164,161,000 in the corresponding period, 1902-1903.

"121. I cannot say that there are up till now as satisfactory signs of revival in the indigo industry, as I am able to note with regard to tea. Still there is distinct evidence that the views which I ventured to express on this question in my previous Financial Statements have not been without reasonable grounds. I know that very many of those keenly interested in the Indian indigo industry believed that I was unreasonably optimistic, and capitalist friends in Europe, interested in the manufacture of synthetic indigo, pitied my ignorance in saying that they had not yet heard the last of the natural product.

"Now, what are the facts on which we may base an opinion? First, owing to a succession of unfavourable seasons, we have had a reduction in the outturn of indigo crops, from over one million maunds to some 85,000 maunds, then to 45,000 maunds, and such a failure in crops would by itself have spelt ruin to any but an industry possessed of much natural vitality. And yet the indigo industry is by no means dead, and during the recently closed auction season, prices advanced by fully four pence per pound—a very considerable percentage, —whilst natural indigo continues, I am informed, to fetch in certain markets some 30 per cent more than the artificial product.

"But the most important point, to my mind, in connection with this question of competition between the natural and artificial products, is that the planters appear to have realised the necessity of a reform in agricultural methods, and are with good results adopting a system of rotation of crops, whereby indigo becomes something akin to those bye-products for which any price obtainable is a profit. I do not anticipate any return to the bye-gone days of extraordinary prosperity in indigo, but I do not believe that we need contemplate anything like a complete failure of the industry.

"122. In this connection we must feel keen interest in the present efforts to create a sugar industry on a scientific basis in Behar, since indigo 'seeth' is considered to be the cheapest and most reliable manure for sugarcane crops. It is reported that satisfactory progress is being made with the production of sugar, and I am glad to say that considerable attention is also being paid to the cultivation of rhea and tobacco, for the manuring of which crops the indigo 'seeth' is equally valuable.

"123. The rapidly increasing prosperity of the coal business has received a check, but I do not think that there is any reason for discouragement. We have recently had the opportunity of learning the opinion of two very competent experts on the value of our coal-fields, and they were emphatic in their appreciation of the wealth they represent. They gave, however, some words of warning as to the desirability of economical working of the coal seams, without due attention to which profitable working might in their opinion come to an end prematurely.

"The quality of the Bengal coal was highly praised by these experts, and I would venture to suggest to coal-owners that to maintain the reputation of the coal and command full prices, it is very important that only the best qualities should be shipped. Attention to this question is in the interests of all concerned in the trade, for should careless owners send out coal of inferior quality, there would be a risk of a general reduction in price which would seriously prejudice the business of those who continued to work their coal well, and shipped only the best quality.

"I give the following figures of exports of Bengal coal during the last three calendar years :—

YEAR.	Foreign Ports.	Indian Coast Ports.	GRAND TOTAL.
	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.
1900 . .	518,551	1,216,000	1,734,551
1901 . .	575,937	1,432,350	2,008,287
1902 . .	427,786	1,287,770	1,715,556

"Bunker Coal was supplied to Steamers at Calcutta, in 1900, 615,504 tons; 1901, 661,840 tons; 1902, 697,007 tons.

"124. As regards investment in industrial enterprises in India, I should mention that our statistical returns show an increase of investment of £875,000 for the calendar year 1902, and the total paid up capital at the end of that year as amounting to £25,992,000. These returns are, I fear, not fully complete, as we sometimes have considerable difficulty in obtaining the required information. It would be a great advantage if such information were more freely given.

"125. I am glad to be able to note once more that the jute industry is in a flourishing condition, and I understand that good profits have been made by those engaged in that business. There are, however, reports that the quality of the jute fibre is deteriorating, and this appears to me to be a question requiring the close attention and advice of agricultural experts, assisted by agricultural chemists. I hope that this question may be taken up. Prices have ruled fairly firm, this season, and exports have been fairly large.

"126. We have had an excellent cotton crop which is selling at fair prices, and we have further been favoured with a bumper rice crop in Burma, which, besides adding to the prosperity of that Province, has resulted in a material total increase of revenue, amounting, as compared with last year, to approximately R27,73,000 from the export-duty on rice.

"127. In conclusion, I would draw attention to a very specially satisfactory feature in the general situation, namely, the steady growth of our Export trade. The following are the comparative values of exports (exclusive of treasure and Government stores) in the eleven months from April 1st to February 28th, in the last three years:—

1900-1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903.
64,865,050	75,051,924	75,969,551

"The corresponding figures for the Import trade are—

1900-1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903.
45,696,640	50,285,455	47,164,115

"The result, including Government stores, but excluding treasure, has been an excess of values of Exports over Imports for the three eleven-month periods, as follows:—

1900-1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903.
16,641,827	20,828,175	24,907,365

INCOME-TAX (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD LAW said:—"In consequence of the announcement which I have been authorized to make to-day regarding the remission of Income-tax on incomes below Rs. 1,000, it will be necessary to undertake legislation, and I ask Your Excellency's permission to move for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1886. Under the present law the limit below which incomes are not liable to Income-tax is now fixed at Rs. 500. It has been decided to raise this limit to Rs. 1,000 per annum, and the object of this Bill is to give effect to that decision."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—"Owing to the fact that the legislation to which the Hon'ble Member alludes is consequential upon the Budget Statement which has just been delivered, it has not been found possible to comply with the Rules as regards the notice which ought ordinarily to be given. Under one of the Rules for the conduct of business, however, I have the power to provide for the addition to the list, at any time, of business of a special nature, and it is under this power that I now accept the motion of the Hon'ble Member, to introduce this Bill and put it to the Council."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD LAW introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD LAW also moved that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India and in the local official Gazettes in English.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 20th March, 1903.

DETAILS OF ACCOUNTS AND ESTIMATES.

APPENDIX I.

ACCOUNTS AND ESTIMATES.

APPENDIX II.

APPENDIX III.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1903-1904.

PART I.

1. With Your Excellency's permission I will now lay before the Legislative Council the actual financial results of the year 1901-1902; our Revised Estimate for 1902-1903; and our Budget Estimates for the coming financial year 1903-1904.

2. In their briefest form, and leaving out Capital, Debt and Remittance transactions, the figures are as follows:—

	1901-1902 (Accounts).
Revenue	76,344,525
Expenditure (charged against Revenue)	71,394,282
Surplus	4,950,243

	1902-1903 (Revised Estimate).
Revenue	76,892,500
Expenditure (charged against Revenue)	74,154,000
Surplus	2,738,500

	1903-1904 (Budget Estimate).
Revenue	76,355,400
Expenditure (charged against Revenue)	75,406,700
Surplus	948,700

Accounts, 1901-1902.

3. The final accounts of the financial year 1901-1902 show a surplus of £4,950,243, being an increase of £4,259,343 over the original Estimate which showed a surplus of £690,900.

4. On the Expenditure side the Accounts show a decrease of £106,718 as compared with the original Estimate, and of £479,518 as compared with our Revised Estimate.

5. The more important figures contributing to this latter result are an increase of £134,225 under Other Public Works, and decreases of £365,369 under Army Services, of £43,088 under Famine Relief and Insurance and of £35,318 under Miscellaneous Civil Charges, and of £144,690 under Provincial Surplus added to the Provincial balances and charged as expenditure. These items account for the greater portion of the total difference noted, although there are many minor differences under various heads which on balance more or less compensate one another. The increased expenditure under Other Public Works is due to unexpectedly heavy expenditure in the last two months of the financial year. The decrease under Army Services of £365,369 is mainly due to smaller payment of capitation rates to War Office, owing to absence of troops in South Africa, and refunds from the War Office on account of over-payments in previous years, and the decrease under Famine Relief of £43,088 to an under-estimate of the interest charge for the Bengal-Nagpore Railway, which is met from the "Famine Insurance Grant," whilst the saving in "Miscellaneous Civil Charges" is owing mainly to an over-estimate in England, more especially under the head of Superannuation Allowances and Pensions.

6. On the Revenue side the heads under which the chief differences are observable between Accounts and the Revised Estimate are Land Revenue, a decrease of £181,882; Salt, a decrease of £57,390; Stamps, a decrease of £48,294; and Other Heads, a decrease of £54,991. Against these rather considerable decreases we have important increases under Receipts by Military Department, £72,389, and under Railways, £47,868. The result of these and other minor changes is an actual decrease of £202,175 of revenue as compared with the Revised Estimate of the year, and allowing for a decrease in expenditure of £479,518, the final result is an increase to the surplus of £277,343.

7. The important decrease of £181,882 under Land Revenue is accounted for by suspensions and smaller recoveries of arrears in the Punjab, where the winter rains failed to some extent; also to the season having proved more unfavourable than was anticipated, in North Arcot, and in parts of the Ceded Districts in Madras; and to over-estimates of collections in Sind, and to a relatively small extent in the United Provinces.

8. The decrease of £57,390 from Salt is mainly due to a decline in the trade at Sambhar at the end of the year, which is attributed to the spread of rumours of a possible reduction of duty.

9. The falling-off of £48,294 in Stamps Revenue was mainly in the United Provinces and in Bengal. In the former plague appeared in March, and the passing of the Tenancy Bill in January appears to have diminished litigation. There were minor deficiencies in the Punjab, in Bombay, and in Madras, and it is possible that these may to some extent be attributed to the fact that the Easter holidays fell at the end of March.

10. The decrease of £54,991 noted under Other Heads was chiefly in the Forest revenue, which fell short by £34,545. There was an extraordinary decline last year in the returns from Burma Forests; the floating season was bad, and there was a fall in the price of teak.

11. The increase of £72,389 under "Army Receipts" was in great part due to larger credits for Europe stores despatched to South Africa and China, and to greater sales of malt liquor than anticipated.

12. The increase in Railway revenues, amounting to £47,868 nett, was earned chiefly by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway by the carriage of favourable crops of cotton and oil-seeds.

Revised Estimate, 1902-1903.

13. The Revised Estimate shows an anticipated increase over the original Estimate of £2,522,100 under Revenue, and allowing for an increase (including Provincial surpluses and deficits) of £621,300 in expenditure, results in a total anticipated surplus of £2,738,500 as compared with the Budget Estimate which showed a surplus of £837,700.

14. This very large surplus is due to an increase of revenue in greater or less proportion under every principal head except Stamps, which shows a slight decrease of £6,200. The following are the principal differences between the Revised and Budget Estimates, giving, after allowing for some minor items, the total increase of revenue of £2,522,100:—

Land Revenue	698,400
Opium	274,300
Salt	66,700
Excise	257,300
Customs	286,700
Assessed Taxes	47,000
Interest	108,000
Post Office	57,900
Telegraph	51,500
Mint	351,900
Receipts, Civil Departments	49,400
Miscellaneous	42,400
Railways	77,000
Irrigation	138,300
Receipts, Military Department	31,400
TOTAL	2,538,200

15. The increase under Land Revenue which accounts for more than one-fourth of the total, is due to a favourable monsoon season and to the inclusion for the first time of the Berar revenues amounting to £480,000. The other principal increases making up the large total were—

Burma	46,100
Madras	73,800
Bombay	141,400

The total amount anticipated to be realised during the closing financial year, excluding Berár, is higher than the average of the past six preceding years by a sum of more than three-fifths of a million sterling, and this notwithstanding remissions in districts specially affected by the recent famine amounting to the important sum of £504,300. This very satisfactory increase is indicative of general progress, and of the great strides towards recovery made by the impoverished peasantry of recently afflicted areas. It may be noted that the proportion of Land Revenue from irrigated lands, or due to irrigation, is estimated at £821,900, the increase over the figure of the preceding year being £8,503. Increases under this head are specially satisfactory as showing the value of our irrigation system. But, as I have before now pointed out, such increases are not directly indicative of the condition of the people, since, apart from increased returns from newly irrigated tracts, the greater the defect of rainfall, the greater the revenue from irrigation in those districts whose topographical situation has enabled us to provide them with water.

16. The important increase under Opium is due to the obtaining of a higher price than estimated from sales, and to larger exports of Malwa Opium. In view of the rapidly falling market prices during the latter half of the last financial year, we assumed in our calculations for this year's sales a price of R1,100 per chest for Bengal Opium. In the early part of the year a continued decline in the market justified our anticipations, but in the later months there has been a fortunate recovery leading to the result now stated. The following figures illustrate the course of the market throughout the year:—

Average sale-price of Opium per chest during the financial year 1902-1903.

Month	R	a.	p.	Month	R	a.	p.
April	1,178	2	10	October	1,135	13	1
May	1,074	13	7	November	1,169	5	7
June	1,108	2	1	December	1,128	9	1
July	1,100	11	6	January	1,149	12	2
August	1,140	4	1	February	1,154	11	7
September	1,132	1	0	March	1,262	5	1

17. Beyond certain improved facilities of distribution favouring consumption, the increased returns from Salt can only be attributed to an improvement in the material condition of consumers. The increase of £100,690, over the actuals of 1901-1902, is decidedly satisfactory, and it would have been larger but that we consider it necessary to allow for a loss of about £40,000 during the closing weeks of the year on account of the reduction in duty which comes into force immediately.

18. Excise, which has been yielding a slow but steady increase of revenue during the past few years, has suddenly taken a great leap forward, the revenue for the closing year being estimated at more than £300,000 in excess of that for 1901-1902. This remarkable increase of over 7 per cent in a single year is undoubtedly due in part to better administration and more efficient preventive measures, but it is also due, and to a probably greater extent, to the improved condition of the people.

19. Our Customs revenue shows an increase under most of the important heads, the only serious exceptions being sugar and cotton goods. There has been some check in the importations of foreign petroleum, but there is no great cause for dissatisfaction at this, since such check is compensated by increased production of oil in Burma and Assam. The importation into Calcutta of petroleum from Burma increased by approximately 3¼ million gallons, or by some 25 per cent, during the eleven months terminating on March 1, 1903, as compared with the importation during the corresponding period in the previous year.

20. The general importation of sugar shows a very considerable decline, but I much doubt whether this decline has been accompanied by any similar decline in consumption. The sugar market has been greatly perturbed by anticipations regarding the result of the Brussels Conference, and prices have varied considerably since last year. The prices quoted for refined beet sugar, last month, per cwt. in Bombay, were R10-13 as compared with R9-5 in March 1902, and the fluctuations in the interval have been considerable. Such uncertainties and fluctuations in prices must necessarily have affected the operations of importers, and although I am without precise information on the subject, I feel pretty sure that stocks of sugar in India must now be much lower than they were twelve months ago.

Our returns from the countervailing duties on sugar have not only been received on a less volume of importations, but have also been affected by the changes introduced in our system of levying that duty under the Act passed in June 1902. The total received under countervailing duties for the first eleven months of the current financial year has amounted to only R17,05,000 as compared with R33,83,000 in the preceding year. In this connection I may recall that in the discussion on the Budget last March, one of the Honourable Members of this Council questioned the advisability of our taking so low a figure as 24 lakhs for returns from countervailing duties. The prudence of that estimate has, however, been more than justified by the event.

21. The duties on cotton manufactures, including all kinds, have also shown a falling-off, the receipts during the first eleven months of the current year amounting to R85,00,223 as compared with R96,65,320 in the immediately preceding corresponding period. It is only in the secondary category of white piece goods that a serious decline of importations has occurred, and in the much more important class of grey goods there has been an actual increase from R46,66,879 to R47,36,512. As regards the question of purchasing power for a staple article of consumption among the people, the relative falling-off in importations is compensated by an important increase in the output of local manufactures, as evidenced by the following figures showing the returns of excise dues levied in British India :—

Net total receipts of cotton excise dues.

	R
1897-98	11,38,950
1898-99	13,53,120
1899-1900	13,09,514
1900-1901	11,62,947
1901-1902	17,16,836
1902-1903	17,42,000 (estimate for last two months).

Various important articles of importation have shown satisfactory increases. Liquors give an increase of R4,54,382, copper of R3,03,623, and hardware and cutlery, of R1,04,341.

22. Deducting silver, the increased importation of which has been due to special circumstances to which I shall again allude, and sugar, the importation of which has, as I have shown, been influenced by exceptional circumstances, it will be found that there is scarcely any difference between the total revenues which we estimate will be derived from Customs importations in the current year and in the year 1901-1902. In this connection I may observe that, whilst I hope that increasing general prosperity may continue to swell our Customs returns from certain articles which we shall necessarily continue to import from abroad, I am inclined to anticipate that the development of Indian resources and industries, particularly as regards supplying such important articles of common consumption as cotton goods, petroleum and sugar, will tend to check the recent somewhat rapid growth of Customs revenue from imports.

23. Under "Interest" the increase in receipts occurs mostly in England, and is due to the temporary investment of larger sums and to higher rates being obtained for them than was anticipated last March.

24. In Assessed Taxes, consisting almost entirely of income tax, the important increase of £47,000 must be considered satisfactory. It is, I fear, only by their contributions as income tax that a considerable section of the wealthier classes of the community make any adequate contribution towards the expenses of the administration of the State. It may be hoped that, with improved collection and control, income tax will become a fair and important head of revenue.

25. Both letter postage and money order receipts increased beyond the Budget Estimate, and together they contributed £47,300 out of the total increase of £57,900 under "Post Office," and this notwithstanding a loss of approximately £11,400 entailed by the reduction of the commission on money orders for sums not exceeding five rupees.

26. The increase of £51,500 in Telegraph receipts is mainly due to the Budget Estimate providing for too large a reduction under foreign message revenue in view of the reduction of the tariff, whilst the cessation of hostilities in China has caused a smaller falling-off in receipts than was anticipated. "Receipts, Civil Departments" were swollen by the inclusion of Berar accounts from October 1st to the extent of £8,500, and by £26,100 from the employment of Royal Indian Marine vessels on Imperial service. Of the increase of £42,400 under "Miscellaneous," £6,100 is due to increase of receipts in England, and £10,900 to the inclusion of Berar revenues from October 1st. There is also an improvement of £36,900 in Exchange transactions with Guaranteed Railways. With regard to Railways, I explained in my last Financial Statement that we could not count for the continuance in the current year of the abnormal receipts of 1901-1902, and I regret to say that my anticipations have been realised, as our Revised Estimate is £199,568 below the actuals of 1901-1902. The net increase of the Revised over the Budget Estimate, viz., £77,000, is relatively a small difference, considering the magnitude of the transactions involved, amounting to only ·4 per cent. The increase of £138,300 under "Irrigation" occurred chiefly in the Punjab, United Provinces and Bengal, and is due to the irrigation of a larger area than was anticipated. The increase of £31,400 under Army Receipts is chiefly due to credits for the supply of stores to troops serving abroad.

27. On the whole, we have every reason to congratulate ourselves on the important increase of revenue noted, and which is, in the main, due to a favourable agricultural season and to the steady recuperation of those provinces which have been so severely tried in the last few years.

28. I now pass to the Expenditure side of the account, and it is satisfactory to be able to state that the total expenditure according to our Revised Estimate will be £802,900 less than the original estimate.

29. In Army Services there has been a decrease of £509,200, but out of this large sum we must attribute some £479,500 to prolongation of the absence of troops in South Africa and China, and there were lapses of certain sanctioned grants which it was not found possible economically to employ in full, before the close of the financial year.

30. The other heads under which important economies have been effected are Direct Demands on the Revenue £259,100, Interest £75,600, and Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments £488,900. "Direct Demands on the Revenue" were reduced by £129,200 owing to the opium crop proving to be below the estimate which allowed for a full crop, and there was also a considerable decrease in charges connected with Land Revenue. Under "Interest" there was a large saving owing chiefly to a reduction in the sum estimated for discount and interest on the loan of 150 lakhs raised in India last summer. The decrease under "Salaries and Expenses of Civil Establishments" was largely due to the impossibility to profitably utilise during the financial year the special grants made for "Education," "Medical," "Police," and "Justice."

31. On the other hand, we have a large apparent increase of expenditure under Mint, amounting to £299,600, due chiefly to a payment of £263,400 to the Gold Reserve Fund (being net profits on coinage) and to the recoinage of withdrawn rupees, and also to the coinage of dollars on private account, though on the latter we secure a small profit. Under "Miscellaneous Civil Charges" there is an increase of £258,500, of which £126,500 is due to the inclusion of Berar transactions from October 1st, whilst £66,300 is due to the remission of takavi advances in the Bombay Presidency, and £4,100 is for interest charges on guaranteed loans raised by Native States. The increase of £211,300 under "Railway Revenue Account" is due partly to the expense of increased traffic, but more largely to special expenditure on maintenance and renewals of permanent-way and bridges and on rolling-stock.

32. Before considering the Estimates for the coming year, I think that I should say something with regard to the large surpluses over and above our Estimates during the last few years. It may be thought that our Estimates should have approximated more closely to results than has been the case, but as regards our Revised Estimate for the past year, it must be remembered that it includes the Berar accounts which were not included in our original Estimate. I myself think that we should try to arrive at closer figures, and a serious endeavour has been made in this direction in the preparation of the Estimates for 1903-1904. I must, however, point out that an Indian Budget presents very special difficulties as regards accurate estimation. These difficulties arise from the dependence of our revenue on the good or bad fortune of the agricultural industry; this good or bad fortune is entirely dependent on the seasonableness and amount of rain during the year, and there is no possibility of foretelling how the elements may favour us. Land Revenue, which constitutes nearly one-fourth of our total resources, is naturally directly dependent upon the course of the season, and indirectly the same factor affects returns from Salt, Excise, and Customs. That Excise returns are directly influenced by the fortunes of the agriculturist, may be clearly seen by noting the following figures showing the variations of Excise revenue in the Bombay Presidency during the last few years, and the [illegible] in which its returns correspond with the better or worse [illegible] people [illegible] affected by the great [illegible] in [illegible]:—

[illegible]	1899-1900.	1900-1901.	[illegible]	[illegible] Revised Estimate.

4·5	—7·0	—4·8	4·0	1·8

Customs revenues too, depending so largely on the importation of cotton goods imported chiefly for the use of the peasantry, are affected by the conditions which make or mar their prosperity.

33. Further, apart from climatic influences, the Customs returns have, for some years past, been affected by the variations in the countervailing duties on sugar, which there was no possibility of estimating beforehand. In addition to fluctuations under the above-mentioned important heads, our Opium revenue is, as is well known, a very uncertain factor in our revenue, and, further, during the last three years we have had unexpected windfalls through the movements of troops on the Indian Establishment, for foreign service, and through payments by the British War Office for stores and material supplied with those troops.

34. I trust that the figures which I am now about to present will approximate more closely to results than has been the case with those of the year now drawing to an end, although, as I have shown, our Indian conditions do not admit of a really close estimation. We are bound to be prudent in our forecasts. If the elements are favourable, a greater or less expansion of revenue exceeding those prudent forecasts will certainly result, whilst, should the season unfortunately prove seriously unfavourable, a shrinkage will result which would completely change the situation, if the estimates were less cautiously framed.

Remission of Taxation.

35. The results of the last four financial years have shown the following surpluses estimated and realised :—

1899-1900 (Accounts)	2,774,623
1900-01 Do.	1,670,204
1901-02 Do.	4,950,243
1902-03 (Revised Estimate)	2,738,500

And these surpluses have been obtained notwithstanding the fact that the period under review commenced with a terrible famine, which unfortunately followed previous, though less severe catastrophes of the same nature. They afford the strongest evidence of the recuperative power of the country, and of the efficiency of the measures which have been taken by the Government in years past for its development.

36. Last year at this season, when dealing with this question of surpluses, I stated that although confident of the future, we considered it prudent to see the results of yet another twelve months, before deciding as to the advisability and prudence of the remission of taxation on a large scale. The results of the closing financial year have been such as to confirm our confidence in the future, and it is now our special good fortune to be able to announce that after mature consideration, we feel ourselves justified for the first time since 1882 in deciding on important measures in the direction of remission of taxation.

It is most gratifying to be able to make this announcement, both from the point of view of relief to the tax-payer and from that of the accumulated evidence of the material welfare of the mass of the people.

In view of the present satisfactory situation, it is the opinion of the Government of India that it is neither desirable, nor good financial policy to continue levying taxation at present rates, yielding such large recurring surpluses as have been realised during the last four years. It is true that our expenditure is necessarily increasing with the increasing development of the country, and some of our present sources of revenue do not show much sign of elasticity, but, for the present, our receipts are in excess of our needs, and even should it be necessary some years hence to seek the means of increas-

[illegible] revenue, we hold that we are not justified in [illegible] taxation at its present level during an interval which we trust may be [illegible].

37. The question of the direction in which [illegible] of taxation might be made so as to afford the most direct relief in the most suitable manner to the population at large, has occupied our most anxious attention, and we have finally decided to reduce the Salt Tax in India, exclusive of Burma, from R2-8 per maund to R2, and to exempt from Income Tax all incomes below one thousand rupees per annum.

38. As regards the Salt Tax, in our opinion based on the most exhaustive inquiries, it does not, at its present rate, press hardly on the mass of the people, the actual impost per head being trifling. It is, however, paid in the main by those who can least afford to contribute anything, and we hope that the remission of even a trifling burden may prove a boon to the poorest class of tax-payers. Further, we hope that a reduction in the salt duty combined with the progressive cheapening of the carriage of salt, by the development of communications, will lead to such greater consumption as will not only benefit the health of the people, but will also permit of the greater use of salt with profitable results, for cattle and in various processes of manufacture.

Finally, from the financial point of view, a reduction of the Salt Tax has a very special recommendation, in that it will provide a reserve which can be immediately and rapidly made use of by once more increasing the rate, should such exceptional misfortunes as war or disastrous famine suddenly create an abnormal strain on our resources. At present we have no such reserve as is provided by the conditions of the Income Tax in England, and from the financial point of view, it is of the highest importance that in such exceptional circumstances as I have indicated, and as might possibly arise, we should be in a position, without delay or complications, to add, say, at least one million sterling to our annual revenue.

39. As regards the raising of the limit of exemption from Income Tax, we believe that the tax on incomes under a thousand rupees, is in the main paid by petty traders, by clerks in commercial and Government offices, and by pensioners, who, small as is the present impost, feel it to be a severe burden. We are very glad to relieve a generally highly deserving class of the community of this burden, which weighs particularly heavily on widows and orphans in receipt of small pensions barely sufficing for the necessaries of life. Moreover, we have reason to fear that it is in the lower categories of incomes that hardship is perhaps felt in the matter of inquisitorial proceedings on the part of assessors, who, possibly, sometimes fix assessments at unjustifiably high rates, and we hope by raising the limit of taxation to greatly reduce and simplify the work of assessment. I may add that a specially gratifying feature of the situation is, that although we feel ourselves justified in reducing our revenue returns by a sum approximating £1,393,000, as a result of the remissions of taxation on which we have decided, we are nevertheless able to estimate for receipts from revenue in the coming year, falling short by only £537,100 of the returns, according to our Revised Estimate, for the closing year.

Budget Estimates, 1903-1904.

40. Our estimates of Receipts and Expenditure for the forthcoming financial year result in an anticipated surplus amounting to £948,700, as regards total Imperial revenue and expenditure; but, it will be observed that to meet Provincial expenditure, Provincial balances will be drawn on to the extent of £1,383,500. I should mention, however, that provision has been made in the Budget for reconstituting such Provincial balances as will require assistance, so that the full minimum may be in hand at the close of the coming financial year. Such assistance will be given to the Central Provinces, Punjab, and Bombay. The remaining Provinces will hold balances showing an aggregate excess over minimum fixtures, amounting to £438,600.

Revenue.

41. The principal items of estimated increase in revenue as compared with the Revised Estimate of 1902-1903 are as follows:—

Land Revenue	621,200
Stamps	75,000
Excise	127,500
Railways	306,900
Receipts, Military Department	119,000

42. The above with minor increases result in a total anticipated increase of revenue amounting to £1,291,700.

43. The increase in Land Revenue is principally in Bombay, where £378,200 is due to a return to more normal conditions, whilst it is estimated that an enhancement of £100,400 will occur in Burma, owing mainly to the revision of settlements in Upper Burma. £61,000 is the increase due to Berar.

44. £28,000 of the increase in Stamps is due to the inclusion of Berar accounts, and it is estimated that the returns in Madras will exceed by £18,700 those in the current year.

45. We estimate that a further improvement over the high Excise returns realised in the current year will yield an additional £46,700 in Bengal and the United Provinces, and £33,300 in Burma, whilst £43,300 of the total anticipated increase is due to the inclusion of Berar accounts.

46. The increase of £306,900 in Railway Revenue is mainly attributable to anticipated considerable improvement in coal traffic on the Bengal-Nagpore Railway, and moderate increases are allowed for on the East Indian, the Rajputana-Malwa, and the Burma Railways.

47. The net increase of £119,000 in Army Receipts is the difference between an enhancement of £184,600 expected in the Home estimates, and a reduction of £65,600 in receipts in India.

48. On the other hand, we anticipate the following important decreases:—

Opium	121,500
Salt	1,086,700
Customs	273,400
Other heads (including Assessed Taxes)	113,300
Interest	141,600
Mint	51,400
Irrigation	39,700

The above differences, together with the decrease of £1,200 under "Other Public Works," amount to a total decrease of £1,828,800.

49. The net decrease resulting from increases under some heads and decreases under others, as above noted, is estimated at £537,100.

50. As regards Opium, we have not felt justified in assuming that the relatively high prices obtained during the latter months of the closing financial year will be maintained, and we have for the purpose of our present estimate assumed an average price for the coming year of R1,100 per chest.

51. As regards the heavy falling-off in the anticipated receipts from Salt, we have taken £1,113,300 as the diminution to be anticipated from the remission of duty, and we have added £26,600 which, we hope, may be realised by increased consumption, in part as a result of the lower duty.

52. In our Customs Revenue we allow for a considerable falling-off, a large proportion of which, about £90,000, is due to the anticipation of very small receipts from countervailing duties on sugar. We estimate for a decrease of £50,000 in the duty on silver, as the imports in the current year appear to have been abnormal, and we also anticipate a reduction of about £163,300 in the export duty on rice, as the Burma trade in the current year has been unprecedentedly large.

53. The principal reduction under "Other Heads" is in Income Tax receipts. The raising of the taxable limit will, it is estimated, result in a loss of £240,000, while it is expected that there will be an increase of £15,300 owing to the normal growth of the Revenue, thus reducing the net deficiency to £224,700. This decrease is, however, to a considerable extent compensated by increases in other minor categories of receipts falling under this general head.

54. The decrease under "Interest" receipts is chiefly due to an estimated reduction of £120,700 in the amount to be received in England. The sums available for investment by the Secretary of State will be somewhat smaller than during the closing year, and the rates of interest obtainable are likely to be lower.

55. Under "Mint" receipts we anticipate a decrease in dollar coinage and copper coinage, and consequently in the receipts therefrom.

56. The decrease in Irrigation occurs in the United Provinces and the Punjab, where it is anticipated that collections to be made in the coming kharif season, on account of irrigation, will be smaller than in previous seasons.

EXPENDITURE.

57. Under Expenditure, for the forthcoming year, we anticipate, as compared with the Revised Estimate for 1902-1903, increases of importance under the following heads :—

Direct Demands on the Revenue	647,700
Post Office	90,800
Telegraph	94,400
Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments	607,000
Railway Revenue Account	426,600
Irrigation	149,400
Other Public Works	394,200
Army Services	536,400
Special Defences, 1902	120,000

These increases bring up the total increase of Expenditure to £3,066,500.

58. The heavy increase under Direct Demands on the Revenue is in great part due to the inclusion of Berar expenditure, to the amount of £261,600, and £94,700 is due to increase of Opium expenditure, on the assumption of an average instead of the short crop of last season. The balance is chiefly under Land Revenue, Excise, and Forests. A larger programme for Survey and Settlement is included in Land Revenue expenditure.

59. The increase in Post Office expenditure is in part due to a payment of £20,000 under a new contract for a fast Mail Service in the Persian Gulf, and a sum of £19,300 has been provided for the improvement of the pay of Postmasters.

60. Under the Telegraph Department there is an addition to expenditure on account of a sum estimated at £38,000 for the guarantee payable by Government under the agreement for the reduction of charges on foreign messages. The remainder of the increase is mainly due to increased provision for stores and new telegraph lines.

61. Under 'Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments,' an increase of £78,500 is due to the inclusion of Berar accounts. Other increases are chiefly under Courts, Police, Education and Medical, and whilst, in the closing year, there were considerable lapses under these heads, the present budget makes full provision for all anticipated expenditure.

62. The heavy addition of £426,600 under the Railway Revenue Account is due to increased interest charges on additional capital and to larger working traffic charges on increased mileage. But it must be remembered that there is considerable compensation for this increased expenditure in increased general traffic.

63. The increase of £149,400 under "Irrigation" is accounted for by interest charges, £27,000, on additional capital expenditure, and to new Minor Works, for which £129,500 has been estimated. Further, of the special grant of 25 lakhs made in 1902-1903, £60,000 remained unexpended at the end of the year, whilst an allotment for the full sum has been repeated for the coming year.

64. Of the £394,200 noted as increase under Other Public Works, £266,600 are due to the special grants now being made to Local Governments, and £34,800 are estimated for expenditure under Berar accounts.

65. Army Services expenditure shows an increase of £536,400, of which £123,700 is due to the transfer of the Hyderabad Contingent expenses to this account. The balance is chiefly due to the non-repetition of savings secured during the closing year on account of the employment of troops on Imperial services.

66. As a set-off against the above increases of expenditure, we estimate for decreased payments under the head of "Interest" of £132,900, and £246,400 under Miscellaneous Civil Charges ; these, together with an estimated decrease of £6,700 under Mint, give a total decrease of £386,000.

67. The net result as regards expenditure is an estimated total increase of £2,692,300.

Summary of Budget Results.

68. We may now consider the results of the Budget I have presented, as regards capital accounts, and requirements during the coming year.

69. Our estimate of Revenue, and Expenditure chargeable against revenue, closes with a surplus of £948,700. This surplus we carry forward to the second part of our statement dealing with Capital and Debt transactions, and including Deposits, Remittances and Advances. Our total estimate for Capital expenditure (not chargeable to revenue) on Railways and Irrigation amounts to £8,101,900, of which sum, £5,334,700 is for State Railways, £2,100,500 for the account of Railway Companies, and £666,700 for Irrigation Major Works. In addition to the above, we have to find £690,000 for discharging Permanent Debt, and £1,500,000 for discharging Temporary Debt. Thus the gross total of our Capital requirements amounts to £10,291,900.

70. To meet these requirements we have in addition to the surplus of £948,700, and the net receipt of £192,600 under Deposits, Advances, and Remittances, a sum of £3,133,000 to be raised by Railway Companies. We further propose to increase our Permanent Debt by £3,333,300 including a loan of 2 crores to be raised in India, and we shall also procure £595,400 by addition to the Unfunded Debt.

These sums amount in the aggregate to £8,203,000 and the balance required to meet the total Capital Expenditure of £10,291,900 will be found by a reduction of our closing balances in India and in England by £2,088,900.

The final result will be a closing balance on March 31st, 1904, in India, of £11,496,301, and in England £3,934,637.

71. As regards the proposed rupee loan, I should say that it is possible that we may not require to raise the full amount noted, but the estimates of receipts have been calculated rather more liberally than has latterly been usual, and in making an announcement, we consider that it is well to be on the safe side.

72. The present intention of the Secretary of State is to draw bills amounting to £17,000,000. This figure is omitted from both sides of the account above summarised.

General Financial Position on the basis of commercial value of Assets and Liabilities.

73. The credit of a country largely depends on the outstanding amount of its public debt. The public debt of India on March 31, 1902, including temporary and unfunded debt, liabilities on account of Post Office Savings Banks, Provident Funds and minor items, was £222,474,000.

74. This is relatively a small sum, being only the equivalent of about three years' revenues, but the figure in itself may seem somewhat large to those who have not realised the great value of the assets held, against this debt, by the Government of India. It seems to me that it would be well to explain the nature and value of these assets, and to submit a statement of our financial position from the purely commercial point of view.

75. From the purely accounts point of view, a statement of our position is annually included in the accounts published by the Secretary of State, and this statement whilst showing correctly, as regards book-accounting, the total amount expended on productive public works, such as railways and canals, does not allow credit for their actual market value. As a purely commercial calculation, I have arbitrarily, but I think fairly, capitalised the value of State railways and canals at 25 years' purchase of net annual average revenue, for the three years ending March 31, 1902, and such capitalised value amounts to £264,065,000. In addition to this asset, we held, at that date, cash balances in England and India, and balances in mints, small coin depôts, etc., amounting to £20,723,000, as also £3,454,000 in the Gold Reserve Fund, whilst a sum of £12,754,000 was due to Government on account of advances to Native States, Corporations, and other public bodies, including £2,266,000 due by cultivators for takavi loans. These sums brought up the total commercial value of our assets on March 31, 1902, to £300,996,000.

76. Against these commercial assets we must set off the amount of the Public Debt, already noted as £222,474,000, and the capitalised amount of our liabilities on account of the railways, and some minor obligations. The former, including the capital value of terminable annuities created for the purchase of the four old Guaranteed Companies, the capital raised through Companies working purchased railways, and the capitalised amount at 25 years' purchase of guaranteed interest payable to the new Guaranteed Companies, amounted to £94,787,000, whilst minor obligations amounted to £5,547,000, thus bringing up our total commercial indebtedness to £322,808,000.

77. According to this calculation the balance of our commercial indebtedness on March 31, 1902, amounted to £21,812,000.

78. We should, I think, however, take into account our assets and liabilities in connection with the two remaining old Guaranteed Companies' railways, the Bombay-Baroda, and the Madras. The capital value of these assets at 25 years' purchase of net annual average share of revenue payable to Government for the three years ending March 31, 1902, was £20,842,000. The liability in connection with the same cannot be stated definitely, since it will, in the end, depend on the price at which the railways may eventually be purchased by Government; for the purpose of my commercial calculation, I have, however, assumed the liability as equivalent to 25 years' purchase of the average annual payments of interest during the three years ending March 31, 1902, and this amounts to £24,824,000.

79. Taking, then, the two remaining old Guaranteed Companies' railways into account, on the basis I have assumed, I must add £3,982,000 to our liabilities, and admitting this calculation, we still only show a total liability, for excess of commercial liabilities over assets, of £25,794,000.

80. I think it may be fairly held that the position is even better than I have shown by the calculation of commercial values, on an arbitrary basis, and it must be remembered that in our railways and canals we have a steadily improving property.

81. There are few States in Europe, or elsewhere, which can boast of such a thoroughly sound financial position.

Coinage, Currency and Exchange.

82. During the past year our coinage operations, as regards rupees, have been limited to recoining rupees of the 1840 issue, and coining on account of Native States. The amount thus coined on Government account up to the end of February was R7,09,44,122, and for Native States R2,98,86,000. It must be remembered that the coinage undertaken on Government account added nothing to our circulating currency.

83. Since the beginning of the current calendar year there have been very heavy demands for money, in great part in connection with the disposal of the bumper rice crop in Burma and the large cotton crop in Bombay and Central India. These demands have been largely met by the increased sale of Council Drafts, which will reach, according to our Revised Estimate, the total of £18,261,000, comparing as follows with those of preceding years:—

Year.	Amount. £
1901-1902	18,539,071
1900-1901	13,300,277
1899-1900	19,067,022
1898-99	18,692,377
1897-98	9,506,077

But this large sale of Council Bills has by no means sufficed to meet the demand on foreign account for rupees in India, and very considerable sums in gold, amounting to approximately 4½ millions sterling, have been shipped to India, chiefly from Australia, up to the end of February, besides a total nett importation of silver bullion, up to the same date, approximating 4 millions sterling. Of the silver importation, however, a large amount was for dollar coinage and for consumption in the country, but a certain proportion was apparently imported by speculators for a rise in silver, as a profitable method of remittance.

84. Our currency balances have naturally been strongly affected by the bullion importations and demands for rupees, and our reserve of silver coin fell from R15,55,66,000 on November 30 to R9,01,73,000 on February 22, whilst the amount of gold held increased during the same period from £5,801,389 to £8,464,599. The stocks of both silver and gold have, however, since increased, the former to R9,90,90,000 and the latter to £9,073,853 on 7th March. In view of the large importations of gold bullion and the decreasing stock of silver coin, we decided at the end of February to purchase £300,000 of silver in London, so as to be fully prepared for the coinage of rupees should circumstances require it and our then existing stock of silver prove insufficient. At the time that we made the purchase, besides our stock of rupees in the Currency Reserve, we held in the two mints approximately R1,15,00,000 in withdrawn 1840 rupees, and silver bullion and bars obtained from the melting of such withdrawals. Our purchase was, therefore, simply a precautionary measure, and I allude to the fact to show that we are not unmindful of our responsibilities in the matter of providing currency.

85. During the year, our Gold Reserve Fund has increased from £3,454,246 to £3,810,730, and substantially the whole of the latter amount is now invested in Consols. The Fund is increasing slowly but satisfactorily.

86. Our exchange operations, as indicated by the rates obtained for Council Drafts, have been very favourable during the closing year. The average rate, to date, for the rupee, has been 16·002*d.* as compared with the rates noted below, for the four preceding years:—

1898-1899.	1899-1900.	1900-1901.	1901-1902
d.	d.	d.	d.

87. I may point out that our position, as regards currency and exchange, is now somewhat as follows:

We have virtually relegated our rupee currency to the position of a token currency, and we are now practically in the position of bankers who have issued a certain amount of fiduciary currency (whether paper or metal is immaterial), and to maintain the value of this fiduciary currency, we are bound to be in a position to exchange it for gold when presented for conversion to meet legitimate trade requirements. As I have already mentioned, we hold in the Gold Reserve Fund a sum of £3,810,730, and in the Currency Reserve we have about £9,073,853 also in gold. The gold in the Currency Reserve flows freely in and out according to circumstances and monetary conditions, but the demand for the metal is generally small. Gold coins, though demanded by bankers, seemingly chiefly for remittance purposes, are apparently but rarely used in local circulation, and private demands for export are limited by the action of Government in curtailing the sale of Council Bills whenever exchange approaches export point, gold being remitted, when necessary, to the Secretary of State in substitution for sales of Council Bills. The position of gold in the Indian Currency Reserve may, I think, be compared with that of gold in the Bank of England, which is held at the free disposition of the public, the difference being that the demands in India are comparatively small for the reasons I have given. The gold in the Gold Reserve Fund is held under conditions more nearly resembling those under which gold is held by the Bank of France. It will only be when the temporary curtailment of Council Bills is found insufficient to check a fall in exchange, and when the gold in the Currency Reserve is exhausted, i.e., when the balance of indebtedness is seriously adverse to India to an extent, that we need hardly anticipate, that any serious demand can arise on the Gold Reserve Fund.

There are both advantages and disadvantages in having a silver instead of a paper fiduciary currency. The silver always has an intrinsic value of high proportion to the nominal value of the circulating medium, but that value is fluctuating and has an unfortunate present tendency to depreciate. A note has no intrinsic value, and there can therefore be no question of fluctuation in its value.

Circulation of Currency Notes.

88. During the past year the circulation of currency notes has considerably increased. I submit the two following statements, (1) showing the gross circulation of paper currency notes in recent years, and (2) the circulation excluding the amounts held at the Government Reserve Treasuries and by the Presidency Banks at their Head Offices:—

(In lakhs of rupees.)

	1899-1900.	1900-1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903 (11 months only).
STATEMENT I.
Average	27,96	28,88	30,03	33,56
Maximum	29,27	30,78	31,86	35,58
Minimum . .	26,26	27,90	27,68	31,25
STATEMENT II.
Average	23,09	23,86	23,16	25,62
Maximum	24,41	25,02	24,40	27,35
Minimum	21,94	22,85	22,39	23,93

It will be observed that the average circulation in statement (2) is considerably above that of the preceding year.

89. Last year I mentioned that we had under consideration the finding of means to popularise the circulation of notes. After a very careful consideration of the question, and consultation with some of the best authorities in India, we decided to make an experiment in the direction of creating a universal five-rupee note, payable at all Treasuries throughout India except Burma. The measures in connection with this decision have been legalised by an Act passed on March 13th of this year, but it will be some time before notes are issued to the public, as we are still engaged in considering the best form of note as regards the class of paper to be used to secure durability. We shall take special measures with the object of securing that these universal five-rupee notes be cashed without difficulty at all local Treasuries, and we hope in course of time to render them as popular throughout India as the present five-rupee notes already are in the Bombay Presidency. Should our experiment in the matter of a universal five-rupee note succeed, we shall in due time consider the advisability of issuing also a universal ten-rupee note. I must point out that the great difficulty in connection with the creation of such universally payable notes lies in the danger that they may be used for remittance purposes, but against this we shall take certain precautions.

Presidency Banks.

90. At the beginning of the winter season we held an informal conference which was attended by the Managers of the three Presidency Banks and some of our best official experts, and as a result of the discussions, we are now about to make proposals to the Secretary of State for some important modifications in existing arrangements with the Presidency Banks. I regret being unable to announce the decisions to-day, but I feel confident that they will be such as will meet with general approval, and I trust that in the end they will prove advantageous to the Presidency Banks, although on some points we have appealed to their well-known public spirit to make some possibly temporary sacrifices in the interests of the general commercial community.

91. I submit the following statement of Government balances held by the Presidency Banks :—

Government Balances with the Presidency Banks.

(In thousands of rupees.)

Month.	1898.	1899.	1900.	1901.	1902.	1903.
January	2,78,41	2,73,84	2,48,75	2,64,54	2,85,89	3,07,63
February	2,74,04	2,72,31	2,56,23	2,86,73	2,97,16	3,32,02
March	3,19,63	3,38,07	2,79,18	3,15,79	3,11,24
December	2,68,65	2,38,75	2,48,90	2,82,02	3,05,84

I would ask those who may be inclined to consider that the Banks might receive further assistance from Government in this direction, to remember that according to our arrangements with the Banks the amounts which Government are under obligation to hold on deposit with them are, respectively—

	Lakhs.
Calcutta	35
Bombay	20
Madras	18
TOTAL	73

It will be observed that these obligatory sums have been very largely exceeded. Further, we have continued to show our readiness to assist the Banks in meeting demands for money in the busy season, and we are glad to note that, notwithstanding the recent great demand for money, the Presidency Banks' rate has not exceeded 8 per cent.

Foreign Tariffs.

92. Although our own Customs tariff is, with the exception of the countervailing sugar duties, on a simple basis, we do not escape a good deal of trouble and much correspondence in connection with changes in the tariffs of foreign countries likely to affect Indian trade. It is self-evident that our own tariff being very low, we can have little to offer to any foreign State to induce them to treat us with special favour in the matter of tariffs, and this position will continue unless we should be forced to accept a serious change of policy and to adopt an undesirably complicated tariff, raising and varying our duty rates to meet the kaleidoscopic changes in the tariffs of others.

93. Our chief troubles during the past year have been due to changes in the French and Persian tariffs, and to changes in the system of bounties in beet sugar-producing countries, whilst now we are inquiring about the reported change in the Japanese tariff, affecting indigo, and into the possible effect on our trade of the new arrangements in China.

94. As regards the French tariff, after prolonged negotiations in Europe an arrangement has been made, under which India still continues to enjoy the minimum tariff, to the great advantage of our coffee planters. With Persia we unfortunately had no proper commercial treaty, and we were consequently in a difficult position to negotiate. The tariff recently introduced is still very high as regards our interests, but both the Government of India and the British Foreign Office have been giving unceasing attention to the question. Some important modifications on the original proposals were secured, and further steps are being taken for the protection of our trade interests.

Countervailing Duties on Sugar.

95. It was agreed at the Brussels Conference to restrict by international agreement the protective duties that may be imposed in the sugar-producing countries, and to abolish all kinds of bounties on the production or export of sugar. A convention was drawn up giving effect to this decision, and requiring the contracting Powers either to impose countervailing duties on the sugar imported from countries which continue to grant bounties, directly or indirectly, or to prohibit altogether the importation of sugar from such countries.

96. The Government of India were represented at the Conference, but did not become a party to the Convention, preferring to retain for the present complete liberty of action.

97. At the Conference it was decided that the bounty system should be allowed to continue unchecked until the 1st of September 1903, and this decision made it necessary for us to devise intermediate measures to protect the Indian producer from the competition of bounty-fed cheap beet sugar, the price of which has been artificially lowered by the continental trade combinations. An Act was accordingly passed on the 6th of June 1902 empowering the Governor General in Council to impose a special duty on the sugar imported from any country in which the rate of taxation on foreign sugar exceeds the Excise duty on home-grown sugar by more than a fixed maximum of 6 francs per 100 kilos of refined sugar, and 5½ francs per 100 kilos of raw sugar. The parties to the Brussels Conference considered that a protective duty of this amount would not allow a sufficient margin for the operations of cartels or combinations of sugar refiners, and they held that when the protective duty exceeded the above rates, a special duty of half such excess would be sufficient to neutralise the depression in prices that might be created by the cartels. This formula appeared to be suitable to the conditions prevailing in Germany and Austria-Hungary, where the cartel system has been elaborated, and the rate of duty, worked out on the above principle, corresponded roughly with the difference, as calculated by experts, between the export price of sugar and the average cost of production in those countries. The Government of India therefore adopted this formula as a provisional measure, and on the 6th of June 1902, special duties were imposed under the new Act, on sugar imported from Germany and Austria-Hungary. The provisions of the Act were subsequently extended to sugar imported from France, Denmark, Russia, and the Argentine Republic. Measures have also been taken to ascertain the countries of origin of all sugar imported into India, in order to prevent the evasion of the countervailing duties by importation by indirect routes.

98. The practical effect of the new duties has been to close, temporarily, the Indian market to the direct importation of German and Austro-Hungarian sugar, and to encourage imports from such beet-growing countries as Holland and Belgium, which do not maintain high protective duties. The imports of cane sugar from Hongkong, Java, and the Straits Settlements have also been largely increased.

99. It has been announced in the public telegrams that all the Powers who joined the Brussels Convention have now formally ratified their acceptances, and it may be presumed that the provisions of the Convention will be put into force on the 1st of September 1903. On that date, the parties to the Convention are bound to abolish all sugar bounties, and should they be completely abolished, the position might become such as to justify the abolition of all countervailing duties in India. On the same date, the Act passed in June last will, unless specially extended, cease to be in force. It appears, however, probable that in September next large stocks of bounty-fed sugar will be in hand in the beet-growing countries, and it may possibly prove necessary to consider the necessity of further temporary special measures, until these stocks have been exhausted and normal conditions restored.

100. No decision has yet been arrived at with regard to the adherence of India to the Brussels Convention, but we are at liberty under the terms of the Agreement to accept it, should it hereafter appear desirable.

101. I append a statement of the imports of sea-borne sugar, and also of the sums realised from the countervailing duties.

Customs Administration.

102. The Government of India have received representations from commercial bodies on the questions of the desirability of the care of commercial interests being made a particular function of some Government Department, and also on that of reform in our Customs administration, particularly with regard to the simplification of procedure and continuity of service in the Customs Department. These are questions on which, in principle, we fully sympathise with the ideas of the commercial community, and that such is the case is evidenced by the fact that Government had already moved in both matters before there was any special indication of public interest therein. It is some two years since the question was mooted of the desirability of having a section specially charged with the consideration of commercial interests in the Finance and Commerce Department. During that period, opinions on the question have been received and various suggestions considered; finally, a definite scheme has been formulated which is now under the consideration of the Secretary of State. Until we learn what the decision may be, it would not be proper for me to enter into the details of our proposals, but I may say that there is not the least fear of the proposed commercial section becoming a bureau of dry statistical information with the addition of lists of the addresses of traders. Our idea is to create an active living institution in which all questions relating to trade and industry will be considered and primarily dealt with, whilst information will be collected which we trust will prove equally useful to Government and to business men. Our present Statistical Department will be included in the new section, with a distinct head, subordinate to the Director General of the section, which will include two distinct divisions, Commercial and Statistical.

103. With regard to Customs administration, I may say that this matter has occupied my attention for a long time, and it is more than a year since Government referred to a departmental committee certain questions connected with our Custom House system, and we subsequently requested another committee, on which we had the valuable assistance of commercial representatives, to formulate proposals for the improvement and simplification of Customs procedure. Something has already been done in this direction, and I believe that the commercial community are fully sensible of the beneficial results. The larger reforms which have been suggested will also receive the most careful consideration, but it must be remembered that the Customs administration being under the Local Governments we cannot move as quickly as might possibly otherwise be expected.

Army Services.

104. We are still continuing the work of providing for increased efficiency of the army, and more particularly by expenditure in the various Departments connected with Supply, Transport, Armament and Mobilisation. The following figures show the net Military expenditure during the last five years :—

1899-1900	14,165,743
1900-1901	14,265,525
1901-1902	14,786,342
1902-1903 (Revised Estimate)	16,234,900
1903-1904 (Budget Estimate)	16,652,300

Included in the sums placed at the disposal of the Military Department are large amounts for Ordnance Factories. We have so far sanctioned the following amounts on this account and the sub-joined statement shows the sums allotted and spent, to date, on different establishments :—

Statement showing the probable expenditure to end of 1902-1903 on the various Government manufacturing establishments, and the grants allotted for 1903-1904.

Name of Factory.	Total amount of estimate (Military and Military Works).	Total probable expenditure to 31st March 1903 (Military and Military Works).	Total grants allotted for 1903-1904 (Military and Military Works).
Cordite Factory, Wellington	196,298	180,694	10,000
Rifle Factory, Ishapore	250,333	60,977	142,000
Gun Carriage Factory, Jubbulpore	177,938	74,619	54,250
Ishapur Rolling Mills	167,829	2,000	84,035
Gun Factory, Cossipore	10,680	Nil.	7,000
Total	803,078	318,290	297,285

These are large grants, but I would again emphasise the fact that not only will the expenditure have valuable results from a military point of view, but it will prove of direct benefit to the people of India by lessening the cost of war material; providing well-paid employment for labourers and artisans; assisting the education of the people in mechanical trades; and reducing the drain on our resources for payment abroad.

105. We anticipate that manufacturing will commence in the Cordite Factory about the end of 1903; in the Ishapur Rifle Factory about the end of 1904, and in the Gun Carriage Factory, Jubbulpore, the Rolling Mills, Ishapur, and the Gun Factory at Cossipore in the spring of 1905.

Public Works.

106. The following figures show the comparative Capital expenditure on Railways for five years :—

1899-1900	5,978,520
1900-1901	5,317,768
1901-1902	5,915,199
1902-1903 (Revised)	6,897,200
1903-1904 (Estimate)
Capital expenditure on open lines	3,350,700
Capital expenditure on lines under construction .	2,271,600
Capital expenditure on new lines recently commenced	1,183,800
Capital expenditure on new lines to be commenced next cold weather	527,200
TOTAL FOR 1903-1904	7,333,300

107. On April 1st, 1902, the total length of railways was 25,378 miles, classified as follows :—

5'-6" gauge	14,057
Metre gauge	10,553
Special 2'-6" and 2'-0" gauges	768
TOTAL .	25,378

To this mileage has been added during the current year—

	Miles.
5'-6" gauge	272
Metre gauge	697
Special narrow gauges	127

bringing up the total addition to open lines to 1,096 miles, and we anticipate adding approximately another 654 miles during the coming financial year.

These are important additions to our railway communications, and experience has shown their great value in mitigating the effects of famine, and in opening up new districts, and providing profitable markets for the agricultural population.

Provincial Settlements.

108. As regards the new settlements with Provincial Governments, I had expected to be able to make some definite announcement at this season, but the matter is one of such great importance and the questions involved are so complicated that it was only in the late autumn that we were prepared to formulate definite proposals to the Secretary of State, and these are still under his consideration.

Mutual Credit and Agricultural Banks.

109. Again, I must express my regret at being unable to announce any definite decision. The question is clearly one of the highest importance, and anxious as we are to proceed, every care must be taken to avoid as far as possible, mistakes at the outset. The opinions of Local Governments and authorities to whom the report of the Conference on this question was referred have been received, but they have not been sufficiently long before us to enable us to formulate our definite proposals to the Secretary of State.

Remission of Land Revenue and Special Grants-in-Aid.

110. I mentioned in my Statement last year that we had decided to remit £1,321,500 of arrears of land assessment in distressed districts. This has been done, and we continue the same policy of assistance to any sections of the agricultural population, which, as the result of famine, may be in need thereof, and we have again sanctioned a special grant of 25 lakhs for minor irrigation works. I may mention that during the closing financial year it was only found possible to profitably spend 16 lakhs out of the 25 lakhs sanctioned. I may here remind those who advise us to "irrigate India," as a panacea for all troubles from drought and famine, that even in India water will not flow up hill, and that irrigation schemes require much time for careful preparation, and more time and the greatest care for profitable execution.

111. The special grants-in-aid made last year to Provincial Governments for expenditure on Education, Public Works, Medical requirements and provincial administrative purposes, were not fully expended. From one point of view it is a matter of regret that it was not found possible to expend the whole sum which was placed at the disposal of the Provinces, but, on the other hand, the fact that the money was not all spent is a satisfactory proof of the care exercised in its expenditure. This year we have decided to distribute among the various Provinces, excluding Burma, a special grant of 40 lakhs, to be devoted to Public Works, such as Jails, Police Quarters, Court Houses, Provincial Roads, etc., and we believe that the money can be spent with real advantage. We have not made any special grant to Burma on this head, as the Government of that Province has a very large balance, accumulated during the period of the last settlement, and which is still at its disposal for Public Works.

Famine.

112. We may congratulate ourselves upon the favourable results of last year's monsoon, a prolonged break in which at one time threatened disaster. But the rainfall was resumed in time, and the result was to add to the happiness and prosperity of the people, and was immediately reflected in our revenue collections.

The rice crop in the Central Provinces constituted an unfortunate exception. It very generally failed; and the failure, coming as it did upon the top of successive years of trial, has caused considerable distress. The distress is, fortunately, not very widespread; but already some 36,000 persons are in receipt of relief. In some districts of Upper Burma also, insufficient rainfall has resulted in a short yield of rice.

The winter rains in the north-western portion of India have again been scanty, and the spring crops in unirrigated areas, especially in the Punjab, have suffered in consequence. But it is not anticipated that anything in the shape of serious distress will result. With these exceptions, the agricultural character of the past year may be described as generally favourable.

113. Our direct famine expenditure during the closing financial year is estimated at £313,500. In connection with famine questions I may mention that the total outstanding for loans granted to Native States, chiefly for famine purposes, is now about 211 lakhs; in addition to this sum, loans have been raised by Native States in Bombay, in the open market, under Government guarantee, to the amount of about 33 lakhs.

As announced at the Durbar at Delhi, we have remitted three years' interest on the loans granted or guaranteed by Government, and we have since decided that to assist very small States who had raised petty loans in the open market, the outstanding balance of principal up to R2,000 shall be paid off by Government during the current year, and be replaced by Government loans at 4 per cent. Our estimate of the amount thus to be paid is R1,14,000. I trust that this latter arrangement will prove a substantial assistance to the very small States, by whom the burden of interest and repayment of principal on even the most petty loans, must be severely felt.

Economic Progress.

114. I think it may be well that I should endeavour once more briefly to review the economic situation, and to deduce, from the consideration of the question, such conclusions as may be possible regarding the prosperity of the people taken as a whole. I say advisedly 'taken as a whole,' because those who have been inclined to criticise previous statements of opinion on this subject have founded their arguments as to the alleged impoverishment of the people, on facts and circumstances connected solely with that relatively small part of the total population which has been so severely tried by famine and plague in recent years.

115. As a general indication of increasing wealth of the tax-payers, I think that a very fairly correct estimate of the position is to be obtained by noting the increase in revenue returns under heads the returns from which are manifestly dependent on their spending power. Such heads are Salt, Excise, Customs, Post Office, and in a lesser degree Stamps, and I give the following figures showing progress in revenue under those heads during the last three years :—

	Accounts, 1899-1900.	Accounts, 1900-1901.	Accounts, 1901-1902.	Revised Estimate, 1902-1903.
	£	£	£	£
Salt	5,850,463	5,967,034	5,939,310	6,040,000
Stamps	3,265,476	3,342,948	3,446,406	3,471,900
Excise	3,859,942	3,937,202	4,076,681	4,377,600
Customs (excluding countervailing duties and silver)	2,914 857	3,131,223	3,358,870	3,509,700
Post Office	1,308,315	1,357,156	1,383,709	1,435,000
TOTAL	17,199,053	17,735,563	18,204,976	18,834,200

116. I have purposely omitted Land Revenue from this table, since returns from this source are influenced in the direction of increase by revisions of settlement, and by the bringing under settlement of newly irrigated and cultivated lands, and in the direction of decrease by the large remissions which have been made to facilitate recuperation in specially afflicted areas. The returns from the Post Office have, it is true, been influenced by certain changes in rates charged, but as these have all been in the nature of concessions and reductions, we can as regards the question under consideration accept the results with confidence.

117. The inevitable deduction from the figures tabulated must be that the material prosperity of the people as a whole is making good progress.

118. In further confirmation of this I may cite the figures showing the growth of deposits in the Post Office Savings Banks—

	Accounts, 1899-1900.	Accounts, 1900-1901.	Accounts, 1901-1902.	Revised Estimate, 1902-1903.
Post Office Savings Banks (net receipts)	145,628	264,540	425,911	430,400

119. As I have previously stated, the prosperity of the agricultural population must, from the financial as well as from other points of view, be the deepest concern of the Government of India, and there is no hesitation in providing funds for agricultural purposes wherever we see the likelihood of profitable employment. Matters of detail connected with this question are within the province of my Honourable Colleague in charge of the Revenue and Agricultural Department, but I think I may be allowed to mention that the activity and labours of the competent gentleman who was named Inspector General of Agriculture, encourage great hopes of progress, and that in some parts of the country a very satisfactory beginning has been made towards instructing the ryots in such questions as introduction of crops grown in one district to another in which they seem likely to succeed; improved methods of cultivation; advantage of chopping up fodder crops; ensilage; value of propagation of good qualities of seed; value of certain easily procured manures; use of implements of the simplest kinds; and the treatment of crop diseases.

In the Central Provinces under the sympathetic supervision of the Commissioner of Settlements, special progress has been made, and 14 demonstration farms working on the lines indicated, of from 25 to 100 acres each were taken up last year. Further, in these Provinces the publication of a monthly magazine has been undertaken, written in simple language, in the local vernacular, and dealing with local agricultural questions. There are already over a thousand subscribers to this magazine and free distribution is made to officials. The success which has attended this good beginning augurs favourably for the future.

120. I am glad to say that there has been some recovery during the past year from the recent severe depression in the tea industry. Prices have improved somewhat, that for fair Souchong having risen from 4 annas 3 pies per lb at the end of February 1902 to 4 annas 9 pies per lb at the close of the calendar year, and from 4 annas for common Pekoe to 4 annas and 9 pies per lb. Progress has been made in pushing sales in Persia and Russia, and a new departure has taken place during the past year in the manufacture of green tea in India. The exports from Calcutta between April 1st and January 31st have increased from lbs. 163,339,300 in 1901-1902 to lbs. 164,161,000 in the corresponding period, 1902-1903.

121. I cannot say that there are up till now as satisfactory signs of revival in the indigo industry, as I am able to note with regard to tea. Still there is distinct evidence that the views which I ventured to express on this question in my previous Financial Statements have not been without reasonable grounds. I know that very many of those keenly interested in the Indian indigo industry believed that I was unreasonably optimistic, and capitalist friends in Europe, interested in the manufacture of synthetic indigo, pitied my ignorance in saying that they had not yet heard the last of the natural product.

Now, what are the facts on which we may base an opinion? First, owing to a succession of unfavourable seasons, we have had a reduction in the outturn of indigo crops, from over one million maunds to some 85,000 maunds, then to 45,000 maunds, and such a failure in crops would by itself have spelt ruin to any but an industry possessed of much natural vitality. And yet the indigo industry is by no means dead, and during the recently closed auction season, prices advanced by fully four pence per pound—a very considerable percentage,—whilst natural indigo continues, I am informed, to fetch in certain markets some 30 per cent more than the artificial product.

But, the most important point, to my mind, in connection with this question of competition between the natural and artificial products, is that the planters appear to have realised the necessity of a reform in agricultural methods, and are with good results adopting a system of rotation of crops, whereby indigo becomes something akin to those bye-products for which any price obtainable is a profit. I do not anticipate any return to the bye-gone days of extraordinary prosperity in indigo, but I do not believe that we need contemplate anything like a complete failure of the industry.

122. In this connection we must feel keen interest in the present efforts to create a sugar industry on a scientific basis in Behar, since indigo 'seeth' is considered to be the cheapest and most reliable manure for sugarcane crops. It is reported that satisfactory progress is being made with the production of sugar, and I am glad to say that considerable attention is also being paid to the cultivation of rhea and tobacco, for the manuring of which crops the indigo 'seeth' is equally valuable.

123. The rapidly increasing prosperity of the coal business has received a check, but I do not think that there is any reason for discouragement. We have recently had the opportunity of learning the opinion of two very competent experts on the value of our coal-fields, and they were emphatic in their appreciation of the wealth they represent. They gave, however, some words of warning as to the desirability of economical working of the coal seams, without due attention to which profitable working might in their opinion come to an end prematurely.

The quality of the Bengal coal was highly praised by these experts, and I would venture to suggest to coal-owners that to maintain the reputation of the coal and command full prices, it is very important that only the best qualities should be shipped. Attention to this question is in the interests of all concerned in the trade, for should careless owners send out coal of inferior quality, there would be a risk of a general reduction in price which would seriously prejudice the business of those who continued to work their coal well, and shipped only the best quality.

I give the following figures of exports of Bengal coal during the last three calendar years:—

Year.	Foreign Ports.	Indian Coast Ports.	Grand Total.
	Tons.	Tons.	Tons.
1900 . . .	518,551	1,216,000	1,734,551
1901 . .	575,937	1,432,350	2,008,287
1902 . .	427,786	1,287,770	1,715,556

Bunker Coal was supplied to Steamers at Calcutta, in 1900, 615,504 tons; 1901, 661,840 tons; 1902, 697,007 tons.

124. As regards investment in industrial enterprises in India, I should mention that our statistical returns show an increase of investment of £875,000 for the calendar year 1900, and the total paid up capital at the end of that year as amounting to £25,990,000. These returns are, I fear, not fully complete, as we sometimes have considerable difficulty in obtaining the required information. It would be a great advantage if such information were more freely given.

125. I am glad to be able to note once more that the jute industry is in a flourishing condition, and I understand that good profits have been made by those engaged in that business. There are, however, reports that the quality of the jute fibre is deteriorating, and this appears to me to be a question requiring the close attention and advice of agricultural experts, assisted by agricultural chemists. I hope that this question may be taken up. Prices have ruled fairly firm, this season, and exports have been fairly large.

126. We have had an excellent cotton crop which is selling at fair prices, and we have further been favoured with a bumper rice crop in Burma, which, besides adding to the prosperity of that Province, has resulted in a material total increase of revenue, amounting, as compared with last year, to approximately R27,73,000 from the export duty on rice.

127. In conclusion, I would draw attention to a very specially satisfactory feature in the general situation, namely, the steady growth of our Export trade. The following are the comparative values of exports (exclusive of treasure and Government stores) in the eleven months from April 1st to February 28th, in the last three years :—

1900-1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903.
64,865,050	75,051,924	75,969,551

The corresponding figures for the Import trade are—

1900-1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903.
45,696,640	50,285,455	47,164,115

The result, including Government stores, but excluding treasure, has been an excess of values of Exports over Imports for the three eleven-month periods, as follows :—

1900-1901.	1901-1902.	1902-1903.
16,641,827	20,828,175	24,907,365

I may add for information that the net imports of treasure during the corresponding three years amount to a total of £19,307,957, whilst Rupee Government Securities have been bought abroad and transferred to India for a total of £5,561,333.

E. FG. LAW.

March 18, 1903.

PART II.

BEING A MEMORANDUM BY THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY EXAMINING THE DETAILS OF THE ACCOUNTS AND ESTIMATES.

Section I.—The Accounts of 1901-1902.

1901-1902. General Result of Accounts.

128. The Accounts of the year show a surplus £4,950,243, being £277,343 more than the surplus of £4,672,900 anticipated in the Revised Estimates framed in March last.

129. The variations between the figures finally entering into the Accounts and those taken in the Budget and Revised Estimates of the year are fully explained in the Appropriation Report published in the Gazette of India of the 7th instant.

1901-1902. Statement of the gross figures.

130. The following is a general comparison of the Revised Estimates with the Accounts of the year:—

	Revised.	Accounts.	Accounts, better.	Accounts, worse.

India	76,057,100	75,853,317	...	203,783

SURPLUS	4,672,900	4,950,243	277,343	...

1901-1902. General Remarks.

131. Both Revenue and Expenditure in India were worse than the amounts taken in the Revised Estimate, but this was more than counterbalanced by a reduction of Expenditure and a small improvement of Revenue in England, the net result of the two being the increase of the surplus stated above. Of the total deterioration in India, £202,410 occurred in the Imperial section of the Accounts, and £144,690 in the Provincial and Local section. The latter does not affect the surplus of the year.

1901-1902. Revenue in India.

132. The deficiency of £203,783 in the revenue in India was the net result of a number of variations, the more important of which were a decrease of £181,882 in the Land Revenue collections chiefly in the Punjab, Madras, Bombay, and the United Provinces; a decrease of £57,390 in Salt Revenue chiefly in the receipts from Sambhar Lake salt and the imports of salt in Calcutta, which were affected by rumours of a reduction in the rate of duty; a decrease of £48,294 in the Stamp revenue which was general in almost all the Provinces and was probably due to sufficient allowance not having been made for the closing of all Government treasuries during the last four days of the year, on account of the Easter holidays; a decrease of £34,545 in Forest revenue chiefly in Burma; and a decrease of £37,722 in the receipts from Major Irrigation Works chiefly in the Punjab. The earnings of Railways, on the other hand, exceeded the Revised Estimate by £49,985, the greater part of the improvement being contributed by the Great Indian Peninsula and the Bengal-Nagpur Railways. The Army receipts also exceeded the Revised Estimate by £72,024, the receipts from the sale of malt liquor and the supply of stores to South Africa and the China Expeditionary Force having been under-estimated. Receipts from Post Office and Telegraphs exceeded the Revised Estimate by £30,233.

1901-1902. Expenditure in India.

133. The more important items which contributed to the increase in the expenditure in India were an excess of £62,934 in the working expenses of State Railways following an increase in the earnings; an excess of £66,971 in the expenditure on Military Works, and of £78,975 in that on Civil Works, both of which were under-estimated; and an excess of £65,172 in the Army expenditure which occurred almost entirely in the charges for Supply and Transport.

1901-1902. Expenditure in England.

134. The saving in the expenditure in England occurred chiefly under Army and amounted to £430,641, and was due to smaller payments to the War Office in respect of the British troops serving in India. Owing to the absence of troops in South Africa, smaller advances were made for the year 1901-1902, and the War Office also refunded £320,879 on account of over-payments in 1900-1901 and the previous year. The payments for Ordnance Stores were also smaller than the provision in the Revised Estimate. Miscellaneous Civil charges were also smaller by £23,543, chiefly in the item of Pensions.

Section II.—The Revised Estimate of 1902-1903.

1902-1903. Statement of the gross figures.

135. The following is a general comparison of the Budget Estimate with the Revised Estimate of 1902-1903:—

	Budget.	Revised.	Revised, better.	Revised, worse.
REVENUE.	£	£	£	£
India	73,855,400	76,284,600	2,429,200	...

England	18,394,500	18,338,800	55,700	...
TOTAL	73,532,700	74,154,000	...	621,300
SURPLUS	837,700	2,738,500	1,900,800	...

1902-1903. General Remarks.

136. The Revised Estimates thus show a surplus of £2,738,500, or R4,10,77,000 against £837,700 or R1,25,65,000 in the Budget. Of the total increase of £1,900,800, a sum of £227,200 is due to the inclusion in the Revised Estimates of the Revenue and Expenditure of Berar which has been leased in perpetuity to the British Government with effect from 1st October. This large net receipt from Berar in the current year is due to the fact that the greater part of the Land Revenue collections falls into the last 6 months of the year, while only 6 months' expenditure for the administration of the Province is debited on the other side of the accounts, and nothing is charged on account of the quit-rent of R25,00,000 payable to His Highness the Nizam as it is payable in one instalment, and the first payment will fall due in April 1904.

137. In paragraph 146 of the Financial Statement of last year, it was explained that, besides remitting arrears of Land Revenue due to famine, and making certain minor remissions and reductions of taxation, it had been decided to allot grants aggregating 115 lakhs to the Local Governments for expenditure on Education, Public Works, Minor Irrigation Works, and a variety of other useful Provincial objects. The great development of the revenue which has occurred during the year has now enabled Government to make further allotments for similar purposes aggregating 40 lakhs. These sums will not be spent during the year, but will go to increase the Provincial balances, and will be expended by the Local Governments during 1903-1904. Their distribution by Provinces is shown in paragraph 282. But for these additional grants, the surplus of the year would have been greater by 40 lakhs than it is. The surplus has been further reduced by 6 lakhs on account of the reduction of the salt duty by annas 8 a maund with effect from the 18th March; and by R7,13,000 on account of the remission of interest on famine loans granted to or guaranteed for Native States in accordance with the announcement made by His Excellency the Viceroy at the Delhi Durbar. These reductions are explained further in paragraph 167.

Cost of the Delhi Durbar.

138. In the estimates of the current year a provision of 35 lakhs was made on account of the cost of the Delhi Coronation Durbar, viz., 26½ lakhs under Civil and 8½ lakhs under Army. The accounts are not yet finally made up, but according to the latest returns the direct charge against the Imperial section of the accounts is likely to exceed this estimate by about 2 lakhs of rupees; while a very large set-off has accrued in the shape of increased receipts by Railways, the Telegraph, and the Post Office from traffic due to the Durbar. The figures, so far as they have been compiled, are as follows :—

Charges in connection with the Delhi Durbar.

	Imperial.
	Charges.	Recoveries	Net Charges.
	R	R	R
Assessed Taxes	...	1,000	—1,000
General Administration	4,02,000	37,000	3,65,000
Police	1,51,000	...	1,51,000
Ecclesiastical	1,000	.	1,000
Political	32,49,000	2,88,000	29,61,000
Stationery and Printing	4,000	...	4,000
Miscellaneous	5,000	...	5,000
Civil Works	4,000	...	4,000
Irrigation	7,000	17,000	—10,000
Army	5,40,000	49,000	4,91,000
TOTAL	43,63,000	3,92,000	39,71,000

139. A further recovery of R2,88,000 is likely to be made next year by the sale of surplus articles: and the net direct charge will then amount to R36,83,000. The increased traffic receipts from Railways, Post Office and Telegraphs accruing between the middle of November and the third week of January and directly due to the Durbar, are estimated as follows :—

Department.	Receipts.	Charges.	Net Receipts.
	R	R	R.
Post Office	3,00,000	1,30,000	1,70,000
Telegraph	1,13,000	94,000	19,000
Railways	28,59,000	6,26,000	22,33,000
TOTAL	32,72,000	8,50,000	24,22,000

The aggregate net charge against Imperial Revenues is thus likely not to exceed R12,61,000.

140. In addition to the above, charges aggregating R17,08,000 gross and R14,83,000 net have been incurred by Local Governments for purposes connected with their Provincial camps. This forms a charge against the Provincial section of the accounts.

141. It was explained in the Financial Statement of last year that, in view of the fact that Indian revenues are subject to vicissitudes connected with climatic conditions over which we have no control, the estimates of revenue for the current year had been framed with great caution. The return of normal conditions and the restoration of prosperity throughout the country have conduced to a remarkable development of revenue, which is manifested in the Revised Estimates under almost every important head.

142. In India there is an increase in Revenue of £2,429,200 and a decrease in Expenditure of £747,200, giving a total improvement of £3,176,400. Of this, £1,424,200 appertains to the Provincial and Local sections and leaves £1,752,200 as the improvement in the Imperial section. In England it is expected that the Revenue will exceed the Budget Estimate by £92,900, and that the Expenditure will fall short by £55,700, giving an improvement of £148,600 which, added to the improvement of £1,752,200 in the Imperial section in India, makes up the increase of £1,900,800 in the surplus shown in the table above.

1902-1903. Increase of Revenue in India.

143. The following are the more important items of increase in Revenue in India:—

	R	R
Land Revenue, ordinary	1,04,76,000
Less—Falling-off in that due to Irrigation	2,56,000
		1,02,20,000
Opium		41,15,000
Salt		10,00,000
Excise		38,60,000
Customs		43,00,000
Assessed Taxes		7,05,000
Post Office		8,69,000
Telegraph		7,42,000
Mint		52,78,000
Exchange		5,54,000
State Railways: Gross Receipts (Net Earnings, worse R35,87,000)		21,60,000
Irrigation, Major Works		23,28,000
Army		12,55,000

1902-1903. Land Revenue.

144. Of the large increase under Land Revenue, R72,00,000, or considerably more than two-thirds of the total, is due to the inclusion of six months' collections in Berar, which were not included in the Budget Estimate. The remainder is made up of increases of R15,56,000, R13,97,000, and R6,84,000 (including Land Revenue due to Irrigation) in Bombay, Madras, and Burma, respectively. On the other hand, the collections in the United Provinces are expected to fall short by R3,68,000, in the Punjab by R3,73,000, in the North-West Frontier Province by R1,12,000, and in the minor Provinces directly under the Government of India, chiefly Ajmer and Baluchistan, by R89,000.

1902-1903. Opium Revenue.

145. The quantity of Bengal Opium sold is the same as was taken in the Budget Estimate, viz., 48,000 chests, but the average price realised has been R1,144—9 annas instead of R1,100 assumed in the Budget, and this has increased the receipts by R21,39,000. The quantity of Malwa Opium exported has also been larger than anticipated, with the result that the receipts in Bombay show an improvement of R16,60,000 over the Budget. The opium pass fees realised in Berar have also added R1,50,000 to the revenue under this head. The arrangements for the sale of opium in Burma have been improved, and an additional revenue of R80,000 is expected in that Province in the current year.

1902-1903. Salt Revenue.

146. As already mentioned, the Salt Revenue would probably have been higher by 6 lakhs but for the reduction made in the rate of duty for the last fortnight of the year. As it is, the receipts in Madras are expected to exceed the Budget Estimate by R8,50,000 mainly in consequence of the traders having paid the duty in cash to a greater extent than usual instead of availing themselves of the option of taking credit for six months on lodging Government paper as security. The receipts in Bengal and Burma also are expected to exceed the Estimate by R3,00,000 and R2,50,000, respectively, while those on account of the Northern India Salt Department and Bombay are expected to fall short by R3,00,000 and R1,00,000, respectively. The sales of Northern India salt were largely affected towards the end of last year by rumours of a reduction of the duty, and it was anticipated in the Budget Estimate that the revenue so lost would be recovered in the current year, but this anticipation has not been realized. The Stamp Revenue declined slightly and would have been considerably below the Budget but for the inclusion of receipts in Berar aggregating R4,30,000. There was a falling-off in Bombay, Madras, the United Provinces, and the Central Provinces, counterbalanced by increases in Burma, Bengal, and Assam.

1902-1903. Excise Revenue.

147. The Excise Revenue has grown in all Provinces though the improvement expected in the Budget has not been fully realised in Assam and Bombay. In the former Province the revenue has been growing very slowly of late years. In Bombay the ground lost in consequence of the famine is being gradually recovered. The largest increase has occurred in Madras (R11,50,000) where the steady growth of the revenue had received a serious check from the famine. There has been a remarkable and steady growth of the revenue in Bengal and the United Provinces, the improvements over the Budget being R8,00,000 and R9,00,000, respectively. The increase due to Berar is R7,50,000.

1902-1903. Customs Revenue.

	R
Burma	31,00,000
Bombay	8,80,000
Madras	7,66,000

The improvement would have been still greater but for a large falling-off in the receipts from the ordinary and countervailing duties on sugar in consequence of the imposition of additional countervailing duties which have practically stopped the imports from Austro-Hungary and Germany.

149. The leading features, of the year have been the great increase in the receipts from the export duty on rice, and the import duty on silver. The former is due to the bumper crop in Burma. The causes of the latter are somewhat obscure, but it is believed that silver is largely used as a convenient form of remittance. Imports of cotton goods received a check. The principal variations in the leading staples were as follows :—

Increases in Receipts.

	R
Export duty—
Rice, chiefly Burma	27,48,000
Import duty—
Silver	12,50,000
Other metals	6,02,000
Spirits and Liqueurs	5,65,000
Petroleum	1,97,000
Chemicals	1,44,000
Excise duty on cotton manufactures	3,05,000

Decreases in Receipts.

	R
Import duty—
Cotton manufactures	5,13,000
Sugar, ordinary duty	3,50,000
" countervailing duties	3,45,000
Articles of food, etc.	2,45,000
Raw materials	1,72,000
Manufactured articles	2,01,000

150. The improvement in Income-tax collections is general, except in the United Provinces and Assam where there is a small falling-off, and in the Central Provinces where the Budget anticipated that the ground lost in consequence of the famine would be recovered to some extent in the current year, but the anticipation has not been realised. The more important of the increases are—

	R
Bengal	2,00,000
Madras	2,00,000
Bombay	1,70,000
Berar	1,20,000

151. The Budget Estimate of Post Office Revenue provided for a falling-off of R2,50,000 in money order fees owing to the introduction, from the beginning of the year, of a lower rate of commission for money orders of R5 or less. The annual development of the revenue plus the special receipts connected with the Delhi Coronation Durbar, which are estimated at R3,00,000, are now expected to bring about an improvement of R8,69,000.

152. The Budget Estimate of Telegraph Receipts provided for a decrease of about R8,00,000 in the receipts from foreign messages owing to the reduction in the tariff, and it was anticipated that the normal growth of the revenue would be more than counterbalanced by the falling-off due to the cessation of the war in China. The development of the revenue has, however, been much greater, and this, together with R1,13,000 received from traffic connected with the Delhi Coronation Durbar, is expected to bring in an increase of R7,42,000.

153. Of the Mint Receipts, a sum of R39,51,000 represents the profits on the coinage of rupees, and does not affect the surplus of the year as it is counterbalanced by a payment of equal amount to the Gold Reserve Fund, shown as expenditure. No silver was purchased and coined during the year, the consignment purchased during the present month not having yet arrived. There has been recoinage of 1840 rupees, but this of course does not yield a profit. The latter has accrued from the conversion into rupees of the Hali coins of the Indore Durbar.

Of the remainder of the increase, R2,80,000 occurs under Fees for the coinage of dollars which have been greater than was anticipated, R7,72,000 under Fees for the conversion of the Indore Hali rupees, R1,25,000 under Gain on copper coinage brought about by a larger demand for copper coins, and R1,50,000 in operative and other gains on coinage which is more than counterbalanced by an increase in the operative losses shown as expenditure.

154. The whole of the balance of the Gold Reserve Fund was remitted to England for investment last year. The profits accruing during the present year have recently been remitted to England by means of Council Bills, and the balance of the Fund now consists of £3,810,730 held in consols of the nominal value of £4,052,561.

155. The Budget Estimate provided for a charge of R3,04,000 on account of Exchange. The Revised Estimate now anticipates that there will be a net receipt of R5,54,000. The variation has occurred chiefly in connection with the transactions of the Guaranteed Railways. The Revised Estimate provides for a net receipt of R3,75,000 on account of these against a net charge of R5,34,000 in the Budget Estimate.

156. The increase in Irrigation Receipts is distributed over all the Provinces, being most marked in the Punjab which shows an increase of R12,18,000. In this Province the Revenue has grown steadily in the past.

157. The Army Receipts are swelled mainly by the adjustment of the value of Kheddah elephants transferred to the Government of Burma, by recoveries from His Majesty's Government of the value of Europe stores despatched to South Africa, China and Somaliland, by increased issues of Ordnance stores to the Police Department, and by larger receipts on account of subscriptions to the Indian Military Service Family Pensions.

158. There is a large decrease of R35,87,000 in the net earnings of State Railways, and of R11,95,000 in the net Traffic Receipts of Guaranteed Railways during the year. Besides these, the only important Revenue head which shows a decrease is Forests, where the receipts fell by R3,83,000. This has occurred almost wholly in Burma where the season was unfavourable for the floating of timber. The decrease in that Province, which amounts to R9,50,000, is partly counterbalanced by an improvement in the United Provinces and the Punjab, and by the inclusion of figures for Berar.

1902-1903. Railway Earnings.

159. The Railway Revenue of 1901-1902 was quite abnormally high, and in framing the Budget Estimate of the current year it was not considered prudent to count upon a continuance of equally favourable returns. The Revised Estimate now presented justifies the caution, as it shows an increase of R21,60,000 only in gross receipts, whereas the working expenses have increased by R57,47,000, giving a net worseness of R35,87,000 as compared with the Budget. The increase in working expenses is partly due to increased traffic and extra mileage run on certain lines, but chiefly to special expenditure found obligatory on the maintenance and renewal of permanent-way and on bridges and rolling-stock. The lines which have done best are the Great Indian Peninsula, the Eastern Bengal, and the South Indian Railways, while the largest net falling-off has occurred on the East Indian Railway and the Rajputana-Malwa Railway. The principal figures are as follows:—

	Increase +, Decrease —.
	Receipts.	Working Expenses.	Net Receipts, better or worse than Budget
	R	R	R
Better than Budget—
Great Indian Peninsula Railway	+37,50,000	+27,75,000	+9,75,000
Eastern Bengal Railway	+5,00,000	—3,00,000	+8,00,000
South Indian Railway	+50,000	—6,50,000	+7,00,000
Southern Mahratta Railway	+3,50,000	—2,00,000	+5,50,000
Indian Midland Railway	+12,00,000	+7,60,000	+4,40,000
North-Western Railway	+28,00,000	+25,00,000	+3,00,000
Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway	+4,00,000	+2,00,000	+2,00,000
Worse than Budget—
East Indian Railway	—40,00,000	+2,00,000	—42,00,000
Rajputana-Malwa Railway	—29,50,000	—11,00,000	—18,50,000
Burma Railway	...	+5,00,000	—5,00,000
Madras Railway, North-East line	—2,00,000	+3,00,000	—5,00,000
Assam-Bengal	—2,00,000	+2,00,000	—4,00,000

1902-1903. Net Traffic Receipts of Guaranteed Railways.

160. The decrease in Net Traffic Receipts of Guaranteed Railways has occurred on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, the goods traffic not having been good and the working expenses having been increased partly by a special debit of R2,40,000 on account of shortage in the balance of cut timber brought out in the stock-taking of 1901, and partly by a heavy fall in the earnings of the Rajputana-Malwa Railway having thrown a larger proportion of the joint expenses against the former line.

1902-1903. Increase in Expenditure in India.

161. The only important increases of expenditure in India are:—

	R
Refunds	12,81,000
Mint	44,53,000
General Administration	23,02,000
Miscellaneous	34,27,000
Reduction or Avoidance of Debt	12,56,000
Military Works	8,20,000

1902-1903. Refunds.

162. The excess Refunds occur chiefly in Burma, Bengal, and Bombay, and are due partly to special adjustments of tributes and survey and settlement charges, but chiefly to larger refunds of customs duty.

1902-1903. Mint Charges.

163. Of the total increase in the Mint expenditure, R39,51,000 is accounted for by the payment of the net profits of the rupee coinage of the year to the Gold Reserve Fund. The balance represents the loss on the re-coinage of 1840 rupees which was not fully provided for in the Budget Estimate.

1902-1903. General Administration.

164. Of the increase under General Administration, R1,93,000 is due to the inclusion of the Berar figures in the Revised Estimate. The bulk of the remainder represents the charges incurred by Local Governments in connection with Provincial camps and the entertainment of their representative guests at the Delhi Coronation Durbar. These are referred to in paragraph (140) above.

1902-1903. Miscellaneous.

165. The charges under Miscellaneous include R16,45,000 on account of Berar. R15,32,000 out of this represents, firstly, payments made by the British Government on account of the Province before 1st October 1902 and recoverable from its revenues, the claim to which has been given up under the terms of the lease; and, secondly, the balances of Local Funds on 1st October 1902, and the net amounts of deposits received, and advances made, before that date. Under the new arrangement the entire cash balance of Berar on the 1st October, which exceeded 41 lakhs of rupees, was credited to the Nizam. A considerable part of this consisted of balances standing at the credit of Local Funds, and these it has been incumbent on Government to restore at its own cost.

166. The other notable increases under Miscellaneous are:—

	R
India	6,11,000
United Provinces	1,64,000
Bombay	10,88,000

The increase in India is accounted for chiefly by an expenditure of R1,00,000 on account of the visit of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, of R2,54,000 on account of the Police and other special Commissions of Enquiry, and of R1,10,000 on account of a special refund of Suitors' Fund deposits. R61,000 in Bombay represent payments of arrears of interest on loans raised by Native States in the market on a Government guarantee. This is further referred to in the succeeding paragraph. The remainder of the excess in Bombay was due to the remission of a large amount of irrecoverable takavi loans, of which R25,91,000 have been written off against R15,96,000 for which provision was made in the Budget Estimate. The increase in the United Provinces is also due to this cause.

Remission of Interest on Loans of Native States.

167. The payments on account of interest on loans of Native States, referred to in the foregoing paragraph, represent a part of the obligation undertaken by the Government of India, as announced by His Excellency the Viceroy in his speech at the Delhi Durbar, to remit, in commemoration of His Majesty's Coronation, three years' interest on all loans obtained either from Government or in the open market under the guarantee of Government, by Native States which had suffered severely from the famine of 1899-1900, to meet expenditure on relief and analogous objects. The remission of interest on the loans granted by Government will reduce the receipts under "Interest" by R6,52,000 in the Revised and by R7,25,000 in the Budget Estimate; while the payments on account of the guaranteed loans will appear as expenditure under the head "Miscellaneous," and will amount to R61,000 in the Revised and R1,12,000 in the Budget Estimate. As a number of these guaranteed loans are small in amount and bear high rates of interest, ranging up to 9 per cent, the Government of India have further decided to pay off a substantial proportion of them, by means of Government advances at 4 per cent interest. The total amount to be so advanced is R1,14,000 and has been provided in the Ways and Means Estimate for the current year under the head "Loans to Native States."

1902-1903. Reduction or Avoidance of Debt.

168. There is a saving of R16,45,000 on the Budget Estimate of Famine Relief Expenditure (see paragraph 176). Of this, R47,000 goes to meet an enhancement in the loss on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, and R1,54,000 and R1,58,000 to meet increases in the charges for the construction of Protective Railways and Protective Irrigation Works. £2,000 or R30,000 were also spent in England on stores for the latter works. There thus remains a balance of R12,56,000 by which the charge under Reduction or Avoidance of Debt has to be increased, in order to bring up the total of the Famine Insurance Grant to the fixed sum of R1,50,00,000.

1902-1903. Military Works Expenditure.

169 The increase in Military Works expenditure is due to the additional works undertaken out of the savings in army expenditure caused by the absence of troops in South Africa and China as explained in paragraph 181.

1902-1903. Decrease in Expenditure in India.

170. Under almost all the remaining heads of importance, the expenditure has fallen short of that anticipated in the Budget. The following are the more important items; the additional expenditure due to Berar, for which no provision was made in the Budget Estimate, being shown in a separate column:—

	Total decrease.	Increase due to Berar.	[illegible] in other Provinces.
	R	R	R
Land Revenue	17,77,000	3,30,000	21,07,000

Construction of Railways charged to Provincial or Local Revenues	5,05,000	...	5,05,000
Army	73,81,000	17,08,000	90,89,000

1902-1903. Expenditure under Land Revenue, Courts of Law, Jails, Police, Medical, Scientific Departments, Civil Works.

171. The savings under Land Revenue, Courts of Law, Jails, Police, Medical, Scientific and Minor Departments and Civil Works occur in almost all Provinces, and are due, as has been frequently explained in former Financial Statements, to the tendency of Local Governments to make fuller provision in the Budget Estimates for payment of salaries and other charges than is actually required, and to make provision for new schemes before they are ready to receive sanction. The only notable increase in the charges under these heads is one of R1,37,000 in the Punjab under Medical. This is due to the plague inoculation scheme. The largest decrease under Civil Works occurs in Madras.

1902-1903. Opium Expenditure.

172. The Budget, as usual, provided for an average opium crop, but the actual yield fell short and the payments will accordingly be smaller.

1902-1903. Forest Expenditure.

173. The saving in Forest Expenditure occurs chiefly in Burma, where the revenue also has fallen greatly.

1902-1903. Interest Charges.

174. The saving in the Interest charges is due to the amount provided in the Budget on account of discount and anticipation interest on the new loan not being fully required.

1902-1903. Education Expenditure.

175. The Budget Estimate provided a special grant to Local Governments of R40,00,000 for expenditure on Education. A part of the grant has been transferred to Civil Works for expenditure on school buildings, and only a small portion of the remainder will be actually spent during the year as the Local Governments have not been able to mature their schemes for its disposal.

1902-1903. Famine Relief Expenditure.

176. A sum of R20,000 only is likely to be spent on Famine Relief in the Punjab out of R13,60,000 provided in the Budget. A saving of R6,50,000 is also expected on the Budget Estimate in Bombay. On the other hand, R2,60,000 will be required in the Central Provinces, for which no provision was made in the Budget Estimate, and R84,000 more than the Budget Estimate will be spent in Ajmer and Rajputana.

1902-1903. Guaranteed Railways—Surplus Profits, Land and Supervision.

177. There is a decrease in the Company's share of surplus profits of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway owing to a fall in the earnings of the line in the second-half of 1902, and to an increase in the share of working expenses under the joint purse arrangement consequent on a serious fall in the earnings of the Rajputana-Malwa section.

1902-1903. Subsidised Companies – Land and Control.

178. The saving in the expenditure on land for Subsidized Railways is caused by projects not being ready as early as expected and by the progress in the acquisition of land being slower.

1902-1903. Minor Works and Navigation Expenditure.

179. The Budget Estimate for Minor Works and Navigation included a special grant of R25,00,000. A sum of R1,00,000 out of this has been reappropriated for expenditure on Protective Irrigation Works, and it has not been found possible to utilise a sum of R8,58,000 in consequence of projects not being ready in time.

1902-1903. Construction of Railways chargeable to Provincial or Local Revenues.

180. The reduction under Construction of Provincial and Local Railways is due to the progress of work on certain bridges on the Arantangi Extension of the Mayavaram-Mutupet Railway having been retarded by heavy floods, and to the postponement of the construction of salt sidings.

1902-1903. Army Expenditure.

181. There are, as usual, a large number of variations between the Budget and the Revised Estimate of Military Expenditure. The latter includes R17,08,000 on account of the Hyderabad Contingent. If this be excluded, the Revised Estimate would show a decrease of R90,89,000. More than three-fourths of this has been occasioned by the absence of troops in South Africa, China, and Somaliland which has caused savings of R52,50,000, R17,15,000 and R2,27,000, respectively. There is also a saving of R6,78,000 in the net credits for local stores, issued from stock for South Africa, China and Somaliland. The provision for ordinary expenditure has also proved higher than the actual requirements by more than R30,00,000. The reduction would have been larger had it not been decided, in consideration of the savings due to the absence of troops, to sanction new military expenditure aggregating R59,56,000, of which R17,41,000 will be spent in India as Army expenditure, R15,33,000 under Military Works (see paragraph 169) and R88,000 under Marine; while R25,94,000 will be spent in England, mainly on the purchase of guns for Bombay defences, ammunition on the home scale for coast defences, a reserve of light railway material, binoculars and telescopes for battalions of British Infantry, maxim guns for all British and Native Units, stores for re-equipping existing field hospitals, and ordnance mules from the United States.

1902-1903. Revenue in England.

182. The revenue in England is expected to exceed the Budget Estimate by £92,900. There is an increase of £120,700 under Interest, £18,700 being the premium realised on the India 3 per cent Stock issued during the year, and £102,000 being the excess interest obtained from the temporary investment of larger sums at rates of interest higher than was anticipated in the Budget Estimate. Under Railways there is a special receipt of £16,900 on account of the Government share of the surplus profits of the Southern Punjab Railway for the four years 1898 to 1901. On the other hand, the Army receipts are expected to be less by £52,300, chiefly owing to a decrease in the value of articles in possession of regiments on their transfer from the Indian to the British Establishment. The decrease would have been larger but for the adjustment of the recoveries on account of the Indian Troop service as revenue instead of by deduction from Army expenditure as provided in the Budget Estimate.

1902-1903. Expenditure in England.

183. The expenditure in England is expected to be less than the Budget Estimate by £55,700, of which £37,000 occurs in the interest charges. The amount of India Bills issued during the year was less by £500,000, and the rate of discount paid was also smaller, while the provision of £10,000 for interest on temporary loans from the Bank of England is not required. The Budget Estimate included £28,000 for the reception of Indian Chiefs attending His Majesty's Coronation, but the expenditure on this account has now been debited to Advances Recoverable pending recovery from His Majesty's Government. The payments on account of Interest on Capital Deposited by Railway Companies are less by £24,200, the amount of capital raised being smaller and the dates of issue later than estimated for. Payments on account of the Telegraph Department were less by £22,700, mainly on account of smaller demands for stores. There is a saving of £17,200 on the Estimate of Army expenditure as the result of a number of variations. The payments for stores, chiefly ordnance and clothing, are less by £207,600, and the pensions of Indian officers are less by £40,000; but these savings are counterbalanced to a large extent by an increase of £17,000 in the payments of furlough allowances of Indian officers, of £89,500 in the payments to the War Office in respect of British Troops serving in India, and of £104,500 in the charges for the Indian Troop Service. Under payments to the War Office the Budget Estimate provided for a refund of £120,000 to India on account of over-payments in 1901-1902, but this refund was received in 1901-1902. A further refund of a smaller amount in respect of that year is, however, now expected in 1902-1903, and the Estimate for the capitation charge for 1902-1903 is also less. The gross charges on account of the Indian Troop Service are higher than was anticipated, and the amount has been further swelled by the receipts on account of the service being shown in the Revised Estimate as receipts, while in the Budget Estimate they were deducted from the expenditure. The additional Military Works undertaken out of the savings in Army expenditure due to the absence of troops in South Africa and China, as explained in paragraph 181, have also involved an increased expenditure of £34,900 in the purchase of stores in England.

Section III.—The Budget Estimate of 1903-1904.

1903-1904. Statement of the gross figures.

184. The following is a general comparison of the Budget Estimate of 1903-1904 with that of 1902-1903:—

1903-1904 Remission of taxation.

185. It has for some time been apparent that if taxation were maintained unchanged, the estimates for 1903-1904 would show a very large surplus exceeding £2,000,000. The surpluses for the last five years have been—

1898-99	2,640,873
1899-1900	2,774,623
1900-1901	1,670,204
1901-1902	4,950,243
1902-1903 (Revised Estimate)	2,738,500

186. It has accordingly been decided that the time has come when a substantial remission of taxation may properly be made. The measures decided on are, firstly, a reduction in the salt duty, of 8 annas a maund, with effect from the 18th March 1903; and, secondly, the exemption from income-tax of all incomes below R1,000 a year, with effect from the ensuing year. The reduction in the salt duty does not extend to Burma, where the present rate of R1 a maund remains unaltered. As a concomitant of the former measure, it has been necessary to revise the rates of duty on Kohat and Mandi salt. The former has been reduced from R2 per Lahori maund of 102 6/7 lb (=R1-9-7·9 per Indian maund of 82 2/7 lb) to R1-8 per Indian maund, and the latter from 7½ annas a maund to 6 annas.

187. The former measure is estimated to result in a reduction of revenue of 6 lakhs in the current year and of 173 lakhs in 1903-1904, if no allowance is made for increased consumption due to the fall in duty and in price, though some development due to this cause may fairly be expected. The latter is estimated to result in a reduction under Assessed Taxes of 36 lakhs, the whole of which occurs in the Budget Estimate of 1903-1904. As this is a divided head of revenue, the loss will fall against the Imperial and Provincial Governments as follows :-

	Imperial share	Provincial share.	TOTAL.
	R	R	R
India	2,16,000	...	2,16,000
Central Provinces . . .	30,000	30,000	60,000
Burma	97,000	97,000	1,94,000
Assam	30,000	30,000	60,000
Bengal	4,65,000	4,65,000	9,30,000
United Provinces . . .	2,62,000	2,62,000	5,24,000
Punjab	1,54,000	1,54,000	3,08,000
North-West Frontier Province .	72,000	...	72,000
Madras	3,30,000	3,30,000	6,60,000
Bombay	2,88,000	2,88,000	5,76,000
TOTAL .	19,44,000	16,56,000	36,00,000

To compensate the Local Governments for their share of the loss, a contribution equal to the amounts shown in the third column of the foregoing table has been made to each through the adjusting head of Land Revenue: in this way the entire cost of the remission is borne by the Imperial section of the accounts.

188. But for these measures of remission, the surplus of the ensuing year would have been £2,342,000, being greater by £1,393,300, or 2,09 lakhs of rupees, than that which is shown in the Budget Estimate.

189. Even after these large remissions, the anticipated surplus is £948,700 and exceeds that which was estimated for last March by £111,000. It would not have been prudent to accept a larger sacrifice of revenue than about two crores, in view of the increase of expenditure which is known to be impending in a number of directions. Among these may be enumerated the improvement of the police, the construction of an extensive scheme of tanks and other protective irrigation works such as the Irrigation Commission is likely to recommend, further expenditure on education in accordance with the proposals of the Education Conference of 1901, and the Universities Commission, the improvement of the efficiency of the Army, and the further increase to the pay of British troops which will take effect from April 1904. Full allowance has had to be made for these necessary but costly projects of administrative improvement in estimating the proportion of existing taxation which it would be safe to remit.

1903-1904 General Result.

190. In India after allowing for the remissions of taxation which it has been decided to make, the net revenues are estimated at £164,600 less than in the Budget framed last March. Of this worseness, £149,200 appertains to the Imperial section of the accounts, and £15,400 to the Provincial and Local section. In England an improvement is estimated in both revenue and expenditure, the total being £260,200. Deducting from this the reduction in the Imperial section in India, we get the net improvement of £111,000 over the Budget surplus of 1902-1903 already referred to. The surplus on the accounts of Berar which is included in the figures for 1903-1904, amounts to £38,400.

1903-1904. Decrease of Revenue in India.

191. Apart from Salt and Assessed Taxes, the only important decreases in revenue in India are:—

	R
Interest	5,04,000
Net Traffic Receipts of Guaranteed Railways . . .	11,25,000

192. The decrease under Interest is accounted for by the remissions granted to Native States referred to in paragraph 167. The decrease under Net Traffic Receipts of Guaranteed Railways occurs chiefly on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, the goods traffic on which has not been satisfactory in the current year, and on which a small improvement only has been provided for in the Budget Estimate of next year. On the other hand, a considerable increase is anticipated in the working expenses of both the Bombay, Baroda and Central India and the Madras Railways to meet heavy outlay on maintenance and renewals of permanent-way and repairs of bridges in the former and renewals of rolling-stock in the latter. Under Salt, a reduction of 153 lakhs is estimated for. This is made up of a loss of 173 lakhs due to reduction in the rate of duty, less a gain of 20 lakhs due to development of consumption. Under Assessed Taxes, the Budget provides for a net falling-off of R26,65,000. This consists of a loss of 36 lakhs due to the raising of the limit of exemption, less R7,99,000 due to normal growth of revenue and R1,36,000 on account of Berar.

1903-1904. Interest Receipts, Net Traffic Receipts of Guaranteed Railways, Salt Revenue, and Assessed Taxes.

193. An improvement is anticipated in the revenue in India under almost all other heads, being most considerable under the following. The inclusion of figures for Berar for the whole year has caused an increase under many of these heads. The increases due to this cause are therefore shown in a separate column:—

1903-1904. Increase in Revenue in India.

	Total increase.	Berar.	Increase in other province
	R	R	R
Land Revenue . . .	1,97,94,000	81,15,000	1,16,79,000

Stamps	10,32,000	8,50,000	1,82,000
Excise	57,72,000	14,00,000	43,72,000
Provincial Rates . .	7,49,000	6,69,000	80,000
Customs . . .	2,00,000	16,000	1,84,000

Mint . . .	45,08,000	...	45,08,000
Miscellaneous . . .	5,07,000	1,64,000	3,43,000
State Railways: Gross receipts . . .	68,21,000	...	68,21,000
(Net Earnings worse R7,03,000.)
Major Works, Irrigation Direct Receipts . .	10,33,000	...	10,33,000

194. It was explained in paragraph 146 (a) of last year's Financial Statement that the Budget Estimate of Land Revenue for the current year was reduced by R71,84,000 on account of the final remission of famine arrears. This accounts for the bulk of the increase in the Estimate of next year. An increase of R77,94,000 occurs in Bombay due to the return of normal conditions in that Province, and of R21,97,000 in Burma due partly to revision of settlements in Upper Burma, and partly to increases in the capitation tax in consequence of an increase in the population and in the revenues of petroleum and ruby mines and of fisheries. There are smaller increases in the other Provinces also, except Assam in which there is a small falling-off on account of the grant of rent-free lands to village headmen. Excluding Berar, the Budget Estimate for next year is R84,03,000 in excess of the Revised Estimate of the current year, and more than two-thirds the increase is expected in Bombay.

1903-1904. Land Revenue Receipts.

195. The increase in opium revenue is expected principally in Bombay where the estimate for the current year was too low. An increase of R1,25,000 is also expected in Burma, where the arrangements for the sale of opium and prevention of smuggling have been improved.

1903-1904. Opium Revenue.

1903-1904. Stamp Revenue

196. The stamp revenue has shown a decline in the current year in the Central Provinces, the United Provinces, Madras, and Bombay, and an improvement in Burma and Bengal. The Budget Estimate for next year provides for a partial recovery of the ground lost in the first four Provinces, and for an improvement in Burma where the revenue has been steadily growing during the last few years. In Bengal the Budget Estimate has been placed at approximately the same amount as the Revised Estimate of the current year.

1903-1904. Excise Revenue

197. The restoration of prosperity throughout the country has given a remarkable impetus to the growth of the Excise Revenue in the current year, and the ground lost in consequence of the famine has been recovered to a large extent. The Budget Estimate assumes that this improvement will be maintained next year, and that there will be a further improvement in Burma, Bengal, the United Provinces, and Bombay.

1903-1904 Provincial Rates.

198. The estimates of Provincial Rates generally follow those of Land Revenue. The only noticeable feature is a reduction of R1,08,000 in Madras due to a reduction of the rate of village cess from 9 to 8 pies in the rupee.

1903-1904. Customs Revenue.

199. The Budget Estimate of Customs Revenue is R2,00,000 higher than that of the current year, but is R41,00,000 lower than the Revised Estimate. The decrease is anticipated mainly in Burma and Bombay.

The articles in which the falling off is chiefly expected are—

	R
Export duty—
Rice	24,50,000
Import duty—
Sugar—countervailing duties	13,55,000
Silver	7,50,000

200. The exports of rice from Burma have been unprecedentedly large in the current year and it is not considered prudent to count upon a continuance of the high level recently prevailing. The imports of silver in the current year have also been abnormal and a falling-off is estimated for. The effect of the additional countervailing duties in checking the import of bounty-fed sugar is reflected in the low estimate for next year under that head.

1903-1904. Post Office and Telegraph Receipts.

201. Post Office and Telegraph receipts have been taken at almost the same figure as in the Revised Estimate. Any falling-off in consequence of the absence of special receipts on account of the Delhi Durbar is expected to be made good by the normal growth of the Departments.

1903-1904. Mint Receipts

202. Mint receipts are taken at R45,08,000 more than the Budget Estimate of 1902-1903. This chiefly represents the profit on the coinage of £300,000 of silver which has recently been purchased and is on its way out to Bombay. The whole of these profits will be paid over to the Gold Reserve Fund, and will not affect the surplus of the year.

1903-1904. State Railways Earnings.

203. Although the gross receipts of State Railways are likely to exceed last year's Budget by R68,21,000, the working expenses are expected to increase by R75,24,000. The net result is therefore worse by R7,03,000. The increase is due to special renewals of rails and rolling-stock.

204. The traffic on the East Indian Railway and the Rajputana-Malwa Railway was considerably below the estimate during the current year, chiefly in consequence of a decline in pilgrim traffic and coal on the former, and to favourable seasons and the absence of famine traffic on the latter. The Budget Estimate allows for a moderate improvement on existing conditions in both lines, allowance being made for some diversion of the coal trade. On the Bengal-Nagpur Railway a large improvement is expected in 1903-1904 in consequence of anticipations of favourable coal traffic over the newly-opened Midnapore-Jherriah Branch and the completion of the Satpura Railway. An increase is also expected on the Burma Railways in consequence of increased mileage open to traffic.

205. On the other hand, it has been thought prudent to estimate for a considerable reduction on the current year's receipts on the North-Western and Great Indian Peninsula Railways. Both these lines carried abnormally heavy traffic during the closing year in connection with the Delhi Durbar, and in the case of the latter in consequence also of a favourable cotton crop.

206. The estimate of net earnings is taken at R28,84,000 better than the Revised Estimate of the current year. The more important differences are as follows:—

Increase + Decrease —

	Receipts.	Working Expenses.	Net Earnings, better or worse than Revised Estimate.
	R	R	R
Better than the Revised—
East Indian Railway .	+12,00,000	—6,00,000	+18,00,000
Bengal Nagpore Railway .	+29,00,000	+11,00,000	+18,00,000

Great Indian Peninsula Railway . . .	—14,50,000	—9,00,000	—5,50,000
Eastern Bengal Railway .	...	+3,50,000	—3,50,000

1903-1904. Major Irrigation Works, Receipts.

207. The estimate of receipts from Major Irrigation Works is R12,95,000 less than the Revised Estimate of the current year. The decrease occurs in Bengal, the United Provinces, and the Punjab, and is due to the area to be irrigated during the rabi season of 1902-1903, the collections on account of which will be made in the ensuing year, and the kharif season of 1903, not being expected to be so large as in the previous seasons. An increase of R1,67,000 is, however, expected from the development of irrigation from the Jhelum Canal.

1903-1904. Decrease in Expenditure in India.

208. The important decreases in Expenditure in India are:—

	R
Opium	5,00,000
Interest on Debt	26,78,000
Political	18,56,000
Famine Relief	48,18,000
Guaranteed Companies—Surplus Profits	8,45,000
Subsidized Companies—Land, etc.	6,07,000
Construction of Local Railways	5,40,000

1903-1904. Interest on Debt.

209. There is an increase of R26,53,000 (see paragraph 227) in the amount of interest transferred to the Railway and Irrigation Accounts, representing the interest on new capital expenditure. This causes a decrease in the charges for Interest on Debt by an exactly equal amount. The annual payment of 12 lakhs towards the principal of the Gwalior loan also gives a saving of R48,000. On the other hand, the interest on the new loan of R1,50,00,000 raised in the current year will increase the charges under the head by R5,25,000.

1903-1904. Political Expenditure.

210. The estimate for the current year included R26,50,000 under Political for the Delhi Coronation Durbar. If allowance be made for this, the estimate for next year would show an increase of R7,94,000, which is accounted for by a provision in India of R2,00,000 on account of arrears of the subsidy of His Highness the Amir of Kabul, and of R3,00,000 on account of the Seistan Arbitration Commission of R2,32,000 in Bombay on account of the Aden Boundary Commission, for which R1,48,000 only was provided in 1902-1903, and an increase of R1,27,000 in the North-West Frontier Province, chiefly on account of enhanced allowances to Mahsuds, the Kurram-Jaji-Khost Delimitation Commission and an Inspecting Officer of Frontier Militia.

1903-1904. Famine Relief.

211. In the estimate for the current year provision was made for Famine Relief expenditure to the extent of R48,00,000 for Bombay, R13,60,000 for the Punjab, and R1,88,000 for the districts directly under the Government of India. The Budget Estimate for next year provides R15,00,000 for the Central Provinces and a small sum of R30,000 for the Punjab. There is thus a reduction of R48,18,000 under Famine Relief. This does not affect the surplus of the year, as the amount of the Famine Insurance Grant is fixed at R1,50,00,000, and a saving under Famine Relief, or Construction of Protective Railways and Irrigation Works, or interest on Famine Railways, is added to the sum charged under 36.—Reduction or Avoidance of Debt (see paragraph 168).

1903-1904. Guaranteed Companies—Surplus Profits.

212. The earnings of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway for the calendar year ending with December 1903 on which the surplus profits payable next year will be calculated are expected to be less than the figure taken in the Budget of the current year, and this will reduce the share of surplus profits payable to the Company in 1903-1904 by R5,50,000. There will also be a saving in the charges for land as the Budget Estimate for the current year provided R3,50,000 on account of land for the Azikhal-Mangalore Extension of the Madras Railway. This line will now be constructed as a State Railway and the charge will be met from capital.

1903-1904. Subsidized Companies—Land, Subsidy and Interest.

213. The estimate for land for Subsidized Companies is R11,92,000, of which R6,18,000 is for the Bengal-North-Western Railway, and the remaining R5,74,000 is distributed among a number of other projects. The estimate for 1002-1903 included R6,47,000 for the former line and R4,79,000 for the Kalka-Simla and Laksam-Noakhali Railways, besides smaller amounts aggregating R6,73,000 for other lines.

1903-1904. Construction of Local Railways.

214. The expenditure on the construction of the extension of the Mayavaram-Mutupet Railway is the principal item which is now charged to the head "Construction of Railways charged to Provincial or Local Revenues." The expenditure on the line, which is borne by the Tanjore District Board, is expected to be smaller next year.

1903-1904. Increase in Expenditure in India.

215. The following are the more important increases in Expenditure in India in 1903-1904 over the estimates for 1902-1903. The figures for Berar are shown in a separate column :—

	Total increase.	Berar.	Increase in other Provinces.

Army	31,66,000	35,64,000	—3,98,000
Special Defences	18,00,000	...	18,00,000

1903-1904. Assignments and Compensations.

216. The sum of R26,23,000 shown against Assignments and Compensations under Berar includes R25,00,000 payable on account of quit rent to His Highness the Nizam.

1903-1904. Land Revenue Expenditure.

217. The only considerable variations under Land Revenue are an increase of R1,76,000 in Bengal and a decrease of R2,50,000 in the United Provinces, both mainly in the charges for Survey and Settlement. The net increase is due to a number of small items spread over all the Provinces except Burma and Bombay.

218. The greater part (R4,02,000) of the increase under Excise occurs in Burma, where large additions have been made to the preventive and controlling establishments for the better regulation of the sale of opium. 1903-1904. Excise Expenditure.

219. The increased expenditure under Forests is distributed among all the Provinces except the Central Provinces and Bengal, and represents the additional working charges necessary to yield the additional revenue which is anticipated. There are special reasons for not budgetting for an increase of revenue in Burma. 1903-1904. Forest Expenditure.

220. The Post Office and Telegraph expenditure increases every year with the progress of the Departments. The increase anticipated next year in the former is larger than the normal annual increase, as provision has been made for an additional payment of R3,00,000 to the British India Steam Navigation Company for the new fast service to the Persian Gulf, and for R2,90,000 for improving the pay of postmasters. 1903-1904. Post and Telegraph Expenditure.

221. The increase under Mint, which is nominal, has been explained in paragraph 202. 1903-1904. Mint E.

222. The only important increases under Law and Justice, Courts of Law, are anticipated in the Central Provinces (R69,000) due to the appointment of an additional Judicial Commissioner, in Burma (R1,12,000) due chiefly to a special provision for the reorganization of the Provincial Civil Service, and in Bengal (R2,45,000) due partly to the reorganization of the Subordinate Judicial Service and partly to a special provision for the reorganization of the Subordinate Executive Service half the charges for which appear under this head. 1903-1904. Courts of Law.

223. An increase is expected in all the Provinces in the charges for Pensions and Superannuation allowances owing to the normal growth of the retired list. 1903-1904. Pensions and Superannuation Allowances.

224. A sum of R23,00,000 has been allotted for expenditure next year on the following feeder lines of famine railway, which have been authorized by the Secretary of State to be classed as Protective :— 1903-1904. Protective Railways.

	R
Bellary-Royadrug	15,00,000
Hospet-Kottur
Morappur-Dharmapuri	8,00,000
Tirupatur-Krishnagiri

No allotments were made for Protective Railways in the Budget Estimate of the current year.

225. An increased grant of R11,00,000 has been allotted for Protective Irrigation Works next year, chiefly in the Central Provinces, Madras, and Bombay. 1903-1904. Protective Irrigation Works.

226. In order to maintain the Famine Insurance Grant at the full amount of R1,50,00,000 an addition of R15,56,000 is required under Reduction or Avoidance of Debt in consequence of the reduction under Famine Relief a part of which is counterbalanced by the increases under Construction of Protective Railways and Irrigation Works referred to in the two preceding paragraphs. 1903-1904. Reduction or Avoidance of Debt.

227. The increase in the Railway and Irrigation Interest charges is the interest on the new Capital Expenditure. 1903-1904. State Railways and Irrigation—Interest on Debt.

228. Under Minor Works, the special grant of R25,00,000 made in the current year is repeated in next year's estimates, and an increased amount is allotted for the ordinary expenditure. 1903-1904. Minor Works and Navigation.

229. As explained in paragraph 232 below, the current year's Estimate included R32,85,000 for special Military Works, while in next year's Estimate the corresponding provision is R40,60,000. 1903-1904. Military Works Expenditure.

230. The provision for Civil Works includes the special grants aggregating 40 lakhs which have been allotted to the Local Governments in the current year for expenditure in 1903-1904. 1903-1904. Civil Works Expenditure.

1903-1904. Army Expenditure.

231. The following statement shows separately the ordinary and special items included in the Budget Estimates for the current and ensuing years for Army expenditure in India:—

	Budget Estimate, 1902-1903.	Budget Estimate, 1903-1904.
	R	R
Despatch of Troops to England on the occasion of the Coronation	5,25,000	...
Delhi Coronation Durbar	8,50,000	53,000
Special measures for improving the efficiency of the Army	32,45,000	36,08,000
Blockade of the Mahsud Waziris	9,76,000	...
Hyderabad Contingent	...	35,64,000
Ordinary Expenditure	18,02,84,000	18,18,21,000
TOTAL	18,58,80,000	18,90,46,000

232. In addition to R32,45,000 shown above, a sum of R84,70,000 was provided in England in the estimate of the current year, and R32,85,000 in India under Military Works, thus giving a total of R1,50,00,000 in that year as the cost of the special measures sanctioned for improving the efficiency of the Army. For the coming year a sum of R63,96,000 is provided for Army, and R9,50,000 for Marine Expenditure in England and R40,60,000 and R18,00,000 in India under Military Works and Special Defence Works, respectively, in addition to R36,08,000 shown above, the aggregate being R1,68,14,000.

233. The Budget Estimate of ordinary Army expenditure in India is R15,37,000 more than that of the current year. The special measures sanctioned last year involve a recurring expenditure of R35,78,000 next year. If allowance be made for this, the Budget Estimate for next year for ordinary expenditure would show a saving of R20,41,000 on the current year's estimate, due mainly to smaller provision for food-supplies consequent on a fall in prices and for remounts and medical and ordnance supplies, and to the transfer of the Dacca Kheddahs to the Government of Burma.

1903-1904. Special Defence Works.

234. The provision under Special Defence Works is the first year's instalment of the expenditure required to carry out a scheme of special coast defences.

1903-1904. Revenue in England.

235. The estimate of Revenue in England exceeds the Budget Estimate of 1902-1903 by £141,000. Of this, £132,300 or very nearly the whole occurs under Army, and is due to an expected increase (1) in the value of articles in possession of regiments on their transfer from the Indian to the British establishment, and (2) in the subscriptions towards Indian Military Service Family Pensions, and also to the adjustment of receipts of the Indian Troop Service as revenue instead of as expenditure.

1903-1904. Expenditure in England.

236. The estimate of Expenditure in England is less than the estimate of the current year by £119,200. The Interest charges are expected to be less by £52,200, as India Bills for £1,500,000 are to be funded, and it is not considered necessary to make any provision for interest on temporary loans from the Bank of England for which £10,000 was provided in the estimate of the current year. Under Political, there was a special provision in the current year of £28,000 for the reception of Indian Chiefs attending His Majesty's Coronation. The Army Expenditure is expected to be less by £183,900. A decrease of £230,600 is anticipated in the charges for stores, chiefly ordnance, and of £70,000 in the charges for pay and pensions of retired Indian officers which are decreasing year by year. The estimate for the current year also included a special provision of £20,000 for the expenses of the visit of the Indian Contingent on the occasion of His Majesty's Coronation. A considerable part of these savings is, however, counterbalanced by an increase of £12,500 in the payments to the War Office in respect of the British forces serving in India, the estimate for which for the current year was reduced owing to a large refund having been expected on account of ove-payments in previous years, an increase of £80,100 in the charges for the Indian Troop Service due partly to the change in the method of adjustment of the receipts on account of the service referred to in the preceding paragraph, and an increase of £40,000 due to the normal growth of the payments to the War Office on account of retired pay, etc., of British officers and men for service in India.

Section IV.—Statements comparing the figures of the Estimates under the more important heads of Revenue and Expenditure with those of past years.

238. It is assumed that the quantity of Bengal opium sold will be the same as in the current year. The average price assumed is slightly lower than that obtained in the current year, the difference being allowed as a reasonable margin of safety. The payments for Bengal Opium are taken at the amount required to pay for an average yield of opium. There was a serious decline in the exports of Malwa Opium last year, but they have recovered materially during 1902-1903, and a further moderate improvement is expected next year.

239. The Revised and Budget Estimates are placed 6 lakhs and 173 lakhs, respectively, lower than they would have been but for the reduction of duty. As compared with 1901-1902, there has been a steady and general improvement, which has been most marked in Madras and Bengal. The consumption should be stimulated by the reduction of duty.

244. The receipts continue to make steady progress in almost all the Provinces. The exemption of the two lowest classes of incomes is estimated to relieve about 3,15,000 assessees out of a total of approximately half a million, or 63 per cent of the whole. The relief to the assessing staff should be still greater, as it is the smallest incomes which present the greatest difficulty and the least degree of certainty. The loss of revenue involved is estimated at 36 lakhs, or 16·8 per cent of the whole.

245. The Revised Estimate of the current year includes R1,50,000 and R1,10,000, and the Budget Estimate of the next year includes R5,00,000 and R2,53,000 on account of the revenue and expenditure, respectively, of Berar.

246. There was a serious decline in the revenue under this head in Burma last year owing to an unfavourable floating season, a dull timber market in Upper Burma, and the expiry of a large purchase contract in Pyinmana. In the current year there has been some recovery though less than was hoped for, and a small improvement on existing conditions is anticipated next year. In the Central Provinces the revenue has been swollen in the current year, though not to the extent anticipated in the Budget Estimate, by receipts for special supplies to the Satpura Railway and the Ordnance Factory at Jubbulpore. The estimate for next year for this Province provides for a decrease in both revenue and expenditure, due to the completion of the contracts for these supplies. In Bengal there has been a small decline in the revenue, and in Bombay the receipts have fallen slightly short of the estimate, but in the other Provinces a gradual growth of both revenue and expenditure is expected.

248. The Revised Estimate of the current year includes R3,00,000 and R1,30,000 on account of the receipts and charges of the Department in connection with the Delhi Coronation Durbar. The falling-off in revenue due to the reduction, with effect from 1st April last, of the rate of commission on money orders for R5 or less has been more than made good by the normal expansion of the operations of the Department. The increase in the Budget Estimate of expenditure for next year is explained in paragraph 220.

249. In the current year there has been a large increase in revenue due to the Coronation Durbar at Delhi. Allowance has been made for this in framing the estimate for next year, which has been taken at less than the Revised Estimate. The Revenue Expenditure in England for 1903-1904 includes the new charge of £38,000, being the guarantee payable on account of the reduction in the rate for foreign telegrams. A small portion of this (£6,900) is payable to the Indo-European Telegraph Department, and is therefore included in the estimate of receipts. The increase in capital expenditure in India is due to larger provision for the construction of departmental and railway telegraph lines.

250. In last year's Financial Statement it was estimated that the reduction in the charge for foreign telegrams would result in an increase of 10 per cent in that class of traffic, and that the loss in Indian terminal charges would be £17,000 and that of the Indo-European Telegraph Department £14,000. The 10 per cent increase has been more than realised during the year: and the loss on Indian terminals has been less than was estimated by £3,000.

251. These figures have been explained in paragraphs 153 and 163. Silver of the value of £300,000 has been purchased and will be coined into rupees next year. The profit on the coinage will amount to about R43,20,000. It will be credited as revenue and charged as expenditure on its transfer to the Gold Reserve Fund. The rupee issue of 1840 is being gradually withdrawn from circulation, and recoined for issue. More than a crore of these rupees are now in the Mints, awaiting recoinage, which is being pushed on as fast as possible.

253. The Revised Estimate of the current year and the Budget Estimate of next year include R18,97,000 and R4,10,000, respectively, on account of Berar. The only important variation in the figures not already explained is the increase of R3,97,000 in the Revised under Stationery and Printing, which occurs mainly in Bengal and is due to purchase of a larger stock of stationery to meet heavy demands of Government Printing Presses and State Railways. The increase in the expenditure in England in the Revised is also in the charges for stationery stores.

256. The Revised Estimate of net receipts on State Railways in 1902-1903 is worse than the Budget Estimate by R35,87,000 or £239,100. The gross Receipts are better by £144,000, but the working expenses have risen by £383,100. This result is partly due to increased expenditure consequent on the larger traffic on certain lines, but is mainly the result of larger expenditure having been found obligatory on some of the more important railways in connection with the maintenance and renewal of permanent-way, bridges and rolling-stock. The largest falling off in net receipts occurred on the East Indian Railway (42 lakhs), the Rajputana-Malwa (18½ lakhs) and the Burma Railways (5 lakhs), while increased net receipts were earned on the Great Indian Peninsula (9¾ lakhs), the Eastern Bengal (8 lakhs), the South Indian (7 lakhs), the Southern Mahratta (5½ lakhs), the Indian Midland (4,40,000) and the North Western Railway (3 lakhs). The estimate of net receipts on State Railways in 1903-1904 is placed at R28,84,000 or £192,300 above the Revised Estimate for 1902-1903. The estimate allows for additional earnings from increased open mileage, for development of traffic on extensions recently opened, and general improvement in traffic prospects, chiefly on certain lines on which the traffic has been unfavourable during the current year. On the other hand, increased expenditure has necessarily to be allowed for working the larger traffic and the increased open mileage, while in other cases it has been found necessary to continue the high rate of expenditure on maintenance and renewals as in 1902-1903. The increase in interest and other charges in India is due to the progress of Capital outlay, and that in England chiefly to further receipts of Capital from Railway Companies. As a result of these increases the estimated net gain from the working of State Railways in 1903-1904 is less by £49,100 than in the Revised Estimate for 1902-1903. The chief improvement is expected on the Bengal Nagpur (18 lakhs), the East Indian Railway (18 lakhs), the Rajputana Malwa Railway (6½ lakhs) and Burma Railways (3½ lakhs). Decreases are estimated for on the North Western (8 lakhs), the South Indian (7 lakhs), Great Indian Peninsula (5½ lakhs) and the Eastern Bengal (3½ lakhs). The Revised Estimate of net receipts from Guaranteed Railways shows a falling-off of R11,95,000 or £79,700 compared with the original estimate, due chiefly to a decline in goods traffic on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway. In the Budget Estimate for 1903-1904 a slight improvement in net receipts of £4,700 has been allowed for. The decrease in the Revised Estimate of Surplus Profits, Interest and other charges, as compared with the Budget Estimate for 1902-1903, is due mainly to the reduced share of surplus profits payable to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company consequent on the fall in the earnings of that line. The decrease in the Revised Estimate of interest paid in England compared with the original estimate is due to capital not having been raised as early as was anticipated. The increase in the Budget Estimate for 1903-1904 compared with the Revised Estimate for 1902-1903 is due to further receipts on account of Capital.

257. In the Revised Estimate the receipts from Major Works show an increase over the Budget Estimate of R23,28,000. This increase occurs almost entirely in the Punjab, the United Provinces and Bengal, where larger areas were irrigated than anticipated when the Budget was framed. The Budget Estimate for 1903-1904, though higher than the Budget for 1902-1903, is less than the Revised Estimate, as the area irrigated is not expected to be so large.

258. The Revised Estimate of expenditure shows an increase of R4,07,000 over the Budget Estimate, due to the necessity of carrying out certain maintenance works not provided for when the Budget was framed. In the Budget for 1903-1904 provision has been made for increased collection charges on account of the Mandalay, Jhelum, Mahiwah and Dad projects which have only recently been opened.

259. As regards "Minor Works," the increase under Receipts in the Budget Estimate for 1903-1904 is due mainly to the introduction of occupiers' rates on the Lower Sutlej and Mozaffargarh Inundation Canals consequent on the abolition of the chhar system. Under expenditure, the Budget Estimates for 1902-1903 and 1903-1904 show large increases as compared with previous years, owing to special additional grants of 25 lakhs having been provided in each year. The Revised Estimate shows a lapse of over 9 lakhs, due to its not having been practicable to utilise this grant fully in 1902-1903.

260. The Military Works expenditure of the year in India is expected to be higher than the Budget Estimate by R8,20,000 in consequence of increased grants given during the year. The Budget for 1903-1904 includes a special additional grant of R40,60,000 given for the following purposes:—

	R
Accommodation for Howitzer Batteries	4,00,000
Jubbulpore Gun Carriage Factory	4,00,000
Ishapore Rifle Factory	4,00,000
Electric-lighting and punkah-pulling in barracks	5,00,000

Buildings for the establishment of a Rifle Factory at Ishapore	2,00,000
Fifteen works costing less than 2 lakhs each	12,60,000
	40,60,000

261. It is expected that the expenditure on Imperial Civil Works during 1902-1903 will be less by R6,29,000 than the Budget, due to progress on works having been slower than was expected. In both the Revised Estimate for 1902-1903 and the Budget Estimate for 1903-1904 provision has been made for Civil Works in Berar.

262. The Revised Estimates of Provincial and Local Civil Works show decreases of R12,20,000 and R15,76,000, respectively, as compared with the Budget. The Provincial Civil Works estimate for 1902-1903 included expenditure from the contributions from Imperial Revenues which were referred to in paragraph 107 of last year's Financial Statement. In the ensuing year, similar contributions are expected to amount to only R40,00,000.

263. In 1902-1903 large savings have again occurred owing to the absence of Indian troops in South Africa and China, and to a smaller extent in Somaliland, and a portion of the savings has again been devoted to meeting the cost of various measures for improving the efficiency of the army and its subordinate departments. The savings are expected to amount to £479,500, and the total cost of the special measures amounts to £397,000. The more important of these measures, the cost of which is shown as Military expenditure, are the following :—

Purchase of a reserve of light military railway material	25,000
Purchase of Home scale ammunition for coast defences	35,100
Purchase of guns for Bombay defences	26,500
Supply of maxim guns for all British and Native units	13,300
Re-tubing four 6-inch B. L. guns and providing barbette mountings for them	13,900
Purchase of Bandolier equipment for the Field Army	7,200
Supply of binoculars and telescopes for battalions of British Infantry, etc.	23,000
Purchase of stores for re-equipping existing Field Hospitals	20,000

Purchase of Ordnance mules in the United States	9,300
Continuance of the temporary Remount Depôts at Umballa and Bangalore	8,000
Payment of compensation to shippers of Australian horses	6,800

264. The Revised Estimate for the current year also includes a sum of £113,900 on account of the Hyderabad Contingent, the charges for which for the last six months of the year have been, for the first time, included in the estimates of the Government of India in consequence of the lease of Berar.

265. The other variations in the receipts and charges, both in India and England, between the Budget and Revised Estimates of the current year have been explained in paragraphs 181 and 183.

266. The Budget Estimate of the coming year includes provision for the full sanctioned strength of the army in India, no credit being taken for savings due to the temporary absence of troops on service oversea. It also includes £237,600 on account of the Hyderabad Contingent, and £667,000 on account of special measures sanctioned during the current year for improving the efficiency of the army, besides £270,700, £120,000, and £63,300 provided under the heads Military Works, Special Defence Works, and Marine respectively. The aggregate cost of these special measures amounts to £1,121,000.

267. The more important of these measures, the cost of which is chargeable to the head Army, are—

Continuance during the year of the programme for the re-armament of the Native Army, Volunteers and Imperial Service Troops	226,700
Rifle Factory at Ishapore	103,700

The other variations have been explained in paragraphs 231—233 and 236.

Section V.—Capital Expenditure on Railways and Irrigation Works not charged to Revenue.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

268. The expenditure on Railway Construction for which the Government of India undertakes any financial responsibility or gives any direct guarantee is estimated at R10,34,58,000 in the current year and at R11,00,00,000 in 1903-1904, the amounts having been R8,87,27,981 in 1901-1902 and R11,00,00,000 in the Budget Estimate of the current year. The large lapse of R65,42,000 in the current year is due to short outlay in England against some of the amounts placed at the disposal of the Secretary of State and some of the Companies' Boards for the purchase of rolling-stock and stores. This was largest in the case of the East Indian Railway and the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. It was partly compensated for by increased outlay in India on, among others, the Shikoabad-Furrukabad Branch of the East Indian Railway, and partly by the debit of the purchase-money, R35,25,000, of the Nilgiri Railway which has been taken over by the Government. The distribution of the total expenditure on Railway Construction between State and Companies' agency in each of the three years from 1901-1902 to 1903-1904 is as follows :—

The Revised Estimate for 1902-1903 has been prepared for R14,88,000 less than the Budget Estimate, as no Province has found it possible to work up to the Budget grants, with the exception of Bombay and also of Burma, where better progress than was anticipated was found possible on the Shwebo canal.

The Budget grant for 1903-1904 has been fixed at R1,00,00,000, as in the current year, to provide for adequate progress on the projects now in hand, and for the commencement of the Mon canals in Burma and for the inception of a number of useful minor schemes.

281. The closing balances shown in the Revised Estimate include the grants aggregating 40 lakhs referred to in paragraph 137 which have been given from Imperial Revenues during the current year for expenditure on certain special works. In the case of Bombay it also includes a grant of 4 lakhs, being a partial regrant of the assignment of 19½ lakhs given in 1901-1902, which was referred to in paragraph 107 of last year's Financial Statement and one of R8,93,000 to make up the Provincial balance to the prescribed minimum of 20 lakhs which would not otherwise have been attained, exclusive of the special grants above referred to. Similar grants of R28,51,000, R27,32,000 and R8,83,000, respectively, have been assigned to this Province, the Punjab and the Central Provinces in the Budget Estimate of 1903-1904.

282. It was explained in paragraph 146 of last year's Financial Statement that grants aggregating 40 lakhs for Education, 32 lakhs for Public Works, and 18 lakhs for improvement of District and other establishments had been made to the Provincial Governments in the Budget Estimates for the current year. Of these, the first was for recurring expenditure and was to be repeated in full. The second, like the 40 lakhs now given, was wholly for non-recurring expenditure. The third was intended partly for recurring and partly for non-recurring expenditure; but in fact the greater part of it has been regranted during 1903-1904 in the case of the less prosperous Provinces. The distribution of these grants is shown below :—

Province.	Grant of 40 lakhs for Education in 1903-1904.	Grant of 40 lakhs in 1902-1903 for expenditure in 1903-1904 on special objects, paragraph 137.	Grant in 1903-1904 of recurring portion of grant of 18 lakhs for District and other establishments.	Total.

Total	40,00,000	40,00,000	15,03,000	99,03,000*

* Includes 4 lakhs referred to in the foregoing paragraph.

283. The grants enumerated in the third column of the foregoing statement have been added in the lump to the Provincial expenditure under 45.—Civil Works in their Budgets for 1903-1904; but the Local Governments will have authority to expend them on any of the objects for which they were given irrespective of the head of charge.

284. In paragraph 230 of last year's Financial Statement it was explained that the five-year Provincial Settlements framed in 1897 had been specially extended for another year, except in the case of Burma, and that the question of continuing them for yet another year was held over pending the consideration of important proposals affecting the general character of the Provincial Settlements. The latter question has been fully considered during the past year, and proposals have been submitted for the approval of the Secretary of State. Pending His Lordship's final orders it has been decided to continue the existing settlements in all the Provinces for one year more and also for a third year in the case of Bombay, the Central Provinces and the Punjab. It is anticipated that the revision of the settlements of the other Provinces, viz., Bengal, the United Provinces, Assam and Madras, will be undertaken during the ensuing year, and that the new arrangements will take effect from 1904-1905.

1902-1903. Home Treasury—Ways and Means.

286. In the Budget Estimate of the current year, the net disbursements at the Home Treasury on account of Government expenditure and the ordinary Remittance, Deposit and Railway Companies' transactions were taken at £19,528,900; provision was also made for the discharge of £1,368,800 Great Indian Peninsula Railway Debentures which expired on the 30th of June and the 31st of December last. Of the total estimated disbursement of £20,897,700, it was intended to meet £16,500,000 by the sale of Bills on India, and £1,500,000 by the issue of India Stock—chiefly on account of the expiring debentures. It was expected that £1,100,000 would be covered by receipts from the Imperial Government on account of the expenditure incurred in India in connection with the late War in South Africa and the China Expeditionary Force, and the remainder, £1,797,700, it was proposed to meet by drawing on the cash balance. It was also proposed to issue £4,000,000 of India Sterling Bills to replace Bills to the same amount falling due within the year, the amount of outstanding Temporary Debt thus remaining unchanged.

287. The cash balance on the 1st of April 1902 was estimated at £5,848,426, but the actual balance on that date was £6,693,137. The increase of £844,711 was owing to a reduction of £479,753 in the net expenditure chargeable to Revenue—mainly consisting of refunds by the War Office of over-payments in respect of British Forces serving in India—and to an improvement of £258,683 in the net transactions with Railway Companies, and of £106,275 under other heads.

288. In addition to the improvement of £844,711 in the opening cash balance, the Secretary of State has received a sum of £497,200 on account of the sale-proceeds of gold remitted from India in May last when the demand for Council Bills temporarily fell off. The demand, however, revived and has recently been large: apart from drawings in connection with the Gold Reserve Fund, the sales of Bills on India are now estimated at £18,000,000, or £1,500,000 in excess of the amount entered in the Budget Estimate. On the other hand, £565,000 of the anticipated advances by the War Office on account of the Forces serving out of India have been postponed to next year; and of the £4,000,000 India Sterling Bills discharged, only £3,500,000 (or £500,000 less than was originally contemplated) have been replaced by new issues. The Secretary of State has also recently had to meet a demand of £300,000 for the purchase of silver for rupee coinage. No provision on this account was made in the Budget Estimate: the silver has been purchased rather as a measure of precaution than to meet immediate necessities.

The net disbursements on account of the other transactions of the Home Treasury are now expected to be less than was estimated in March last by £158,900: there are decreases of £148,600 in the net Expenditure chargeable to Revenue, of £217,600 in the Capital Expenditure of the Government, and of £17,100 in the net disbursements on account of Deposits and Advances and Remittances other than for Railways; these are partly counterbalanced by a decrease of £224,400 in the net receipts from Railway Companies.

The result of the several variations from the Budget Estimate detailed above is an improvement of £1,635,811 in the net receipts of the Secretary of State. The cash balance on the 31st of March 1903 is therefore taken at £5,686,537 in the Revised Estimate, as against £4,050,726 anticipated in March last.

Council Bills and Gold Remittance, 1902-1903.

289. The announcement in the last Financial Statement, that it was the intention of the Secretary of State to draw £16,500,000 by means of Council Bills during the current year, was made with the usual reservation. The trade demand has been more evenly distributed than in the previous year. There was a falling-off in May, when it was found expedient to make a remittance of gold (for which the Secretary of State realized £497,200), but there was no repetition of the very slack demand which prevailed in July and August 1901. In November, as usual, the demand became brisker; and in the result the total drawings of the year are now taken at £18,261,000, of which £18,000,000 are on account of the ordinary disbursements of the Home Treasury and £261,000 on account of the Gold Reserve Fund. The latter sum represents practically the whole balance of the gold held in India at credit of the Fund: advantage has been taken of the recent increase in the trade demand to remit the amount from India by means of Council Bills.

1902-1903. Loans.

290. In addition to £1,500,000 of India Stock, the Budget Estimate of March last provided for the issue of £4,000,000 India Sterling Bills to replace Bills of a corresponding amount falling due in 1902-03. The only departure from this programme is that mentioned in paragraph 288, £500,000 of India Bills being discharged instead of being replaced by fresh issues. The Sterling Loan of £1,500,000 was issued early in May, tenders being invited for India 3 per cent Stock at a minimum of 99 per cent: the applications received exceeded 10½ millions sterling: the average rate of accepted tenders was £101-10-2 and the lowest accepted rate £101-7-6 per cent. In accordance with the intention announced in paragraph 252 of the last Financial Statement, £1,368,800 of this loan were applied to the discharge of Great Indian Peninsula Railway Debentures which expired during the course of the year.

The results of the issues of £3,500,000 India Sterling Bills have been as follows :—

Month of Issue.		Amount tendered.	Amount accepted.		Average rate of interest per cent per annum.

1902-1903. Capital of Railway Companies.

291. The transactions in England during 1902-1903 in connection with the Capital Deposit Account of Railway Companies are now expected to result in a net issue of £2,800 as against £156,800 provided for in the Budget Estimate. The usual details are as follows :—

	Budget.	Revised.
RECEIPTS.	£	£

The decrease of £2,353,900 in the receipts on account of Subscribed Capital is made up as follows :—

Debentures renewed instead of being replaced by fresh Capital—
Assam-Bengal Railway Company	495,900

Bengal-Nagpur Railway Company	—6,200

Net decrease on account of Subscribed Capital	2,353,900

The conditions obtaining in the London money market led to the postponement, as far as possible, of the raising of fresh capital by Railway Companies.

The Revised Estimate of drawings for expenditure on stores, etc., is less than the Budget by £137,000. Important decreases occur in the demands of the Burma and Madras Railway Companies.

292. The following are the details of the remittance transactions of Railway Companies working State lines in India to whom advances are made in England for the purchase of stores, etc., against adjustments in India by debit to the Railway accounts :—

TOTAL	2,203,000	1,469,200
Net Remittance from India	—443,000	—64,600

The Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company do not now propose to issue any debenture capital this year, and the issues of the East Indian and South Indian Railway Companies are expected to be less than the amounts entered in the Budget Estimate by £400,000 and £100,000, respectively. The net proceeds of £1,500,000 Debenture Stock issued by the East Indian Railway Company amounted to £1,452,100, and of this, £150,000 were applied to the discharge of debentures which expired on the 27th of July last.

The Revised Estimates of the East Indian and South Indian Railway Companies of advances for the purchase of stores are considerably less than the amounts entered in the Budget Estimate, but the decrease is partly counterbalanced by the larger withdrawals of the Great Indian Peninsula and Bengal and North-Western Railways.

1902-1903. Deposits and Advances.

293. The receipts and payments in England in connection with the Gold Reserve Fund and its investment are the principal transactions included under Deposits and Advances. In paragraph 244 of the last Financial Statement, it was explained that the receipts and charges balance each other and do not affect the Ways and Means of the Home Treasury except temporarily when the receipts and investments are not simultaneous.

The dividends on investments are now expected to be £93,100 as against £87,400 taken in the Budget Estimate, the remittances made last year having been invested earlier than was anticipated. The Revised Estimate also provides for the withdrawal to England and investment during the current year of £261,000 held in India on account of the Gold Reserve Fund. This sum represents the profit on recoinage operations undertaken for Native States, and its remittance to England will be made by means of Council Bills, vide paragraph 289.

1902-1903. Family and other Remittances.

294. The net disbursements on account of Family and other Remittances are expected to be less than the Budget Estimate by £43,200. The miscellaneous disbursements and the payments for stores chargeable to Provincial and Local Funds and to Native States will exceed the Budget Estimate, but the excess will be more than covered by larger repayments in England of advances of various kinds made in India, and by a decrease in the payments on account of Postal and Money Order transactions, etc.

1903-1904. Home Treasury—Ways and Means.

295. In the Budget Estimate of 1903-1904, the net disbursements at the Home Treasury on account of Government Expenditure and the ordinary Remittance, Deposit, and Railway Companies' transactions are taken at £19,900,900. Provision has also been made for the discharge of £1,500,000 India Sterling Bills and of £600,000 Great Indian Peninsula Railway Debentures which expire next year. The sum of these payments is £22,000,900, and of this it is proposed to meet £17,000,000 by the sale of Council Bills, £2,000,000 by the issue of India Stock—entirely for the discharge of debt already mentioned—and £1,249,000 from the repayments by the Imperial Government on account of the recoverable expenditure incurred in India in connection with the late war in South Africa, the China Expeditionary Force and the operations in Somaliland. The balance of the Secretary of State's net expenditure, or £1,751,900, will be met by drawing upon the cash balance of the Home Treasury. As stated in paragraph 288, the balance on the 1st of April 1903 is estimated at £5,686,537. The reduction of this amount taken in the Budget Estimate provides for a closing cash balance of £3,934,637 on the 31st of March 1904.

1903-1904. Loans.

296. India Sterling Bills for £3,500,000 fall due in 1903-1904. It is intended to replace £2,000,000 by the issue of new Bills, and to apply part of the proposed issue of £2,000,000 India Stock, referred to above, to the discharge of the balance (£1,500,000).

1903-1904. Capital of Railway Companies.

297. The Budget Estimate provides for a net issue of £344,200 from the Home Treasury in connection with the Capital Deposit Account of Railway Companies. The details are as follows :—

903. al Summary.

302. In the Budget Estimate of March last, the cash balance in the treasuries on the 1st of April 1902 was taken at about 18,07 lakhs and the net disbursements of the year at 4,13½ lakhs. Of the latter, it was expected that 81½ lakhs would be counterbalanced by an increase of the unfunded debt consisting chiefly of Savings Banks deposits. To meet the remainder, it was proposed to raise a rupee loan of 1,50 lakhs, and draw upon the cash balances to the extent of 1,82 lakhs. The cash balance at the close of the year was thus expected to be 16,25 lakhs.

303. The actual result has improved materially upon this estimate. The remarkable development of revenue which has already been described, the savings on the estimates of Army Expenditure, and the failure of the Local Government to spend in full their special grants for Education, Civil Works, and the like, has resulted in an increase of 2,63 lakhs in net Imperial receipts in India. The balances at credit of the Local Governments have increased by 9 lakhs instead of being reduced by 2,05 lakhs, the improvement in the Provincial section being thus 2,14 lakhs—Capital expenditure in India has been less by 14 lakhs, and the issues to Railway Companies less by 3 lakhs. The cash balance of Berar has been taken over in partial repayment of the Berar famine loan, and additional recoveries have also been made on account of this and other loans, giving a net improvement of 63 lakhs under Loans to Native States. The increase in the Savings Bank deposits is 6 lakhs more than expected. As explained in paragraph 168 a saving on the allotment for Famine Relief and Protective Railways and Irrigation Works has increased the charge under Avoidance of Debt by about 13 lakhs, but as the amount charged under this head is credited to Government in relief of borrowing, it has improved the cash balance by that amount. A large number of 1840 rupees withdrawn from circulation was held in the Mints at the end of last year. The recoinage of these has added about 47 lakhs to the cash balance. In consequence of the closing of Government treasuries during the last four days of the past year on account of the Easter holidays, the collecting officers of Railways and the Postal Department had with them a larger cash balance than usual. A reduction of their balances by 31 lakhs is expected at the end of the current year. Deposits, Advances and other miscellaneous transactions are expected to give a net improvement of 13 lakhs. These improvements aggregate R6,67 lakhs.

304. On the other hand, the actual cash balance on the 1st of April last was less than the amount taken in the Budget Estimate by about 25 lakhs: the recoverable payments in India in connection with the late war in South Africa, the China Expeditionary Force and the operations in Somaliland are estimated at 1,25 lakhs more than in March last: and gold of the value of 75 lakhs was remitted to London in May last as a precautionary measure when the demand for Council Bills temporarily slackened. The net credits on account of the remittances from England of the capital of Railway Companies have also been less by 55 lakhs. These deteriorations aggregate 2,80 lakhs and reduce the total improvement explained in the previous paragraph to 3,87 lakhs. Of this amount 2,37 lakhs have been applied to the payment of an increased amount of Council Bills, the demand for which has been very strong during the last few months of the year, and 1,50 lakhs go to swell the cash balance at the close of the year. This is now estimated at 17,75 lakhs as compared with 16,25, the figure at which it was taken last March.

1902-1903. Loans by Government

305. The transactions in connection with loans by the Government (line 13) are now expected to result in a net receipt of 12 lakhs against a net payment of 51 lakhs provided for in the Budget Estimate. The cash balance of Berar on the 30th of September last, amounting to 41 lakhs, which were transferred to the credit of the Nizam in accordance with the agreement for the lease of that Province, has been applied towards the partial liquidation of the Berar famine loan. An additional sum of 20 lakhs has also been recovered on account of this loan, and 15 lakhs on account of the Hyderabad loan due by His Highness the Nizam. 50 lakhs were allotted in the Budget Estimate for unspecified loans likely to be required by Native States, but only a small portion of this has been required. On the other hand, 50 lakhs have been advanced to the Simla-Kalka Railway Company for which no provision was made in the Budget Estimate.

1902-1903. Rupee Loan.

306. In accordance with the intention expressed in paragraph 264 of the last Financial Statement, a 3½ per cent loan of a crore and a half was announced in June last. Tenders were opened on the 9th of July, and the result of the loan was as follows:—

Total amount tendered.	Amount accepted.	Average rate of accepted tenders.	Minimum rate accepted.
R	R	R a. p.	R a. p.
4,47,72,300	1,50,00,000	97 9 10·2	97 9 0

1902-1903. Council Bills.

307. It has already been mentioned (paragraph 304) that the payments in India on account of the Secretary of State's ordinary drawings of Council Bills will largely exceed the Budget Estimate. The payments are now estimated at 27,63 lakhs as against 25,25½ lakhs anticipated in March last. This is exclusive of Bills for £261,000, paid for the remittance to London of the sum held at credit of the Gold Reserve Fund in India. In addition to the sales of Council Bills, a remittance of £497,200 in gold was made to the Secretary of State in May last, as already mentioned in paragraph 289.

1903-1904. Main Features.

308. The year 1903-1904 is expected to open with a cash balance of 17,75 lakhs. The surplus of Revenue in India is estimated at 27,85 lakhs, the expenditure chargeable to the balances of Local Governments at 2,08 lakhs, and the Capital Outlay on State Railways and Irrigation Works at about 6,28 lakhs. Of this charge for Capital Expenditure, a sum of 3,07 lakhs is, however, counterbalanced by the receipts anticipated, on account of the Capital of Railway Companies working State lines, the transactions of which in England are treated as remittances to India in the Home accounts and estimates. The payments on account of the Secretary of State's sales of Bills on India are taken at 25,60 lakhs, and it is estimated that 73 lakhs will be disbursed on account of expenditure recoverable from His Majesty's Imperial Government in connection with the operations in Somaliland, the China Force and the return of troops from South Africa. The transactions in connection with Government loans are expected to result in a net receipt of over 4 lakhs. Provision has been made for advances of 33 lakhs to the Simla-Kalka Railway, for loans aggregating 20 lakhs to Native States and also for advances to agriculturists on a large scale in the Punjab and Bombay. On the other hand, the recoveries on account of the large famine loans made to Native States and cultivators in recent years are expected to exceed the payments. The coinage of the silver purchased in the current year will add 45 lakhs to the balances. Deposits and other miscellaneous transactions are expected to result in a net debit of 11 lakhs. The aggregate net disbursements thus amount to 3,39 lakhs. Of this amount it is expected that 89 lakhs will be met from an increase in unfunded debt chiefly Savings Bank deposits (line 4) including interest. A new rupee loan of two crores will be raised in India: and the remaining 50 lakhs will be provided by drawing on the cash balances, which at the end of the year are expected to amount to 17,25 lakhs.

Savings Banks, &c.

309. The following table gives the details of the transactions of Savings Banks during a series of years and the estimated transactions for 1902-1903 and 1903-1904:—

The Savings Bank Accounts consist mainly of the Post Office Banks, but the transactions of the various departmental Provident Funds are also included.

A net deposit in the Post Office Savings Banks of 25 lakhs apart from interest was assumed in the Budget Estimate of the current year. The transactions of the first eight months of the year have resulted in a net increase in the deposits of nearly 44 lakhs, and allowing for withdrawals usually made in the closing months of the year, it is now expected that apart from interest there will be a net increase in the deposits of 32 lakhs during the year.

In the Budget Estimate for 1903-1904, a net deposit in the Post Office Savings Banks of 30 lakhs apart from interest is anticipated.

1903-1904. New Rupee Loan.

310. According to the programme now announced, it is the intention of the Government of India to raise a new loan in India of two crores, but full liberty is reserved, as usual, to vary the programme, as now announced, to any extent that may be considered desirable.

Section VIII.—Summary.

311. The principal features in this Statement are the following:—

I—The accounts of 1901-1902 closed with a surplus of £4,950,243, being £277,343 higher than the surplus expected in the Revised Estimate of that year.

II—1902-1903—

(1) The Revised Estimates show a total Revenue of £76,892,500, a total expenditure charged to Revenue of £74,154,000, and a surplus of £2,738,500. This surplus is higher than that estimated in March 1902 by £1,900,800.

(2) Of the surplus, £227,200 is due to the inclusion of the figures for Berar, which were not included in the Budget Estimate.

(3) There has again been a large and widely diffused increase of Revenue.

Exclusive of Berar, Land Revenue has improved by £218,400.

Customs show an improvement of £286,700 mainly in silver, and export duty on rice.

Opium has improved by £274,300, Excise by £257,300, and Salt by £66,700.

Irrigation Receipts have risen by £138,300.

There are smaller increases under all other important heads except Forests and Net Earnings of State and Guaranteed Railways. The latter are less than estimated by £318,800.

(4) Army expenditure is expected to be less than the Budget by £509,200, after providing £113,900 for the cost of the Hyderabad Contingent, which is included in the accounts for the first time. This saving is chiefly due to the absence of troops in South Africa and China.

A short crop yields a saving of £129,200 in Opium expenditure.

Famine Relief is less than was expected by £109,700.

The Local Governments have been unable to expend fully the special grants sanctioned for Education, Medical, Police, and Civil Works effecting savings of £245,000, £96,600, £80,600, and £217,400, respectively.

(5) The net direct Imperial expenditure on the Delhi Durbar has been £264,700, against which there are increased traffic receipts from Railways, Post Office, and Telegraphs aggregating £161,500. The net cost to Imperial has therefore been £103,200. Some further recoveries are expected next year. In addition to the above, net charges aggregating £98,900 have been incurred by Local Governments in connection with their Provincial camps.

(6) Special grants aggregating £266,700 have been made to Provincial Governments for expenditure mainly on Civil Works.

(7) The Mint receipts exceed the Budget Estimate by £351,900, and the expenditure has been higher by £299,600. These differences are mainly due to the profit of £263,400 on the conversion of the Indore coinage, which was transferred to the Gold Reserve Fund during the year. The whole balance of the Fund held in India has been remitted to England by Council Bills, and has been invested in Consols. The nominal value so held is now £4,052,561.

Silver to the value of £300,000 was purchased for coinage shortly before the close of the year.

(8) A loan of 1½ crores was raised in India; and India 3 per cent Stock to the amount of £1,500,000 was issued, of which £1,368,800 were applied to the discharge of Great Indian Peninsula Railway debentures. £4,000,000 of India Bills, Temporary, fell due, of which £3,500,000 were replaced and £500,000 were discharged.

(9) The drawings of Council Bills in 1902-1903 are expected to amount to £18,261,000. Of this, £261,000 represents the remittance of the balance of the Gold Reserve Fund to London, and £18,000,000 are remittances on ordinary account, as compared with £16,500,000 entered in the Budget.

(10) In addition to Council Bills, a remittance of £497,200 in gold was made to the Secretary of State in May last.

III—1903-1904—

(1) The Budget Estimates of 1903-1904 show a total Revenue of £76,355,400, a total expenditure charged to Revenue of £75,406,700, and a surplus of £948,700.

(2) The leading feature of the estimates is the reduction of the salt duty by R0-8-0 a maund, (except in Burma) and the exemption from income-tax of all incomes below R1,000 per annum. These two remissions of taxation involve a sacrifice of revenue to the extent of £1,153,300 and £240,000, respectively. But for this, the surplus of the year would have been larger by £1,393,300.

(3) Of the special grants made last year, 25 lakhs for Minor Irrigation Works, 40 lakhs for Education, and R15,03,000 for other objects are repeated for 1903-1904.

(4) Almost all the principal heads of Revenue are expected to improve as compared with the Budget Estimate of the current year, the principal increases being £778,600 under Land Revenue (exclusive of Berar) and £384,800 under Excise.

(5) Famine Relief which is expected to be confined to the Central Provinces and to a trifling amount in the Punjab, is estimated at £321,200 less than last year. The Famine Insurance Grant of one million is, however, retained at the same figure as formerly.

(6) Exclusive of £237,600 on account of the cost of the Hyderabad Contingent, the Army expenditure is expected to be less by £210,400, the reduction being mainly in the home charges. The policy of making provision for improving the efficiency of the army is continued, and projects working up to a total sum of £1,001,000 have been included in the estimate.

(7) Most of the other heads of Expenditure show an increase.

(8) £120,000 are provided as the first instalment of a scheme for special coast defences.

(9) Subject to the usual reservations, loans of £2,000,000 in England and of two crores in India are announced as contemplated, and the drawings of Council Bills are entered at £17,000,000. The sterling loan is required partly to replace £1,500,000 of temporary Bills which will not be renewed, and partly to pay off debentures of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. The Rupee loan is intended for capital expenditure on Railways and Irrigation Works.

(10) Subject to the usual reservations provision is also made for the raising of capital through Railway Companies as follows, viz. :—

(a) towards outlay on State Railways, £2,050,000;
(b) for expenditure on Companies' Railways, £1,083,000.

(11) £3,500,000 of India Bills will fall due within the year, of which only £2,000,000 will be replaced by similar Bills.

APPENDIX II.

Memorandum by the Hon'ble Major-General Sir Edmond Elles, K.C.B., on Military, Military Works, Special Defences, and Marine Expenditure for the years 1902-1903 and 1903-1904.

The estimates with which the Military and Marine Department of the Government of India is concerned are :—

I.—The Indian Military Estimates.

II.—The Home (India) Military Estimates.

III.—The Military Works Estimates.

IV.—Special Defences.

V.—The Marine Estimates.

I will deal with them in this order.

2. Taking the Indian and the Home (India) Military Estimates together, the net expenditure in 1903-1904 will, it is estimated, be less than that provided in the Budget for 1902-1903 by £123,200.

In paragraph 2 of my memorandum on the Budget for 1902-03, I referred to the adoption in India of certain proposals of His Majesty's Government to increase the pay of the British soldier by 2d. a day from 1st April 1902, and by a further 6d. a day from 1st April 1904, under certain conditions.

These proposals were estimated to entail an extra charge of £226,000 in 1902-1903 and £204,800 in 1903-1904, and thereafter a further additional charge of £560,000 a year.

It has been decided that Indian revenues should bear the extra 2d. a day above referred to. The question of the liability of India for the further expenditure to be incurred from 1st April 1904, is being submitted to arbitration by the Secretary of State for India.

3. Before dealing with the estimates in detail I will refer to the measures carried out or in progress, during the present year for improving the efficiency of the army, and also to those which we propose to continue or initiate during the ensuing financial year.

In my memorandum on the Budget for 1902-03 I divided the various measures for improving the army into the following heads: Field Army, Frontier Defence, Frontier Railway, Internal Defence, Coast Defence, Ordnance Factories and general requirements; it will be convenient to follow this division.

Budget 1902-03.

Field Army.

4. The following items have been carried out as proposed :—

(1) Re-armament of the field army.

(2) Organisation of Ambulance Bearer Corps.

(3) Addition of 64 officers to the Indian Establishment for admission to the Staff Corps.

(4) Addition of three Howitzer batteries to the Indian Establishment.

(5) Raising corps of Native garrison artillery for frontier posts.

(6) Supply of bandolier equipment to the Native army, that for the British army being delayed for want of the approved pattern which has not yet been decided by the War Office.

(7) Addition of 60 machine guns.

Re-organisation, Madras Army.—Seven battalions were reorganised during the year and the progress made has fully come up to expectation. One Madras Cavalry regiment has also been re-organised. The experimental measure of enlisting Coorgs in the 11th Madras Infantry is progressing somewhat slowly owing to disinclination on the part of this new class to come forward rapidly.

Engineers.—Sanction was received during the year to raise two extra companies of Sappers for the Bombay Sappers and Miners as well as a fortress company for Aden and a Railway Sapper company. The raising of these units is now progressing.

Improvement in organisation of Horse and Field Artillery.—The Secretary of State sanctioned during the year the introduction of the Brigade Division system and the formation of Ammunition Columns for the field army, the re-organisation is in progress and should be shortly completed.

Hospital Train.—Some delay has occurred in supplying the Hospital Train owing to the necessity of placing the order at home.

Frontier Defence.

Railways.—The Khusalgarh-Kohat-Thal railway has been completed, thus greatly strengthening this part of our frontier for offence or defence. The bridge over the Kabul River at Nowshera has been opened.

The Quetta-Nushki line has been commenced.

Chitral Communications.—The post at Dargai is practically completed and occupied. The bridge over the Swat River at Chakdara, to replace the temporary bridge built in 1895, has been completed and opened to traffic.

Internal Defence.

The re-arming of the volunteers is being proceeded with, but has been somewhat delayed owing to the decision to arm the Cavalry with ·303 rifles.

Ordnance Factories.

The programme in regard to expenditure on Ordnance Factories has been practically carried out.

General requirements.

Of the items referred to last year the following have been sanctioned and have either been carried out or are in progress:—

(1) Addition of officers and other improvements in the Military Accounts Department.
(2) Improvement of Army Hospital Corps.
(3) Increase in reserve of Military Hospital Assistants.
(4) Addition of officers to the Ordnance Department.
(5) Various improvements in the Supply and Transport Department generally affecting the pay and prospects of officers and materially re-acting on the efficiency of the Department. Also an addition of 43 British Non-Commissioned officers to the Department.
(6) An increase of 16 sisters to the Army Nursing Service.

Bounties—During the past year, bounties were re-opened for men of corps returned from South Africa. The cost involved is estimated at R1,76,000, a moiety of which is recoverable from the War Office, and will form a credit in the home accounts, the other being met from China and South Africa savings.

Revision of the surgical and medical equipment of field hospitals, etc.—In accordance with the recommendations of the Field Hospital Equipment Committee the re-equipment of our field hospitals with surgical instruments of the most modern type has been sanctioned together with revised scales of medical stores, at an initial cost of R2,99,874. This sum has been provided out of China savings during the current year. This revised equipment will, however, result eventually in a saving of R3,97,586.

As leather pakhals are highly objectionable from a sanitary point of view, the equipment of field hospitals with metal pakhals has been sanctioned at a cost of R14,500 during the current year. This sum has been found out of China savings.

Maintenance of a reserve of furniture for general hospitals.—Experience having shown that furniture for general hospitals in the field cannot be obtained at short notice, the expenditure of R1,01,322 out of the China savings has been sanctioned during the current year to complete the supply of furniture for these hospitals.

Budget 1903-04.

Field Army.

5. Re-armament.—The re-armament of the regular army in India with magazine rifles has been completed, but 78,936 rifles are still required to complete the re-arming of the volunteers, the reservists and for an ordnance reserve. An endeavour was made to procure during 1903-04, 50,000 of the new pattern short rifle, introduced at home, but they could not be supplied. Fifty thousand L. E. rifles of the present pattern have accordingly been ordered to be supplied during 1903-04, at a cost of 34 lakhs, and the question of having them fitted for charger loading and supplied with all the modifications approved for the new pattern short rifle is under consideration.

Machine guns.—Twenty machine guns were purchased during the past year, a lakh being provided in the estimates for the purpose. Forty more were ordered last September at a cost of 2 lakhs to be paid for from China and South Africa savings. These, with 132 already in possession, leave another 96 to make up 288, which number represents our total requirements as at present estimated.

Increase to the reserve of military hospital assistants from 20 to 25 per cent.—With the approval of the Secretary of State the leave reserve of military hospital assistants was increased last year from 15 to 20 per cent. But even after making this increase the number of hospital assistants available from all sources is still insufficient to meet the requirements of the field army. We have therefore recommended to the Secretary of State a further increase to the reserve of military hospital assistants from 20 to 25 per cent. and we have provided R5,760 in the Military Budget Estimates of 1903-04 to meet the cost of training pupils in medical colleges during their first year.

Supply and Transport.—In continuation of the organisation of the transport service begun in 1900, it is now proposed to organise 12 mule corps with full complement of British and Native Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers as recommended by the Simla Transport Committee at an estimated cost of R3,30,000 initial and R1,82,000 annual recurring, and we have addressed the Secretary of State on the subject.

An addition of 8 more officers to the Supply branch of the Supply and Transport Corps will be made in 1903-04. This is in continuance of the policy inaugurated in 1901-02.

In the present year the control of the Government Kheddah Department has been transferred to the Government of Burma, resulting in a relief of about one lakh to the Military Estimates.

Substitution of horse for bullock draught in the four existing heavy batteries.—The Secretary of State has sanctioned a proposal to substitute horse for bullock draught for the guns and first line of wagons in the four existing heavy batteries. Provision has been made in the estimates of 1903-04 for the estimated cost of the proposal, viz., R6,31,472 (R5,21,948 initial and R1,09,524 recurring).

Conversion of 2 garrison companies into heavy batteries.—The Secretary of State's sanction to the conversion of two garrison companies into heavy batteries with bullocks has been received. To meet the expenditure on this account, R11,625 has been provided in the home estimates and R30,473 in the Indian Military Estimates of 1903-04.

Addition of British Officers to the Native Army.—An addition of 110 officers has been recommended this financial year. This will give all Punjab regiments an establishment of 13 officers and all other regiments of 12.

To meet the cost of this addition to the number of British officers the following provision has been made in the estimates for :—

1903-04 . . . . R98,920 for 110 officers, this sum represents one-third of the cost of the pay of the officers added to battalions of British Infantry for one year in view to their eventual admission to the Indian Army.

Re-organisation, Madras Army.—The reconstitution of three more regiments will be carried out during the coming financial year to complete the 10 battalions sanctioned by the Secretary of State.

Re-organisation of Hindustani Mahomedan Regiments.—Experience having proved that suitable Hindustani Mahomedan recruits are not obtainable in numbers sufficient for the maintenance of four efficient battalions of this class, the number of Hindustani Mahomedan battalions in the Bengal Command has, with the approval of the Secretary of State, been reduced from four to three; the 12th Bengal Infantry is about to be reconstituted as a regiment of Pioneers composed of four companies of Lobana Sikhs and four companies of Hindu Jats, while the three remaining Hindustani Mahomedan battalions are to be recruited from the best districts of the Hindustani Mahomedan recruiting area.

Organisation of Mounted Infantry units.—Under the scheme for the organisation of Mounted Infantry recommended to and approved by the Secretary of State, 160 men will be trained in each battalion of British and Native Infantry, and on mobilisation two battalions of Mounted Infantry (of four companies each) one British and one Native, will be attached to each division. The strength of a Mounted Infantry Company has been fixed at 125.

It was suggested by the War Office that the establishment of a Mounted Infantry Company should be raised to 175 of all ranks, but this, it has been decided, is not desirable, and the Secretary of State has been so informed.

Re-organisation, Hyderabad Contingent.—In connection with the change in the administration of Berar, the following measures for the re-organisation of the Hyderabad Contingent have been sanctioned by the Secretary of State:—

Cavalry.—One regiment to be broken up and the three remaining regiments to be increased by a squadron each. The regiments to be transferred to the Bombay Command.

Artillery.—Three batteries to be maintained pending re-organisation. The remaining battery to be broken up.

Infantry.—The six regiments to be retained and transferred to the Madras Command.

Location of troops.—All Hyderabad Contingent stations to be given up, except Aurungabad and Bolarum where an extra battalion will be located.

Reduction of staff.—Appointments of General Officer Commanding, Assistant Adjutant General, Military Secretary to Resident and Station Staff Officers at abandoned stations to be abolished.

Accounts.—Contingent Accounts to be transferred to Controllers of Commands to which the troops are transferred and to be incorporated in ordinary army estimates.

A considerable annual saving is anticipated by these measures amounting, as far as can be seen at present, to about R1,60,000.

Mounted Sappers.—The formation of a Mounted Sapper detachment has been decided on, the strength of A Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners being increased by two British Non-Commissioned Officers and 47 native ranks, at a cost of R7,573 initial and R16,658 annual recurring. This sum has been provided in the estimates for 1903-04. The question of maintaining horses for the detachment during peace time is now under consideration.

Amalgamation of Mobilisation and Intelligence Branches at Army Head-Quarters.—The Commander-in-Chief has proposed the amalgamation of the Mobilisation and Intelligence Sections at Army Head-Quarters with an increased establishment of officers and clerks, costing R87,138, and recommendations to this effect have been made to the Secretary of State. The system has been introduced with advantage at the War Office and will greatly increase the efficiency of the army for war.

Internal Defence.

The further supply of rifles expected during the ensuing year will permit of the Volunteers being fully re-armed whenever corps are recommended for re-arming by the Inspector-General.

Coast Defences.

The necessity for re-organising the coast defences of the chief ports having been recognised, proposals have been made to the Secretary of State embracing a full scheme for the purpose. The expenditure, which will be heavy, will be spread over five or six years and shown under a new head of account, 47—Special Defences, 1902. A sum of 18 lakhs has been allotted to commence works and armament next year.

Corps of Indian Coast Artillery.—In 1901 His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief submitted a proposal to raise some companies of Native Garrison Artillery for service at Indian ports, with the object of releasing certain British Garrison Companies which were required for frontier positions and the Field Army. In the meantime the War Office suggested that the Hong Kong-Singapore and Ceylon-Mauritius battalions of Royal Artillery should be transferred to the Indian Government. These two proposals were considered together by a Committee, and the scheme drawn up by them has been since accepted by the Government of India. It contemplates the formation of a corps of eight service companies and one depôt company: five of these service companies being located at the colonial stations. The cost to India of her share of the proposals is R1,47,000 initial and R3,41,000 recurring (War Office share being R3,18,000 initial and R6,32,000 annual). Pending the Secretary of State's sanction R3,40,000 have been provided in the Indian Military Estimates of 1903-04.

Ordnance Factories.

Cordite Factory.—We anticipate that cordite will be manufactured before the end of 1903, and that 1904 will see the factory in full working order.

Gun Carriage Factory, Jubbulpore.—Considerable progress is being made with the construction of the Central Gun Carriage Factory at Jubbulpore. The cost of machinery is estimated at R5,28,750, but this calculation is subject to modification. For this purpose R3,15,000 was provided in the home ordnance estimates of 1902-03, and the balance R2,13,750 will be provided in coming year's home estimates.

Rifle Factory, Ishapore.—Machinery for the Rifle Factory at Ishapore will cost R22,05,000. During the current financial year machinery to the extent of R6,75,000 has been ordered, and we have provided R15,30,000 in the home ordnance estimates of 1903-04 to complete our requirements in this respect.

Rolling Mills, Ishapore.—The demands on the Foundry and Shell Factory at Cossipore have outgrown the capacity of the factory especially as regards the manufacture of heavy steel shells, of brass cartridge metal, of cupro-nickel (for the manufacture of ·303-inch bullets), of bar steel and of component parts of guns. We therefore propose to enlarge the scope of the factory, and as land is not available at Cossipore, an extension of the works will be erected at Ishapore, where the manufacture of all steel rods and bars, of cupro-nickel, etc., will be carried on. The scheme, so far as the military estimates are concerned, involves an initial expenditure of R10,12,361. There will, however, be an annual saving by the manufacture of these articles in India.

Cossipore.—Another step in the policy of making India self-dependent in the matter of war matériel is the manufacture of field guns in this country. We propose to establish a gun factory at Cossipore, and in order to give effect to the measure, machinery to the value of R1,05,000 will be purchased in England during 1903-04.

Arsenals.—It has been found necessary to increase the subordinate establishment of the Ordnance Department by 45, a measure which will cost R11,700 initial and R88,000 recurring.

General Requirements.

Increase to the leave reserve of Military Assistant Surgeons from 15 to 20 per cent.—The existing reserve of these men is absorbed to such an extent by temporary duties as to be insufficient for the replacement of men temporarily ineffective on account of sickness and other causes, nor does it admit of a reasonable amount of leave to others; we propose therefore to increase this reserve from 15 to 20 per cent., and we have provided for this purpose a sum of R7,920 in the military estimates of 1903-04 to meet the cost of training pupils in medical colleges during their first year.

Increase to the salaries of matrons in station family hospitals.—With a view to induce trained nurses to accept, and remain in, employment as matrons in station family hospitals, the present rates of pay have been improved at an annual cost of R18,932.

Increase to the establishment of the Indian Nursing Service.—The Secretary of State sanctioned the addition of 16 nurses to the Indian Nursing Service during 1902-03. A further addition of 16 nurses (3 senior and 13 nursing sisters) to the establishment during 1903-04 has now been sanctioned. For this purpose R99,320 have been provided in the military estimates of ensuing year. Of this sum R75,000 is for the provision of quarters and will form an addition to the normal military works grant, the balance is to meet six months' recurring expenditure as well as outfit allowances.

Increase in the pay of medical officers in India.—In consequence of the improvements made in the pay of Royal Army Medical Corps officers of the home establishment we have agreed to the grant, at an annual cost of R4,04,547, of the following concessions to officers of that corps serving in India:—

	Cost. R
(i) Increased pay to junior officers below the rank of major .	2,02,800
(ii) Charge allowances to senior officers in charge of station hospitals	80,640
(iii) Specialist's pay to certain officers below the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel	38,880
(iv) Increased pay to Lieutenant-Colonels	58,428
Add exchange compensation allowance	23,799
TOTAL .

'Remount Department.—On the recommendation of the horse and mule breeding commission it has been decided, with the approval of the Secretary of State for India, to re-organise the departments controlling horse, mule and donkey breeding operations and the remounting of the army in India. In connection with this re-organisation two large runs for rearing young stock will be started in the Jhelum Canal Colony; and the breeding of horses and mules in that part of India will, we hope, be largely developed by a system to which the Government of the Punjab have agreed, of granting land to colonists on that canal subject to the condition that one suitable mare will be kept by the grantee for breeding purposes. The initial cost of the measures will amount in all to R9,45,000, most of which is for the establishment of the large runs for young stock. The recurring cost is estimated at R3,64,000, which will give a largely increased staff for the control of breeding operations, including seven additional officers, four veterinary surgeons and a few native assistants of the rank of native officers drawn from silladar cavalry. The Civil Veterinary Department is of course correspondingly strengthened for other work by the withdrawal of the heavy duties connected with horse breeding. We hope that the expenditure involved may result ere long in a marked improvement in the number and quality of the country bred horses suitable for army purposes which may be obtainable.

We are also taking advantage of the opportunity afforded by the opening up of this new land to transfer to that district the remount depot hitherto maintained at Kurnal, which place has of late years proved very unhealthy both for men and horses.

Grass farms and dairies.—The scheme inaugurated a few years ago for establishing Government dairies for the supply of pure milk and butter to British troops is being gradually developed, and dairies have already been established at Allahabad, Cawnpur, Lucknow, Agra, Jubbulpore, Jhansi, Umballa, Rawalpindi, Mhow, Quetta, Aden, and Belgaum. Provision has been made in the next year's estimates for starting dairies at three or four other large military stations.

At Umballa the system of entrusting the Director of Farms with the provision of fodder for all Government and transport animals has resulted in a saving of about R15,000 in the first year.

An Assistant Director of Farms has recently been posted to the Madras Command, and the adoption of the system obtaining in the Punjab and Bengal Commands is to be gradually introduced in that Command. Eventually, it is hoped to introduce this system into the Bombay Command also, the establishment of grass farms on a proper footing having done much to reduce the cost of supplies to Government animals in Northern India.

Separation of Burma from the Madras Command.—The separation of Burma from the Madras Command has been sanctioned. The want of direct communication with Burma and the fact that its interests are entirely unconnected with Madras rendered this measure necessary.

Increased establishment of paid lance ranks.—An increased establishment of paid Lance-Sergeants and Lance-Corporals in British Cavalry and Infantry regiments having been sanctioned in England, a similar increase has been sanctioned for regiments on the Indian establishments at an extra cost of about R83,000.

Delhi Manœuvres and Coronation Durbar.—A sum of R10,00,000 was provided to meet the cost of the arrangements in connection with the Delhi Manœuvres and Coronation Durbar, including all charges for the camps of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and the Lieutentant-Generals Commanding. This sum was provided as under:—

	R
In the Military estimates for 1902-3	8,50,000
From Annual Manœuvres grant	1,50,000
TOTAL	R10,00,000

The accounts are not yet made up and the actual division of the charges has not been finally ascertained.

Appointment of sergeant cooks to British units in India, provision of cooking ranges and the establishment of a School of cookery at Poona.—A scheme for the training of non-commissioned officers and men in cooking, for the supply of suitable cooking appliances and for the appointment of Sergeant cooks to all British units in India. The necessity for the proposals has been accepted by the Secretary of State and sanction given to the establishment of a school of cookery at Poona, the appointment of sergeant cooks to regiments at hill stations and the provision of cooking ranges.

The following sums have been provided in the estimates:—

General Remarks

Coronation contingent.—A contingent of 1,000 officers and men from the Indian Army and Imperial Service Troops and 100 volunteers were despatched to England to be present at His Majesty's Coronation. The cost of the voyages was borne by India, but the contingents were the guests of His Majesty's Government during their stay in England

China.—A few battalions of the Indian Army with the necessary staff and departmental units are still employed in Northern China at the cost of the Home Government. From the 1st April the administration of the force will be taken over by the War Office and we hope to withdraw departmental details, but there is every prospect of 2 or 3 battalions in excess of the number we provide for colonial garrisons being still required.

Somaliland.—Owing to disturbances in Somaliland we were called on to send reinforcements to that country consisting of 3 battalions of Native Infantry, 1 company Sappers, 1 section of a Native Mountain Battery, 150 Mounted Infantry and 236 men of the Bikaneer Camel Corps with 2 Native Field Hospitals and one section of a British Field Hospital. The whole cost of the operations is paid by His Majesty's Government.

Marine Estimates.—The defence flotilla at Bombay, for the maintenance of which India has hitherto paid the admiralty an annual subsidy of £59,000, has been abolished, with the exception of some of the torpedo boats which are being retained for the present.

It has been decided to replace the R. I. M. S. Clive, which is about 21 years old and quite worn out, by a vessel of the same class as the Hardinge. A sum of R9,50,000 has been allotted for expenditure on this account during the next year.

In addition to their usual trooping work, Royal Indian Marine vessels have been used to a considerable extent during the year for the conveyance of troops between India, China, and Somaliland. Numerous hired transports have also been taken up and fitted by the Royal Indian Marine for the same service.

The R. I. M. S. Hardinge was utilized to carry the coronation contingent to England, and the same vessel is at present employed as a hospital ship for the Somaliland force.

Attention has been given during the year to securing a greater utilization of Indian coal in Royal Indian Marine vessels, and orders have been issued enjoining that course as far as may be practicable.

Military expenditure from 1895-96 to 1902-03.

6. I give below a statement showing the total Military expenditure under the Indian Military Budget, the Military Works Budget including Special Defences and the Home (India) Budget for the past 8 years, in view to comparing the Military expenditure with the total revenue. This statement shows that whereas the percentage of total Military expenditure to revenue for the first period of four years was 25·56 the percentage for the last period of four years was only 21·19. Further that owing to peaceful years the total expenditure in the last period was less than in the first.

I.—Indian Military Estimates.

Revised Estimates, 1902-1903.

Comparison—Revised for 1902-1903 and Budget for 1902-1903.

7. The revised Indian Military estimates for 1902-1903, compared with the budget for the year, show a decrease of R86,36,000 caused by an increase in receipts of R12,55,000 and a decrease in expenditure of R73,81,000. Of the above sum of R86,36,000 a sum of R25,94,000 has been made available for expenditure on arms, ammunition, equipment and stores in England, R15,33,000 has been transferred to Mililtary Works services and R88,000 has been passed to credit of Marine Department.

The increase in receipts is chiefly due to credits on account of the value of kheddah elephants transferred to the Burmah Government and of stores sent from India the cost of which is debitable to the Imperial Government.

8. The more important causes which have led to the decrease in expenditure have been the following:—

(a) The absence of the Indian Contingent in South Africa secures a saving of R52,50,000.

(b) A saving of R17,15,000 and R2,27,000 accrues owing to the employment of the forces in China and Somaliland, respectively.

(c) The difference between the credits taken by debit to Imperial Government for the value of local stores issued from stock and the amounts likely to be spent on their replacement during the financial year accounts for a net decrease of R6,78,000.

(d) Savings to the extent of R14,26,000 are anticipated in the sums specially provided for howitzer batteries, and improvement in organization of Horse and Field Batteries, Army Bearer and Hospital Corps, Transport reorganisation, land at Nowshera for a grass rukh, increased pay to British soldiers, additional officers to the Military Accounts Department, increase and reorganization of Sub-Marine Mining Establishments, increased scale of Cavalry ammunition, increase to the Bombay Sappers and Miners, and reconstitution of a regiment of Madras Cavalry.

(e) R2,93,000 was included in the Indian estimates to cover certain items of expenditure at home. This will not be spent in India.

(f) Smaller expenditure is anticipated to the extent of (i) R11,00,000 for Regimental pay and allowances, etc., (ii) R6,00,000 for Medical establishments, supplies and services, (iii) R4,00,000 in the Ordnance Department, (iv) R2,00,000 under "Remounts," and (v) R1,00,000 on account of "Clothing".

(g) A saving of R1,86,000 is expected in the provision made for special services owing chiefly to the dispersion of the Khar Movable Column.

(h) Short strength of British and Native troops owing to ordinary fluctuations accounts for a decrease of R3,00,000.

(i) Transfer to the Burma Government of the Kheddah Department secures a saving of R80,000 this year, while smaller purchases of Ordnance mules in India account for a decrease of R69,000.

(j) Less charges to the extent of R1,50,000 on account of camps of exercise.

9. On the other hand, there have been increases in expenditure under certain heads, the more important of which are the following:—

(a) Charges on account of the Hyderabad Contingent from 1st October 1902, from which date the Berars have been leased in perpetuity to the British Government, R17,08,000.

(b) Cost of special expenditure to be incurred in India against the Military Estimates from savings due to the absence of troops in China and South Africa, R17,41,000.

(c) The grant of special bounties and gratuities to British soldiers for extension of their service in India accounts for an increase of R1,76,000. A moiety of this is recoverable from the War Office, and will form a credit in the home accounts, the other being met from China and South Africa savings.

(d) Larger pensionary charges owing to heavy capitalized payments and to fresh admissions consequent on the re-constitution of certain Madras Infantry regiments, R3,16,000.

(e) More charges on account of the Delhi Durbar and manœuvres, R8,64,000.

(f) Larger ordinary expenditure anticipated under Supply and Transport, R4,00,000.

(g) More supernumerary officers as candidates for the Staff Corps and more Unattached List officers than provided for, R1,93,000.

(h) Increased sea transport charges due chiefly to conveyance of details to England, and larger payments of passage money, R1,63,000.

(i) Extra expenditure consequent on the re-constitution of seven Regiments of Madras Infantry, R95,000.

(j) Expenditure anticipated in connection with the Aden Delimitation Commission, R50,000.

Estimates, 1903-1904.

10. The estimates for 1903-1904, in the net, amount to R18,09,21,000 or to R28,96,000 more than the Budget for 1902-1903. This is due to an increase in receipts of R2,70,000 and an increase in expenditure of R31,66,000.

Comparison—Budget for 1902-1903 and Estimates for 1903-1904.

The increase in receipts is due chiefly to larger sales of malt liquor being anticipated.

The more important causes of increase in expenditure are the following:—

(a) A sum of R35,64,000 has for the first time been provided on account of the Hyderabad Contingent in consequence of the Berars having been leased to the British Government. This is balanced by increase of general revenue and is not an actual increase of expenditure.

(b) Substitution of horse for bullock draught in four heavy batteries accounts for an increase of R6,31,000, while R3,28,000 have been added to provide mules for the machine gun sections of the Field Army.

(c) The reorganization of the departments for the control of horse and mule breeding operations, and of the remounting of the army, necessitates an additional expenditure of R3,44,000.

(d) In connection with the formation of the corps of Indian Coast Artillery a special provision of R3,40,000 has been made.

(e) The establishment of new military dairies necessitates provision of R2,00,000, while the reorganization of 12 mule corps calls for provision to the extent of R4,00,000, and improved arrangements for the custody of Supply and Transport Stores for R1,15,000.

(f) A sum of R4,95,000 has been added to meet increase in pay of and arrears of pay to officers of the Royal Army Medical Corps, charge allowance to senior medical officers of certain station hospitals, and specialist pay to officers below the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

(g) Larger provision for supernumerary and Unattached List officers of the Indian Army is required to the extent of R1,68,000; and provision for 12 months, instead of for 6 months only as in 1902-03, for 64 British officers added to certain regiments of the Native Army causes an increase of R1,50,000.

(h) Provision to the extent of R2,00,000 has been made to secure improvement in efficiency of the Volunteer Force in India, and of R1,46,000 for the improvement of the Ordnance Department.

Among other causes of increased expenditure might be mentioned the following:—Brigade Division Staff, Royal Horse and Field Artillery (R1,52,000); heavier non-effective charges (R2,79,000); increase in numbers drawing messing allowance (R1,30,000); conveyance of troops and stores (R1,74,000); Army Bearer Corps (R1,17,000); larger clothing supplies (R1,07,000); personnel for the Cordite Factory, Nilgiris (R99,000); addition of 110 officers to the Indian Army (R99,000); amalgamation of Mobilisation and Intelligence Branches at Army Head-quarters (R75,000); and improvement of rifle ranges for regular troops (R93,000).

11. Against the foregoing increases, there will be a partial set-off by reason of certain decreases, the most important of which are:—

(a) Smaller provision an account of special services due chiefly to cessation of Blockade operations against the Mahsud Waziris, to reduction in strengths of garrisons, and to partial replacement of military by militia, R10,21,000.

(b) Provision made in 1902-03 for initial expenditure on account of howitzer batteries (R5,37,000), for hospital train (R1,97,000), and for bandolier equipment (R2,00,000) will not be necessary next year.

(c) Reduced provision on account of food supplies to the extent of R7,00,000.

(d) The special provision of R5,25,000 made in 1902-03 for the despatch of an Indian Contingent to England in connection with the King's Coronation is not repeated.

(e) To meet arrear charges on account of the late Delhi Coronation assemblage, and to provide for the continuance of certain establishments, administrative and audit, in connection with the accounts thereof, a provision of R53,000 only has been made against R8,50,000 in 1902-03, securing a decrease in expenditure of R7,97,000.

(f) Instead of an addition of R2,93,000 made in 1902-03, a deduction of R1,00,000 has been made in the Indian Budget, 1903-04, to adjust excess provision in the Home Estimates after the Secretary of State's estimates had closed, which causes a decrease of R3,93,000.

(g) Smaller provision on account of extra pay to British soldiers accounts for a decrease of R3,18,000.

Other items causing decrease in expenditure are:—Less provision for improvement in organization of Royal Horse and Field Artillery (R2,73,000); reduction in establishment of siege train bullocks and smaller provision for transport establishments (R2,15,000); transfer of Dacca Kheddahs to Burma Government (R1,34,000); smaller provision for remounts, (R1,79,000), for medical supplies (R1,24,000) and for Ordnance establishments and supplies (R1,88,000).

II.—Home (India) Military Estimates.

Revised Estimates, 1902-1903.

Comparison—
Revised for 1902-1903
and
Budget for 1902-1903

12. The Military Department is next concerned with the home estimates for army effective and non-effective charges. The Home Budget Estimates for 1902-1903 made provision for a gross expenditure of £5,272,700, but in the Revised Estimates the provision has been reduced to £5,255,500, or by £17,200.

This decrease of £17,200 in the Revised Estimate as compared with the Budget Estimate, is chiefly brought about by smaller expenditure on ordnance and clothing stores; to less charges for pay and pensions of non-effective and retired officers of the Indian service, calculated on recent payments and to charges on account of the visit of the native contingent on the occasion of His Majesty's Coronation, for which £20,000 were included in the Budget, being now shown under the debt head "Advances Repayable;" counterbalanced by larger payments to the War Office in respect of British forces serving in India; increased charges for furlough allowances of officers of the Indian service; larger expenditure under the head "Indian Troop Service," owing to the fact that a lump sum of £250,000, included in the Budget as a net charge under this head in the absence of a detailed estimate, has proved insufficient; and to more miscellaneous expenses, chiefly due to the purchase of mules.

The net figures of the Revised Estimate show an increase of £35,100 over those of the Budget Estimate for 1902-1903, due to less expenditure of £17,200, as explained above, and a decrease in receipts of £52,300.

Estimates, 1903-1904.

Comparison—
Budget for 1902-1903
and
Estimates for 1903-1904

14. The estimated receipts and expenditure for 1903-1904 are as follows:—

	Receipts.	Expenditure.	Net expenditure.
Effective	437,200	2,718,800	2,281,600
Non-effective	60,700	2,370,000	2,309,300
TOTAL .	497,900	5,088,800	4,590,900

13. Under receipts credit is taken for contributions to be made to the extent of £230,000 by the Imperial Government in respect of the cost of the transport of troops, and of military charges for Aden in consequence of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Indian Expenditure; compared with the Budget for 1902-1903 the receipts show an anticipated increase of £132,300. This addition is due chiefly to an anticipated increase in receipts on account of the Indian Troop service and in the subscriptions to the Indian Military Service Family Pensions. The total gross anticipated expenditure for 1903-1904 is less by £183,900 than the amount provided in the Budget for the preceding year. This decrease is chiefly accounted for by smaller anticipated expenditure on stores for India; to the Budget for 1902-1903 for pay and pensions of non-effective and retired officers of the Indian Service, having been too high; and to the Budget for 1902-1903 having included £20,000 for the expenses of the visit of the Indian contingent on the occasion of His Majesty's Coronation which is not repeated; partly counterbalanced by anticipated increases under "Indian Troop Service" and payments to the War Office in respect of British troops serving in India, etc.

The gross charges on account of effective services, as estimated for the coming year, include payments to the War Office in respect of the British forces serving in India (£775,000); furlough allowances and pay during the voyage of British forces serving in India (£108,000); furlough allowances of officers of the Indian Service (£230,000); Indian Troop Service (£330,100); passage of officers and troops otherwise than in transports (£19,000); miscellaneous (£27,100); and stores for India (£1,229,600).

The gross charges on account of non-effective services are made up of the retired pay, etc., of the British forces for service in India (£650,000); pay of the non-effective Colonels of Royal Artillery (£21,000); pay and pensions of non-effective and retired officers of the Indian Service (£1,570,000), miscellaneous pensions, etc. (£84,000), and the Indian Military Service Family Pensions (£45,000).

The net anticipated expenditure for 1903-1904 is less by £316,200 than that for the preceding year, and, as explained above, this is due to an increase of £132,300 in receipts and a decrease of £183,900 in gross expenditure.

III.—Military Works Estimates.

14. Excluding English expenditure, the Budget Estimate for 1902-03 amounted to R1,46,41,000 (£976,066); the Revised Estimate of expenditure is taken at R1,54,61,000 (£1,030,733). The difference of R8,20,000 (£54,666) is due to additional grants obtained by transfer from the Military Estimates and to an anticipated lapse of R1,90,000 (£12,666) in consequence of short outlay in England on stores.

The Budget Estimate for 1903-04, excluding English expenditure, is R1,54,27,000 (£1,028,466), or an increase over that of 1902-03 of R7,86,000 (£52,400). The difference is due to special grants for certain works which have been recognised by the Government of India to be of special urgency and importance.

The main heads of expenditure in the Military Works Estimate amount to the following sums, in round figures:—

	R	£
For original works including those in progress and those to be commenced . . .	82,66,000	(551,066)
For repairs	36,12,000	(240,800)
For establishment and tools and plant . .	28,29,000	(188,600)
For Barrack Department establishment, supplies and tools and plant	8,80,000	(58,666)

Expenditure amounting to R8,16,000 (£54,400) will be incurred on water supply projects; R82,000 (£5,466) for inland fortifications; R5,00,000 will be spent on installing electric lighting and punkah pulling in barracks; provision has been made in the Budget for R1,50,000 (£10,000) for completing the cordite factory in the Nilgiris; R6,00,000 (£40,000) for the central gun-carriage factory at Jubbulpore ; R6,00,000 (£40,000) for a small arms factory at Ishapore ; R7,00,000 (£46,666) for steel and cartridge metal rolling mills at Ishapore ; and also R3,73,000 (£24,866) for renewal of buildings, etc. The remaining works consist of hospitals, barracks, etc., and the ordinary requirements of the Ordnance, Remount and Marine Departments and of the Supply and Transport Corps.

Excluding renewals, provision is made for 72 new works, of which 65 are in progress and 7 have yet to be commenced. A sum of R6,30,000 (£42,000) is provided for minor works each costing not more than R2,500.

IV.—Special Defences.

15. The Budget Estimate for 1903-04 is R18,00,000 (£120,000), of which R8,00,000 (£53,333) is for expenditure on works and R10,00,000 (£66,666) for armaments.

V.—Marine Estimates.

Revised Estimates, 1902-1903.

Comparison—
Revised for 1902-1903.
Budget for 1902-1903.

16. The net total of the Budget Estimate of Royal Indian Marine for 1902-1903 was R16,68,000 (£111,200), the Revised Estimate stands at R12,23,000 (£81,533) showing decrease of R4,45,000 (£29,667).

The decrease is chiefly due to large recoveries from the Home Government in connection with the employment of Royal Indian Marine vessels on Imperial service, counterbalanced to some extent by increased expenditure in Dockyards, owing, chiefly, to extensive repairs at the Bombay Dockyard, to the Elphinstone and the launches at Karachi which had been damaged by cyclonic storms.

Estimates, 1903-1904.

Comparison—
Budget for 1902-1903.
Estimates for 1903-1904.

The net total of the Marine Estimates for 1903-1904 is R16,04,000 (£106,933) against R16,68,000 (£111,200), the total of the Budget for 1902-1903 showing a decrease of R64,000 (£4,267). The decrease in this case also is due, chiefly, to increased recoveries in connection with the employment of Royal Indian Marine vessels on Imperial service. The decrease would have been larger but for increased expenditure on labour charges and stores in dockyards and on salaries of establishments serving afloat.

E. R. ELLES.

March 18, 1903.

6. The large allotment for open lines has necessarily reduced the money available for the construction of new lines, and it has only been possible this year to authorise work being begun by the State on 479 miles of railway, particulars of which will be found in Statement A.

7. Several offers have, however, been made to the Government for the construction of railways by private promoters or syndicates, a list of which will be found in Statement C. To some, concessions have been given, but the companies have not yet been floated. In the case of others, the terms suggested either are such as to practically amount to a guarantee which of course would necessitate the inclusion of the project in, and subject it to the limitations of, the programme, or go greatly beyond the terms hitherto conceded. Their acceptance would involve a complete departure from the terms offered for the construction of branch lines in Resolution No. 514 R.C. of 1896, and the question is one which necessarily requires very careful investigation. To advise on the best methods of extending construction and of administering and working Indian railways, Mr. Thos. Robertson, C.V.O., was appointed by Government as special Commissioner for Indian railways, and Government anticipate that much benefit will be derived from the recommendations and advice in the report which he is about to present.

8. Statement B, "new lines to be taken up as funds permit", has been prepared on the same lines as last year. No specified order of urgency has been adhered to, the new lines being grouped geographically.

9. After providing for the requirements of "open lines" and "lines under construction," the programme for "new construction" provides for an expenditure of Rs. 55,94,000 in the forthcoming year on the following projects :—

1. Jech-Doab (Southern Section).
2. Bengal-Nagpore, including the Gondia-Chanda and the Brahmapuri-Nagpur extension.
3. Lower Sind extension of the North Western railway.
4. Hapur-Meerut.
5. Rameswaram extension of the South Indian railway.

10. The following lines in the Madras Presidency are being constructed as Protective Works chargeable to the Famine Insurance grant :—

It is, however, probable that we shall be relieved of the cost of the two metre gauge lines, since a syndicate has applied for permission to construct them along with other "feeders" to the Southern Mahratta railway, for which they have obtained the promise of a guarantee from the Local District Boards in which the lines will lie.

In consideration of the commendable enterprise which certain District Boards in the Madras Presidency have shewn in the matter of improving the means of communication within their jurisdiction, the Government of India, in order to encourage and expedite the construction of railways, have declared their willingness to advance funds from the Provincial Loan Account, on the security of the resources of the Boards which include the proceeds of a special cess leviable under the Local Boards Act, 1884.

Such loans would be repayable in regular instalments, and it is hoped that full advantage will be taken of this measure.

11. The official year 1902-1903 began with a railway mileage of 25,378·34 miles open for traffic and of 2,784·82 miles under construction. Between the 1st of April 1902 and up to date of going to Press, 863·85 miles have been added to those open for traffic, and 231·98 miles are expected to be opened before the close of this month, making the total mileage open for traffic at the close of the year 1902-1903, as shown by Statement D, 26,470·57 miles.

Sanction was given during the year to the construction of 682·22 miles of new railway, details of which will also be found in Statement D, and there are now 2,371·07 miles under construction or sanctioned for construction.

12. The railways of India, taken as a whole, for the third year in succession show a balance to the credit of the general revenues after paying working expenses, interest charges and payments for annuities in redemption of Capital. The approximate figures for 1902-1903, as compared with the two previous years, are as follows :—

	1900-1901. (000 omitted.)	1901-1902. (000 omitted.)	1902-1903. (000 omitted.)
	R	R	R
Surplus of revenue over expenditure	48,77	1,26,99	24,08

13. Compared with the figures of the previous year the results for the year 1902-1903 show a falling off of R1,02,91. The receipts are less by R29,94, the working expenses are higher by R43,87, while interest charges, etc., have increased by R29,10. Exceptionally favourable conditions obtained in 1901-1902 and the fall in the earnings of the current year was anticipated and allowed for in the Budget Estimate. The increase in working expenses occurs chiefly on the Great Indian Peninsula railway system and on the North Western railway, where largely increased outlay has been necessary on maintenance and renewals of Way and Rolling Stock. The charges for interest, etc., rise with the steadily increasing expenditure on Capital account.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 19th March 1903, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

The weather has been less unsettled than it was last week, but on the 13th there was general snow over Kashmir, rain and hail over the Western Himalayas, and showers of rain at Rawalpindi, Ludhiana, Khushab, Mooltan, Bahraich, Burdwan, Tezpur, Dibrugarh, Bogra, Berhampore, Cherra Poonjee, Jessore, Mymensingh, Ranchi and Hazaribagh. On the 14th these unsettled conditions practically ceased and the only showers reported were at Simla, Tezpur, Silchar and Barisal where the amounts received were very light. Between the 15th and 17th there was practically no rain over India. On the 17th, however, conditions began to change in the north-west, due to the approach of a depression from the westward. Light showers had fallen on this day in Baluchistan and on the 18th rain had extended to Peshawar, Cherat and Murree, and on the 19th to Dera Ismail Khan.

The following table shows that rainfall averaging more than 0·10 inch in amount has been received during the week in the Calcuttta, Burdwan and Simla sub-divisions and in Baluchistan, the average actual rainfall ranging from 0·13 inch in the Calcutta sub-division to 1·17 inches in the Burdwan sub-division. Over the remainder of India though a few light scattered showers have been received, the week's rainfall has been actually or practically nil. The week's rainfall was considerably heavier than usual in the Burdwan sub-division but was normal or less than the normal elsewhere. The anticipated rainfall at this season is, however, very small and the light rainfall of the week under review has not affected the seasonal condition to any important extent.

Season and Crop Prospects for the Week ending Saturday, the 14th March, 1903.

Madras.—There was no rain except some scattered showers in parts of Madura and Tinnevelly. Water for irrigation is insufficient in parts of Ganjam, the Deccan, North Arcot and Salem. Ploughing, sowing and transplanting continue in parts. Standing crops are generally in a fair condition. Harvests continue with fair outturn. Pasture is scanty in parts of the Circars, the Deccan, Salem and South Canara, but fodder is sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Prices have slightly risen in the central parts of the Circars and the Carnatic, but are stationary or have fallen elsewhere.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of Karachi, Hyderabad and Thar and Parkar. There was a very slight fall in parts of Larkana, the Upper Sindh Frontier, Kaira and Colaba. Standing crops have been slightly damaged by locusts or frost in parts of Hyderabad, the Upper Sindh Frontier and Surat, by blight in parts of Poona, and by insects in parts of Surat. They are suffering from insufficient moisture in parts of Sukkur, Hyderabad and Nasik, but are generally in good condition elsewhere. The harvesting of autumn crops is completed in Kaira and Sholapur and continues in parts of Khandesh and Dharwar. Threshing is completed in Larkana and is almost over in Colaba, and continues in parts of Nasik and Dharwar. The harvesting of spring crops is generally in progress Threshing has commenced in parts of Ahmednagar, Poona and Satara. The cotton crop is in good condition in Ahmedabad and in fair condition in Satara and in parts of Surat and Dharwar The collection of materials for manure is almost completed in Ratnagiri and continues in parts of Thana, Colaba and Nasik.
